AGREE TO GRANT ARMY AS BIG AS MAY BE NEEDED

APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Baker Puts Recommendation Before Members and Vote to Adopt It Is Unanimous.

ADDED TO THE ARMY BILL

Rule Will Be Asked to Prevent Defeat in House on a Point of Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—On recommendation of Secretary Baker, who appeared before the House Committee on Military Affairs today, the committee agreed to give President Wilson authority to raise an army of practically unlimited size.

The committee unanimously adopted the language proposed by Secretary Baker and assured him that if a point of order should be made against its adoption by the House a special rule would be obtained to force its passage as part of the Army bill.

The text of the provision which Secretary Baker suggested, incorporated in the bill to be reported Saturday, reads:

"The President is hereby authorized to draft, subject to the provisions of the Selective Service act and all acts amendatory thereto, as many men, from year to year, as can be equipped, trained, and used during each fiscal year until the successful termination of the war."

This provision gives the President the extended power he sought, and with the wide authority conferred by the Overman act to co-ordinate and combine bureaus and departments, vastly enlarges his supervision of the conduct of the war.

Representative S. Hubert Dent, Chairman of the Military Committee, who was at first opposed to giving unlimited authority to the President, announced after the meeting of the committee that he would abandon his plan to limit the size of the army to 5,000,000.

As the unlimited power clause in the Army bill can be eliminated by a point of order on the ground that it is new legislation, the committee intends to obtain a special rule to prevent such a point being raised successfully. The point may not be raised if the matter is fully presented to the House. Those who are opposed to the theory of giving the President unlimited authority, say that Congress will not lose its power to prevent the President from going to an extreme not sanctioned by Congress. In case the President should call for an army of a size that may be too large in the opinion of Congress, they say, Congress could refuse an appropriation for the purpose, and thereby limit the President's action.

"We want to give the President everything he asks for," said Representative Fields of Kentucky, ranking Democratic member of the committee. "If he wants 15,000,000 men, he can have them. If he wants $100,000,000,000, he can have that. We do not intend to limit him in any way. There is no limit on the President's decision and no appeal from it, except that Congress may refuse to make the necessary appropriation. But Congress will not do this while the war is in progress, and therefore the President, to all intents and purposes, has the unlimited authority he seeks."

The policy of the Administration, acting under this unlimited authority, will be to keep calling into service and training the drafted men as fast as they can be transported to Europe. During the first ten days of May, 90,000 soldiers were sent abroad. At this rate the American Army will be augmented by nearly 300,000 each month. But with more ships being put into commission each day, the transportation facilities are increasing, and as they increase it is proposed to increase the size of the army. As long as the need for men exists and until Germany is decisively defeated it is the intention, if the bill in its present form becomes a law, to keep sendng men over in a constantly increasing stream. Tentative plans of the War Department contemplate an immediate army of 3,000,000 men.

The bill, as it will be reported, carries appropriations and authorizations of about $12,500,000,000. The appropriations amount to something over $9,500,000,000 and the authorizations reach $2,500,000,000. In addition, about $8,000,000,000 for the War Department for heavy artillery is contained in the Fortifications bill, now being considered by the Appropriations Committee.

LONDON, May 23.—Representative Caldwell's statement that America would have a million men in France a year from the arrival of the original expeditionary force has aroused the greatest interest here, the newspapers deducing that as the first contingent of American troops landed in France in June, 1917, next month will see the realization of Mr. Caldwell's prediction.

Poles to Demand of Austria Full Integrity of Kingdom

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Extreme importance is attached to conferences to be held next month between Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, and the leaders of the Polish Party regarding the future attitude of the Poles in the Austrian Parliament.

The Polish members, it is indicated, will lay down three conditions, the first of which is a guarantee of the integrity of the Kingdom of Poland; the second, a demand for the settlement according to Polish desires of the question of the Province of Cholm, along the Polish border, which was awarded to the Ukraine in the Brest-Litovsk treaty and which Poland desires to reclaim, while the third condition is a stipulation that Galicia shall not be divided.

Whether the Poles can be induced to support the Government or will definitely join the opposition will depend upon the outcome of the conferences over these questions.

WILSON CONSENTS TO DEFER TAX BILL

RESULT OF CONFERENCE

Leaders Also Induce McAdoo to Try to Revise His Revenue Requirements.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Wilson has yielded to the united opposition of the House and Senate and has abandoned tentatively his plans for revenue legislation at this session of Congress, it was reported tonight, following a conference of Congressional leaders in revenue matters had with him at the White House.

Secretary McAdoo, while not agreeing definitely with the Congressional leaders, assured them in a later conference that he would inquire carefully into the conditions of the Treasury again and see whether it would be possible to get along until next year without another revenue-raising bill.

The conference at the White House was arranged for early this week as a result of the divergent views of the Congressional leaders and the Secretary of the Treasury. The latter insisted that there was need for a revenue bill before Congress adjourned for the Summer. The chairmen of the Revenue framing committees of Congress disagreed with Mr. McAdoo's conclusions and insisted that no practical purpose could be obtained by the enactment of a revenue bill at this session.

It was decided to refer the matter to the judgment of President Wilson. Secretary McAdoo presented his argument to the President yesterday. His opponents, Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Senator Martin, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations; Representative Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Representative Swager Sherley, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, and Representative John Garner of Texas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, participated in the conference with the President tonight.

In the conference of nearly two hours the financial and political situation of the country was fully presented by the Congressional leaders. They gave figures intended to show that there would be sufficient revenue at hand, or means to obtain additional money, to care for all the expenses of Government until next March. The Chairmen of the tax-levying committees and the heads of the committee providing for expenditures informed the President of the amounts of money that would be authorized by this Congress.

One of the strong arguments made was that a good revenue bill could not be written in so brief a time, and that if framed now, on the eve of election, it would be partisan and unsatisfactory both to the public and the Administration. The promise was given to the President that the Ways and Means Committee would prepare a bill during recess, hold long hearings, and have it ready for consideration by the House next December. It was pointed out that, as most of the revenue must come from excess profits and income taxes, which are made up in June, there is no reason for a bill until early next year.

These and other arguments, some of them political, it is reported, brought the President to the side of the Congressional leaders. As they left the President he was reported to have said to them that he agreed with their view if it was at all possible for Secretary McAdoo to find sufficient money to meet the mounting expenditures.

In the hope of reaching a definite conclusion on the problem, which has been perplexing Congressmen for weeks, the leaders left the White House to confer with Secretary McAdoo. They informed Mr. McAdoo of the position of the President and urged him to agree to put revenue legislation off until next December. The Secretary was told that Congress intended scaling down the estimates greatly, and he was told that his own estimates were entirely too high.

While he did not surrender his position, Mr. McAdoo promised to look carefully into the condition of the

WORK OR FIGHT, WARNING TO ALL ON DRAFT ROLLS

GOES INTO EFFECT ON JULY 1

MAY BE BLOW TO BASEBALL

New Regulation Is Based on Maryland Law and Intended to Meet Man-Power Demand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Idlers, unemployed and those of draft age not engaged in essential or useful employment will be rounded up for military service unless they apply themselves at once to some sort of labor that will dovetail into the plans of the Administration for winning the war. All such youth of draft age will either have to serve in the army or work.

The plans of the Administration were announced today when Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, the Provost Marshall General disclosed an amendment to the Selective Service law dealing with the matter of compelling men not engaged in useful occupation immediately to apply themselves to some form of labor contributing to the general good.

The new order is aimed at idle men of draft age hanging around pool rooms and race tracks, against men of draft age affiliated with the I. W. W. movement, men serving food or drink in hotels, public places and social clubs, elevator operators, doormen, footmen, ushers and persons connected with games, sports, and amusements.

The action will be supplemented in a few days, it is understood, by a formal appeal to be made by President Wilson to the Governors of the States urging them to set up machinery, similar to the Maryland anti-loafing law, by which all persons between the ages of 18 and 50 are compelled to engage in some useful employment.

During a visit of Governor Harrington of Maryland to the White House a few days ago the matter was discussed. The President was so interested in what the Governor told him about the successful operation of the Maryland anti-loafing law that he asked the Governor to send him a copy of it and suggested a conference between Governor Harrington and General Crowder, which was held on Tuesday.

There is no federal legislation by which persons other than those of draft age can be controlled in the matter of employment, but this can be reached through State executive and other action, as it has been done in Maryland.

War Department Statement.

The sweeping character of the campaign which the Administration has initiated against the idler of draft age is disclosed in the announcement issued this afternoon, which was as follows:

War Department,
Office of the Provost Marshal General, Washington.

Provost Marshal General Crowder today announced an amendment to the Selective Service Regulations which deals with the great question of compelling men not engaged in a useful occupation immediately to apply themselves to some form of labor, contributing to the general good. The idler, too, will find himself confronted with the alternative of finding suitable employment or entering the army.

This regulation provides that after July 1, any registrant who is found by a local board to be a habitual idler or not engaged in some useful occupation shall be summoned before the board, given a chance to explain, and, in the absence of a satisfactory explanation, to be inducted into the

Allies Forming Big Army of Workmen Behind the Front

PARIS, May 23.—Far-reaching plans for the organization in France of a civilian labor force to carry out engineering work behind the lines, thus releasing American soldiers for duty at the front, were announced today. Already more than 16,000 French, Italian, and other laborers free from military obligations have been engaged and put to work on some of the approximately 1,000 engineering construction and reconstruction jobs, on which Americans were being employed.

The move is the initial step in a plan long contemplated to create a civilian army behind the lines, which may eventually total a quarter of a million men, entirely, if possible, recruited from abroad. This will make it necessary to import American civilian labor. The men already procured comprise a dozen nationalities, including Chinese and Moroccans, who are being shipped to France as rapidly as the Americans need them.

REA AND WILLARD DROPPED BY M'ADOO

But Heads of Pennsylvania and B. & O. Will Remain with the Corporations.

WINCHELL GETS NEW POST

Appointed Regional Director in South—N. D. Maher Also Named—All Freight Charges on Cash Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—There was much speculation today concerning the men whom William G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, would select as Federal Managers for the more important railroad systems under his plan for complete federalization of the carriers.

The best information here was that Mr. McAdoo would act quickly to effect permanent organizations for the principal systems in the East and that some announcement might be expected within a few days.

It was reported that neither Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Lines, nor Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, would be named by Mr. McAdoo as a Federal Manager in charge of operation. These systems come under the jurisdiction of the Allegheny region, of which C. H. Markham, formerly President of the Illinois Central, is Director. Mr. Markham was in this city conferring with Mr. McAdoo and the members of his advisory council, and it is probable that he soon will make recommendations affecting these and other lines in the Allegheny region.

The belief was expressed that Vice Presidents in charge of operations of the Pennsylvania and of the Baltimore & Ohio would be named as the Federal Managers who will replace Mr. Rea and Mr. Willard as the executive heads of these roads. It was understood that both Mr. Rea and Mr. Willard preferred to remain as the heads of the corporations to oversee financial problems. In such capacity they would have no control over the operation of the physical properties and would receive their salaries from the railroad companies out of the rentals paid by the Government.

Crowley May Get a Place.

It is generally believed here that Patrick E. Crowley, Vice President and General Manager of the New York Central Lines, will be appointed Federal Manager of that system. Mr. Crowley has been considered "right-hand man" to A. H. Smith, who resigned as President of the New York Central recently to become Federal Director for the Eastern region. Mr. Crowley, it is understood, will be

Mrs. Rose P. Stokes Convicted of Disloyalty; Illegal to Impair National Morale, Says Judge

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 23.—Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, charged with violation of the Espionage act, was convicted by a jury in the Federal Court here tonight on all three counts in the indictment against her.

After conferring with Francis M. Wilson, United States District Attorney, and Seymour Stedman of Chicago, Mrs. Stokes's counsel, Judge Valkenburg announced that he would defer sentence pending a motion for a new trial. He set June 1 as the date for hearing the motion.

Mrs. Stokes received the jury's verdict without the slightest trace of emotion. As she was leaving the courtroom she said to those about her that she intended to go on with her work regardless of the outcome of the case.

"If I keep my health," she said, "I expect to continue my work, and if I should be locked up it would make my efforts tremendously more effective."

The offense for which Mrs. Stokes was convicted carries with it a possible fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for twenty years, or both, on each count.

Pending the ruling upon the motion for a new trial, Mrs. Stokes will continue to be at liberty on bond. The specific act upon which she was indicted was the writing to The Kansas City Star of a signed communication in which she said:

"No Government which is for the profiteers can also be for the people, and I am for the people, while the Government is for the profiteers."

The first count of the indictment charged her with wilfully and knowingly attempting to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, and refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States. The second count charged her with obstructing the recruiting and enlisting service of the United States, and the third accused her of making and conveying "certain false reports and false statements with the intent on her part to interfere with the operations and success of the military and naval forces of the United States and to promote the success of the enemies of the United States."

The limit to which critics of the Government may go in time of war and the line between objectionable and unobjectionable criticism were defined by the court in instructing the jury.

"Our armies and navies," the Judge said, "can operate and succeed only so far as they are supported and maintained by the folks at home and the measure of their success depends upon the intensity of their maintenance and support. Any statement made knowingly and wilfully and with intent to promote interference with the operation and success of these forces, and to promote a corresponding success of our enemies, if false and known to be false by the one who makes it, comes within the terms of this act of Congress. Anything which lowers the morale of our forces, which serves to chill enthusiasm, extinguish confidence, and retard co-operation, may very well cause insubordination, disloyalty, or mutiny."

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Thursday, May 23.—It seems today as though there might be a break in the spell of wonderful weather which we have had during these weeks of May. The days have been rich in sun, which poured its gold over the fields of France so that leagues of flowers in the grass have burnished petals, and the nights have not been less wonderful, these nights of white moonlight and of pale sky in which the stars shine coldly.

After the heat of the day officers and men sit outside billets or tents looking up at the stars or watching how the moon fills the fields or gardens about them with a white glamor below the deep blackness of the trees and the inky shadows on the walls.

"The moon has Pierrot's face," said an officer last night. "It seems to smile down on this poor old world with an ironical sadness."

There were soft little sounds in the enchanted garden of an old French château, with moonlight full across its long façade. A bat skimmed to and fro. Some little beast or bird cheeped in the grass. There was the deep breathing of cows lying beside a stream, and in a thicket close to the house a nightingale trilled its love song with passionate experiments in changing notes and rhythm. Then through the still air came another sound, at first no louder than the deep humming of a bee, but very quickly rising in volume to a great drone. It was a drone with a kind of pulsing beat, as though taking breath, and it was the unmistakable menace of a German engine.

A Nightly Warning.

Every night of late this noise has been heard over the British lines and at the beginning of the week the moonlit night was loud with it, and for a long time engine after engine went through the sky invisible except when, once or twice, a German airplane crossed the light of a star and was seen as though a black bat were flying there.

"London bound," said an officer standing near me. And then because he has a home in London like others of us he said beneath his breath: "Curse them!"

But some of those night birds did not go as far as London that time. Heavy crashes and the noise of gunfire told one they were making trouble in France. It was Sunday night, and a very dreadful and damnable thing was done by those German airmen who took advantage of the moon. They flew over to a place which they had seen by day many times, so that they might know it. It is one of the British hospital camps. All the huts there are marked out with the sign of the Red Cross. The Red Cross flag waves above them for any flying man to see.

The enemy should be perfectly familiar with the look and purpose of this collection of buildings and the lay of the ground in which they are placed, but in order, so they say, to destroy military works their bombing squadrons followed the line of the railway and flung their biggest bombs over this area with wanton carelessness of what might happen to men already wounded, and sheltered from further harm in the only sanctuary which this war can given them—under the Red Cross flag.

It was a tragedy of the most frightful kind and by the work of those airmen, whatever their excuse, the German people stored up for themselves one more cause of hate which, after the war, will close them around like a high wall against which the spirit of

Reports Berlin Drafts Convicts to Fill Up Army; Also Strips Munitions Works and Border Garrisons

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Secretary Lansing today received from a diplomatic representative abroad a telegram crediting the correspondent of a newspaper of a neutral country with the statement that German man power had sustained so severe a blow in the recent offensive on the western front that the German Government has been forced to take drastic measures to obtain men for the army.

How trustworthy is this statement is something that cannot be known, but the information as received was made public by the Secretary tonight for what it was worth.

The neutral correspondent asserts that the German Government has found it necessary to form convict battalions; that many men have been taken from munition factories, in some of which only women, children, and old men are left; that the garrisons along the Dutch border have been stripped of men, and that troops have been sent to the western front from Rumania. The latter troops are described as unfit for fighting on the western front because of the "soft war" in which they have been engaged in the east.

The State Department has also received a report from Finland stating that there are only 20,000 German soldiers in Finland and that these were of a very inferior type, indicating that all the available soldiers which Germany had there previously have been taken away for service on the western front.

INCESSANT RAIDS ON WESTERN FRONT

Both Sides Are Active in Trench Assaults, but No Big Action Develops.

FOE'S GUNS KEEP POUNDING

Artillery Fire Especially Severe on the Lys Salient and Along the Avre.

LONDON, May 23.—Raids by both sides continue to be the only infantry activity along the western front, according to the official reports, which chronicle, however, lively artillery fire at various points.

Raids were made by the Germans in the Aveluy Wood sector (north of Albert) and near Hebuterne. (about midway between Albert and Arras.) A counter-raid by the British in Aveluy Wood destroyed a machine gun post.

The British also carried out successful raids in the area south of Arras.

The French troops on the Lys salient captured a few prisoners by a raid north of Bailleul and east of Locre.

Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight says:

> Hostile raids were repulsed with loss during the night at Aveluy Wood and south of Hebuterne. A German machine gun post in Aveluy Wood was attacked by a party of our troops and the machine gun destroyed.
>
> A few prisoners and a machine gun were captured last night by French troops in a successful raid north of Bailleul and east of Locre.
>
> There is nothing further to report.

The day bulletin of the War Office reads:

> The enemy rushed one of our posts in the Aveluy Wood sector last night. Two of our men are missing.
>
> We carried out successful raids in the neighborhood of the Ayette and Leux St. Marc Wood, inflicting a number of casualties on the enemy and capturing a machine gun.
>
> The enemy also attempted to raid our positions in the vicinity of Riez-du-Vinage. He was driven off by rifle and machine gun fire.
>
> The hostile artillery was active last night in the Ancre Valley, south of Lens, east of Robecq, and east of the Forest of Nieppe.

PARIS, May 23.—There was intermittent shelling south of the River Avre, on the Amiens front, the French War Office announced today.

A German raid on French positions in the Bois Mongival failed. French detachments, patrolling in the Champagne, brought in a number of prisoners and some war material.

EXPECT PERSHING TO LEAD IN BATTLE

CANADIANS GREET OUR MEN

Fraternal Competition Begins on Northern Line—Americans There Exceed Canadians.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, May 23.—A Canadian officer on a hurried visit to Paris told me today that the coming of the Americans to Picardy and Flanders had put new life into everybody, and to Lieut. Gen. Currie's corps it was like bringing over a piece of home to them. Fraternal association and competition have already begun among the North Americans. There are already more United States troops than Canadians in the northern area, but the latter are trained to the razor's edge. They rank among the élite divisions of the allied army, and all the Canadians expect their fellow-Americans to acquire the same excellence with a few weeks' experience.

The Canadians have been holding a spearhead position on the British front, and the only complaint heard from them has been that the Boche is neglecting them. Although their spearhead sticks into his ribs he shows no disposition to smash at it. The Canadians have tried every way to coax or devil him into attacks, but in various collisions around Vimy in the last year the boche has acquired a strong distaste for the Canadian style of fighting. The Americans are already getting into touch with Currie's men and their methods.

The Canadian officer said that while Foch as Generalissimo commanded all the forces it was generally expected that when the German offensive opened General Pershing would be found at the head of the American Army where the fighting was hottest and that gradually all the American units would be assembled under his personal command on the northern front. He thought Pershing and Currie two commanders who are typical of America's best in leadership.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 22, (Associated Press.)—Eight out of ten German batteries which have been active in bombarding the American positions on the Picardy front have been destroyed by the American artillerymen since their entry into this sector. Aerial photographs show that direct hits were obtained in most instances.

In addition to this, the American guns have been tearing up the enemy's rear lines and setting his ammunition dumps and billets on fire, while patrols from the American lines have been harassing the Germans nightly. The American resourcefulness on patrol has caused the foe considerable alarm, according to prisoners, who admit that the Americans have few equals in this style of fighting.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 22.—Questions as to when the enemy will attack or where the blow will fall have given place to another—why doesn't he attack?

According to all available information, from statements of prisoners, reports of airmen, and other sources, the German preparations have been terminated for some days. Picked divisions have been concentrated in the rear at various points ready to be launched by forced night marches against a given sector. "Used up" divisions have been reconstituted, artillery has been placed in position, and stores of all kinds have been accumulated.

The weather is ideal for the enterprise and the moon is at full. Yet the enemy holds back his hand. Why? Is it in the hope of affecting the nerves of the allied soldiers by continued tension? The incessant and successful activities of the French, British, and Americans in trench raids and local actions would give the lie to that delusion, if the boche were foolish enough to entertain it.

Or is the German Command awaiting more perfect "registration" of the newly brought-up batteries? Hardly—there is reason to suppose that the task has been already performed.

But there are three other reasons for the German failure to put their grandiloquently expressed plans into execution. Any one of them might be sufficient. They are disagreement between the militarist chiefs and other leaders in Germany, allied air activity in all its branches, and, not least important, the weakening morale of the German troops at the front.

Not Waiting for Austria.

A fourth suggestion, that the enemy is waiting for Austria to launch a simultaneous drive against Italy, is hardly adequate. Every hour's respite left to the defenders here augments the difficulty of the assailants' task, and the Germans know well that any advantages that the Austrians—whose army is hardly in a fit state to accomplish much unaided—might gain over the Italians would count little in comparison with success or failure on this front. The events of 1918 prove that the Germans realize the truth of the theory that Foch, Clemenceau, and the other most clear-sighted allied leaders have been preaching since the beginning—it is the French front that is of overwhelming importance, and it is only victory or defeat in France that will really be decisive.

As regards political agreements in Germany, the happenings of the last twelve months show that they certainly exist, and that more than once the militarists—headed by the Crown Prince, who, true to Prussian tradition, appears at variance with his father—have had to bring about a virtual coup d'état to maintain their authority.

There is reason to suppose that the Kaiser only consented unwillingly to the great offensive program of March, which the militarists so confidently proclaimed would end the war in three weeks. If this is true, it is reasonable to suppose that he is now opposing a second and more tremendous hazard when circumstances are infinitely less favorable. Behind him are aligned the moderate and liberal Socialist parties, and behind them is the universal cry for peace that goes up from the war-weary German population. Probably once again the forces of reaction will get the upper hand, but the difficulties they have to overcome both impair their authority and interfere with their activities as commanders of armies in the field.

Air Attacks Shake Foe's Morale.

The work of the allied airmen has sufficiently demonstrated its importance as a factor to hamper the German plans. Not only are enemy observation and scouting planes brought down literally by dozens every day, while intervention by protecting battleplanes generaly results in their sharing the same fate, but confusion and destruction are being wrought day and night by our bombardment squadrons upon every hostile depot, junction, or point of concentration of men and material. The testimony of prisoners is unanimous that the German anti-aircraft artillery is inadequate in number, batteries, and skill of gunners. That of the Allies is superb.

Moreover, if there is one thing that the air war has demonstrated, it is that an inexperienced pilot on a new machine does not stand one chance in a hundred against an expert flier on a plane he knows and has tuned up himself. Each German downed shows an increased proportion of novices, and that is why the allied successes are augmenting in steadily growing ratio.

But perhaps even more important than the material damage is the effect of these never-ceasing air attacks on the morale of the German troops. Scarcely one of the letters found recently on prisoners is without an allusion to the "horrors" of allied bomb raids. Phrases like "no sleep again tonight; three officers and sixty men were killed or wounded by air bombs," or "forced to go without food today; convoy destroyed by bombplanes," or "company bombed from cantonments last night; the men are becoming demoralized; will they never leave us in peace?" occur constantly.

Allies Heartened by Air Success.

One has only to visit our own trenches to appreciate instantly the moral effect of the airplanes.

"Nothing gives the men such confidence as to see a number of friendly planes overhead," say the officers; and one Captain told me that his company was roused to such a pitch of enthusiasm by witnessing two French planes bring down in flames two Germans out of three that they volunteered in a body when a few hours later he asked for six men to undertake a particularly difficult and dangerous night patrol.

It is impossible to overemphasize the importance of the moral factor. As a General declared to me six weeks ago: "It is superiority of morale rather than of numbers or material that wins battles."

More than ever is that true in the fourth year of a war like this, when the moral and physical tension of nations and armies is strained to the uttermost.

Something must break soon. It will not be France or her allies.

GERMANS' SPIRITS DEPRESSED.

Much of Their Confidence Gone as They Near New Offensive.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 23, (Associated Press.)—Uncertainty still exists as to when the Germans will renew their offensive and where their blow will fall, but whenever the interrupted battle is reopened the enemy will find disadvantageous changes in the situation as compared with the first stage of the struggle begun on March 21.

For one thing, the German soldiers can hardly possess confidence equal to that which inspired them at the opening of the great drive, now that they have seen the promise of decisive results that were to bring a rapid peace fail of fulfillment.

Many of their best troops have been destroyed without the armies attaining their objectives. This has depressed the remainder, causing them to question whether further sacrifices might not also be useless. A repetition of a powerful surprise attack has been rendered almost impossible, since the complete unification of the French, British, and American troops enables the allied Generalissimo to control the whole front.

The Allies are better prepared than they were before and watchful for whatever may be coming. Thus, although the German masses may be thrown against the alied front in a smashing blow at some point, the unification of command is counted upon to make possible an efficient intervention of forces to prevent any part of the line being overwhelmed. Losses of territory may be expected in the first rush, but that is to be counted as unimportant while the armies continue intact.

General Foch has taken all precautions, so that wherever the blow falls the enemy will find the French, British, Americans, and Belgians ready.

QUIET ON OUR SECTORS.

Germans Fire Only 35 Shells on Toul Trenches in 24 Hours.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23—(Associated Press.)—The last twenty-four hours on all sectors held by American troops were extraordinarily quiet, according to all reports.

The inactivity on the Toul sector was marked, the Germans firing only 35 shells on the American lines along the entire front. No German airplanes were out and a falling barometer curtailed aerial activity.

BRITISH PACIFISTS FAIL.

Labor Organizations Reject Proposal to End Aid in War.

BLACKPOOL, Eng., May 23.—The Congress of the National Union of General Workers, in session here yesterday, rejected by a large majority a resolution declaring that the war was being prolonged for materialistic and capitalistic objects, and that labor should cease its support of the Government.

LONDON, May 23.—At the annual meeting of the Northumberland Miners' Council, which ended yesterday, a proposal which had been put forward by the pacifist section, urging the Government to initiate peace by negotiation was withdrawn. The movers indicated that they considered the present time inopportune to press the measure.

TRACED AND SANK U-BOAT.

Commander of British Destroyer Followed Torpedo's Wake.

LONDON, May 12, (Associated Press.)—The resourceful commander of a British destroyer recently accounted for a German submarine by following up the wake of a torpedo to its apparent point of launching and then dropping depth bombs. A bar to his Distinguished Service Order has been awarded to this officer.

The German torpedo, aimed at the destroyer, passed under it. The British vessel swung around and hurried to a point near where the wake of the torpedo was first seen. Depth charges were dropped and soon the bow of the submarine came out of the water.

The destroyer tried to ram the enemy boat, but the submersible suddenly listed and sank like a stone. Other bombs dropped by the destroyer brought up oil.

OSTEND BADLY BLOCKED

Canal to Bruges So Shallow No Vessels of Any Size Are Able to Use It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—Continued observation over Zeebrugge and Ostend, so THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learned today from a high Admiralty official, has confirmed the high hopes entertained after the two raids. Fine weather has given the British aviators admirable opportunities for photographing the two ports, and they have been able to watch every development of the situation.

The best proof of the efficiency with which the Vindictive and her consorts succeeded in bottling up the Germans is the fact that enemy craft observed at Zeebrugge three weeks ago are still there. They are "immobilized," in technical phrase, which means that they are lying at their berths in the docks off the canal, exposed to British air attacks, and that the Huns are quite powerless to get them out. They are trying hard enough.

When the Iphigenia and Intrepid forced themselves into the canal they sank between the two sea-walls, carrying the canal out into the basin of the harbor. The Germans have now been observed feverishly hacking away at one of these sea-walls.

Evidently they have found it impossible to clear away the sunken cruisers and their cargoes of concrete, and prefer to demolish part of the solid permanent work and make a new channel. Meanwhile the harbor itself shows every sign of rapidly silting up.

Another gratifying feature of the situation is the discovery that the Bruges-Ostend Canal is so shallow that no enemy craft of any size can use it, so that, though the Vindictive has not entirely blocked Ostend Harbor, no German vessel can reach it from the interior waterways.

The Admiralty has just learned of another matter to encourage it. The U-boat crews, it hears, call the Irish Sea the "Witch's Cauldron," and it takes that as an admission of the miserable life the submarines lead with the Anglo-American sea and air patrols after them.

AIR RAID ON ZEEBRUGGE.

British Bombs Hit Destroyers, Mole, and Seaplane Base.

LONDON, May 23.—During the period from May 20 to May 22 air force contingents of the British Navy carried out bombing operations against the Zeebrugge Mole, the seaplane base and shipping in the vicinity, according to an Admiralty statement issued today. The enemy airdrome at St. Denis-Westrem and enemy establishments at Thourout were bombed.

Two direct hits on enemy torpedo boat destroyers have been reported, according to the statement, and, according to the result of a photographic reconnoissance, one destroyer was sunk. Three enemy airplanes were driven down out of control. All the British machines returned.

Dutch Minister Here Resigns.

THE HAGUE, May 23.—It is officially announced that the resignation of Dr. August Philips, Minister to the United States, has been accepted.

An Amsterdam dispatch of May 22 stated that Dr. Philips had requested that he be relieved of his post at Washington. It was said the Minister's request was made on medical advice.

pulse of frequent attacks by the French on the west bank of the Avre. The bulletin reads:

In the Kemmel region the increased artillery activity continues. On the other battlefronts fighting activity was not revived yesterday until evening, and then only on some sectors.

During the night there was lively activity on the part of the French on the western bank of the Avre. Frequent attempts by the enemy to advance were repulsed, and prisoners were taken during our reconnoitring operations.

On the Lys battlefield three American airplanes, among others, were brought down yesterday.

While there have been various reports of American airmen participating with their allies in operations on the western front, this is the first admission from a German source of any activity by our aviators as far north as the Lys sector.

NO MOVE TO END AIR RAIDS.

Military Authorities Would Examine Any Such Proposal, Hertling Says.

BERLIN, May 23, (via Amsterdam.)—Replying to a question as to whether air raids on towns could not be stopped by an agreement, Chancellor von Hertling said today that no definite proposals had come from the enemy.

Should this happen, he said, the military authorities would be first charged with an examination of the proposals.

PRAISE FOR OUR SOLDIERS.

Ambassador Sharp Tells of French Appreciation.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The exploits of American aviators and the part taken by American soldiers in trench skirmishes have gained for them an enviable reputation for courage and resourcefulness, Ambassador Sharp reported to the State Department today in a dispatch from Paris.

He said that numerous references appeared in the French press attesting the fraternal relations between the French and English troops and the American soldiers who had taken up positions with them.

PHILIP GIBBS'S STORY OF RAID ON HOSPITAL

Huts Filled with Wounded.

In many of those hospital huts, in nearly all of them, were badly wounded men—men with open wounds filtered by running water, men with broken limbs suspended in slings and pulleys, men so hurt that any touch or jar makes them quiver with pain.

That night the hospital orderlies who had been tending them all day were mostly in their own sleeping places. Only the night nurses and attendants were in the wards, moving quietly about, keeping watchful eyes on the patients, listening to that sound of breathing which tells them so much about the state of each sufferer, and bending over a bed here or there to shift a man's pillow or to say a word of comfort to one who could not sleep. Then suddenly there was the noise of those German engines, as I heard them once in a hospital, like those before the crashes which followed and broke the windows.

The German flying men dropped a very great number of bombs, and each one burst in the midst of these huts. A third of the bombs were of the largest size, which made enormous explosions and left great craters in the earth. Others were smaller shrapnel bombs, which swept the wards with bullets. They did murder on a big scale.

They killed many men who had escaped from death on the battlefield and from these beds looked forward to life again. They killed many hospital orderlies who had devoted themselves to the service of their fellow-men, among whom, after each battle, there are German soldiers getting the same treatment as the British and the same kindness. They killed and maimed women whose uniforms should make them sacred in this war. The total of killed and wounded runs into some hundreds.

I am told, and I do not need to be told because I have seen the courage of these women in air raids, that the nurses were heroic and beautiful in their devotion to the wounded. Near by were bombproof shelters, but not one of them left her post to take cover. Throughout the raid, which lasted in two phases for two hours, they moved up and down the wards encouraging the patients by their words, attending to the gravest cases, lingering by the bedside of men whose nerves were agitated by this tumult and menace of death, and not showing any faintness of heart, however great their secret terror of this dreadful thing above them. There were brave hearts there in those hospitals, but no courage can cure the cruelty of this scene of blood and agony which is a part of the devilish drama of war.

Airplane Crew Captured.

One German airplane was brought down with its crew alive—three of them. Two had been wounded by our anti-aircraft fire. The Captain, who had been hit in the arm, spoke perfect English and claimed to have been in the German diplomatic service before the war. When he was asked why he bombed hospitals he disclaimed all knowledge of having done so, and with a shrug of the shoulders said:

"If you will insist on putting your hospitals near railways you will get them bombed."

He had followed the railway, flying low and machine-gunning as he flew before dropping his bombs for destruction on a big scale.

This German officer's defense can hardly be disproved. In all night raidings, the British as well as the enemy's, there can be no certainty of hitting the right target. But at least the British flying men take some care to avoid hospitals of which they know the whereabouts, and these Germans do not seem to have taken any care whatever. A night raid on hospitals is one of those tragedies with which all the history of four years is blackened.

REPORT HUNDREDS KILLED OR WOUNDED

Twice the Raiding Squadrons Sweep Over the Hospital Buildings, Spreading Death.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23, (Associated Press.)—Some hundreds of the personnel and patients of British hospitals behind the battlelines have been killed and wounded by a heavy attack by German airmen on the hospitals with bombs.

Among those on the casualty list are several sisters who, with other women nurses, stood bravely by their posts throughout a terrific deluge of explosives.

One sister was killed outright, while administering to the soldiers' wants, and another was so seriously hurt that she died soon afterward. Still another was dying today. Several more sisters were among the wounded.

Many other workers were wounded, including several medical officers.

In the neighborhood is one large American hospital and another in which there are American workers, but neither of these appears to have suffered. Last Summer several American doctors and nurses were killed and wounded when these same hospitals were raided by the Germans.

This latest horror was perpetrated Sunday night, apparently by four squadrons of German planes, which appear to have comprised more than a score of machines.

A great number of bombs were dropped, about 80 per cent. of them huge affairs which dug vast craters in the hospital grounds and the rest high-explosive shrapnel which sent their death-dealing bullets tearing in every direction through the crowded hospital tents and buildings.

The raid was divided into two phases, the first of which began soon after 10 o'clock and lasted until 11. Not satisfied with this, the enemy returned at 11:40 o'clock and heavily bombed hospitals filled with wounded men.

In one building, which was damaged most seriously, all the patients were suffering from compound fractures that made it necessary that their limbs should be strapped in the air.

Not a woman deserted her ward, but throughout the terrible bombing each one kept going her rounds and quieting the unfortunate men, who might easily have done themselves lasting harm by springing from their beds.

A three-seated airplane was brought down by gunfire while flying at a low altitude, and the occupants were made prisoners. The German Captain and the pilot sustained comparatively light shrapnel wounds, while the observer was not hurt.

When questioned why he had directed his men against hospitals, the Captain explained in a matter-of-fact way that he did not see the Red Cross signs. He said that he was seeking military objectives and had no desire to molest hospitals.

With a shrug of his shoulders, the Captain added that if the British chose to build their hospitals near railways, they must expect to get them bombed.

The Captain spoke excellent English. When asked where he had learned it, he replied that he was in the diplomatic service before the war.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Red Cross officials today stated that Unit No. 12, under the command of Major Desley, which includes about 250 Chicago doctors and nurses, is stationed with the British Army in the sector that was bombed by the Germans.

BERLIN, May 23, (via London.)—The official report from General Headquarters today contains the following:

"The enemy's aerial attacks against Belgian territory, which have increased in frequency recently, have inflicted heavy damages and losses on the civilian population, but no military damage has been caused.

"Bombs have been dropped successfully on large enemy munition depots northwest of Abbéville, which were destroyed.

"Bombs were also dropped on Paris."

BRITISH AIR RAIDERS BOMB GERMAN STATIONS

Hit Railway Centres in Lorraine and Belgium, Drop Missiles on Rhine Factory.

LONDON, May 23.—Railway stations in German Lorraine, a chloride factory at Mannheim, on the Rhine, and the railway near Liège, were bombed Tuesday night and Wednesday by British aviators. Three fires were caused at Mannheim and large conflagrations near Liège.

The official statement, telling of aerial operations, says:

Reconnaissances and bombing by our airplanes continued uninterruptedly Tuesday. Some 1,200 bombs were dropped on various targets, including four of the enemy's large airdromes near Ghent and Tournai and billets in the neighborhood of Armentières, Bapaume, and Bray.

A good deal of fighting again took place around our bombing machines. Sixteen German airplanes were destroyed and two driven down out of control. Two observation balloons also were destroyed. Three of our airplanes are missing.

During the night both our and the enemy's bombing airplanes were active. Over twelve tons of bombs were dropped on airdromes used by the enemy's night-flying machines and on billets at Bray and Bapaume. All our machines returned. Two German machines were brought down by gunfire behind our lines.

Two tons of bombs were dropped on a chloride factory at Mannheim, causing three large fires, and another two tons on railway stations at Thionville and Karthaus. One of our machines failed to return.

At dawn Wednesday two formations set out on a long distance raid to bombard the important railway triangle at Liège. All the machines reached their objectives and dropped twenty-two heavy bombs. Those dropped by the first formation caused three very large fires which were burning fiercely three quarters of an hour later when the second formation flew over Liège.

Other machines dropped twelve heavy bombs on the railway stations at Metz. All the machines returned.

A statement on aerial operations, issued tonight, says:

Our airplanes continued on Wednesday their artillery work, photography, and bombing. Airdromes used by the enemy's night-flying machines were reattacked, eighteen tons of bombs being dropped on these and on hostile billets.

Thirteen German machines were brought down in fighting. Two were brought down out of control and another by gunfire. Three British airplanes are missing.

Four tons of bombs were dropped on the very important electric power station at Kreusewald, east of Saarbrucken. One bomb struck the boilerhouse and another caused a large cloud of steam to arise from one building. All the British machines returned.

The Metz-Sablon Railway Station was heavily bombed at 11 o'clock in the morning of Thursday. Bombs were seen to burst in the engine sheds and on the railway. The hostile gunfire was considerable, but all the machines returned safely.

After dark eleven tons of bombs were dropped on hostile airdromes, docks at Bruges and billets in the Somme area. Several direct hits were made upon a train, causing it to burst into flames.

Mannheim was again attacked. Twenty-four heavy bombs were dropped on a chlorine factory there causing two large fires. The blackened girders of buildings gutted by the fires, caused by the bombing on the preceding night, were clearly visible in the moonlight.

Commenting on the series of raids carried out by British airmen in the last week, The Daily Mail says that they show that the air service is best in cultivating the offensive spirit. It continues:

"As the British air forces develop we shall be able to reach every city of Western and Central Germany and compel the enemy to weaken his front greatly by detaching large air forces for defense at home. The German staff is well aware of this risk, which will increase greatly when the American air forces have arrived in strength later this year.

"Hence, the enemy is certain to attempt to paralyze us by negotiations. He could accomplish no more brilliant stroke than to get us to abandon raids for a promise that he would do the same, which promise would be repudiated at the first convenient moment. But the fast-growing strength of the Allies in the air will be used with increasing vigor and will play a very large part in bringing the war home to the German nation."

French and Italians Very Busy.

PARIS, May 23.—Tonight's report of the War Office contains the following on aerial operations:

On May 20 an enemy machine was brought down in an aerial engagement. It is confirmed that eight German machines were destroyed by our pilots, one on the 15th, another on the 16th, and six on the 19th, in addition to two machines brought down by our special guns on the 20th and 21st.

On May 20 and the night following our bombing escadrilles dropped 17,000 kilos of projectiles in the region of St. Quentin, Noyon, and Tergnier; on the stations at Peronne, Rosières, and Nesle, and on the aviation ground at Villeselve. Two big fires, caused by explosions, broke out at St. Quentin and Nesle.

On May 21 and the night of May 21-22 our airplanes dropped 30,000 kilos in the same regions, causing new fires. Cantonments and stations in the region of Ville-au-Bois, Hirson, Le Cateau, and Aul Noye received in the same period 11,000 kilos of explosives. Italian machines took part in these expeditions.

FOE'S AIRMEN BUSY IN PICARDY

Bombing Villages and Roads Behind Our Lines—Do Little Military Damage.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23, (Associated Press.)—The marked increase in German aerial activity along the Picardy front of late has raised the question whether it may not be a prelude to new action by the enemy infantry. Whether or not this be the case, the American troops on the line are becoming eager for a chance to get at the foe.

The German aircraft have been especially active since the advent of the new moon. Villages and roads behind the American lines in Picardy have been bombed, and some of the villages visited by the hostile aviators present pitiful scenes of destruction. The military damage done has been negligible, but some civilians have been killed, most of them women and children.

The American soldiers and nurses in touch with the French population in the areas that have received visitations are offering aid and comfort to the distressed. That some American hospitals have not been damaged is no fault of the enemy, but is due to good fortune, as the Germans are apparently dropping their bombs without consideration of military objectives.

The area under bombardment from the air is that between the American front and Paris, and every night the air over this district is humming with enemy motors, while American and French anti-aircraft guns keep up an almost continuous barrage.

There was great aerial activity northwest of Toul today. American aviators participated in more than half a dozen combats, but up to an early hour tonight they had not been able to bring down an enemy machine.

One American aviator engaged three different machines, one after the other, within twenty minutes.

Two other American pilots fought half an hour with two German machines at an altitude of 5,500 meters, but failed to get telling shots home.

Americans in Paris Chagrined by Accounts of Aviation Investigation in This Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 23.—Detailed reports that have just arrived in a batch of New York papers, concerning the aviation investigation by the United States Senate and Department of Justice make unpleasant reading to Americans in France. They do not refrain from comparing this Washington news with the recent records of French and British aviators. The latter have destroyed a thousand German planes in two months. The latest report shows that the French and British airmen destroyed 274 enemy planes in one week. There is no reference to Americans in this report.

The comparison with the Washington Senate proceedings is particularly keen this morning because of Paris' realization of the success of French aerial protection of the city. Two nights in succession enemy fliers have made vigorous efforts to bombard Paris, coming twice each night, yet none succeeded in reaching the capital until the fourth attempt, when a few bombs were dropped. From midnight until 3 o'clock in the morning the Paris anti-aircraft guns kept up a continuous shellfire.

French censors approve an article in the Echo de Paris intimating that the French may soon follow England's example in bombing German open towns from airplanes. It explains such a course on the ground that destruction of German industrial plants justifies the risk of killing noncombatants. This hint is possibly to prepare French opinion.

PARIS, May 23.—German aviators made another attack on Paris last night, and this time one of them succeeded in reaching the city. Bombs were dropped at various places, an official statement reports.

The explosion of one of them killed a woman and injured a dozen people. A shell from a 75-millimeter defense gun fell through a roof and landed beside a cradle in which there was a sleeping infant. The missile failed to explode, and the baby was not harmed.

In addition to the aerial attack on Paris, another raid was carried out last night. It seems to have been directed against the railroad tracks north and northeast of Paris. The raiders dropped a large number of bombs, but did not cause any serious damage.

Several bodies of enemy aircraft successively made for Paris. Our lookout posts opened a very violent curtain of fire. Our airplanes took the air.

A certain number of bombs were thrown on Paris and in the Paris district. The "All clear" signal was given at 3:30 o'clock.

The German airplanes taking part in the raid numbered about thirty. They were met by a powerful barrage fire from our artillery posts acting in conjunction with our defense squadrons, fifty-four of our machines taking the air. Only one enemy machine reached the capital, where it threw down some bombs. One death and twelve injured persons have been reported.

A number of bombs were thrown on the suburbs, causing some victims.

The two raids taken together kept Paris awake virtually all night. The first alarm was sounded at 11:40 P. M., and it sent the population to their underground places of refuge, whence they were released by the "all clear" signal forty minutes later with the comfortable feeling that the ordeal for the night was over. Barely an hour later, however, the wailing of the sirens again sent the populace underground, and a curtain of fire of such intensity as the city had never before experienced was kept up without pause until nearly 4 A. M.

FOUGHT EVERY GOTHA IN RAID ON LONDON

British Elated by Germans' High Rate of Loss and by Results of Cologne Attack.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—British airmen at present have their heads very much up. This applies equally to those on duty in France and to those on home defense.

In regard to the latter, details of last Sunday's raid on London are particularly encouraging. Not one enemy machine that succeeded in crossing the coast managed to escape being engaged by British airmen, and in addition to the five Gothas brought down on land and the two destroyed at sea other raiding machines suffered damage serious enough to put them out of commission for some time.

The percentage of loss and damage suffered by the Germans is gratifyingly high, being placed by some calculations at a point over 33 per cent.

Comparisons made by experts between the Germans' Whitsuntide raid on London and the British daylight raid on Cologne, are distinctly to the advantage of the British. There are certain characteristics of the raid on Cologne which THE NEW YORK TIMES is requested not to make public yet, which go far to justify the use of the much abused term "supremacy in the air."

In the view of experts, supremacy in the air should only be really claimed when the stage is reached where it becomes practically impossible for an enemy airplane to show itself. It is hoped that such a stage will be attainable when America's actual contribution to the allied air forces becomes commensurate with its program.

Meanwhile the British royal air force is well satisfied to have established the present measure of relative superiority. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that while examination of the Gotha engines elicits a meed of praise, there are other points in the construction of the German planes which suggest to experts here that the enemy's supply of first-class material is not inexhaustible.

AMSTERDAM, May 23. — Sunday night's air raid on London was the largest yet executed, according to a German semi-official statement, as regards the number of airplanes engaged. It was observed, says the statement, that the bombs that were dropped had good results in the city between the Admiralty Building and the West India docks.

ZEPPELINS AGAIN OUT.

Reported Over North Sea—War Traffic There Livelier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, May 23.—The Ribe Stiften-Tidende reports that war traffic in the North Sea lately is livelier. Zeppelins, long absent, have again been observed. Last night two were seen going north and northwest from Malmoe, and several flying machines were heard.

In the last ten days strong cannonading has shaken houses in Ribe, but very few warships have been observed.

DREW'S NEPHEW SHOT DOWN

But Aviator May Be Only Wounded and a Prisoner.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—A cablegram to The Chicago Daily News from Paul Ayres Rockwell, correspondent, with the American Army in France, says:

"Corporal R. Sidney Drew of New York, who enlisted in the French Aviation Corps in 1917, and recently went to the front to fly a chassing airplane, has been shot down in an aerial combat. Drew's machine fell after a battle fought well inside the German lines. His comrades hope that he was only wounded and is a prisoner, as his airplane was seen to right itself in the air and appeared to land normally. Drew is a nephew of John Drew, the actor."

4 U-BOATS BETRAYED BY GERMAN CAPTAIN

CAUGHT FIRST BY SURPRISE

Took Commander Aboard British Boat, and, Fearing Attack, He Told Location of Others.

Some months ago Premier Lloyd George announced in the course of a speech that five German submarines had been sunk in a single day. The first detailed account of this episode, which laid the fate of four of the German U-boats to the cowardice of the Captain of the other, was given yesterday by Louis Tracy, the novelist, who is now attached to the British War Mission in this country. Mr. Tracy was speaking at the American Artists' Exhibit at the Anderson Galleries in aid of the American, British, French, Belgian Permanent Blind War Relief Fund.

"A British submarine," he said, "was lying off the coast of Ireland and had come to the surface. As she lay quietly with her officers and crew, assembled on the deck for relaxation, there suddenly appeared, not more than forty feet away, the periscope of a German U-boat, which apparently had been oblivious of the presence of the British submarine. The British craft immediately fired and disabled the U-boat, so that the British were able to capture her with her commanding officer and men. The men were kept on the German boat, but the commander was taken aboard the British submarine, where he was accorded a chaffing, but not altogether unpleasant reception. The British commander handed him some cigarettes and he was taken below and given a glass of wine. Despite these hospitalities, he seemed very much ill at ease and kept taking out his watch.

Told Location of Other U-Boats.

"Finally he informed the British commander that there were four other German U-boats in the vicinity. He knew that if one of these should first observe the British submarine that he, together with the British sailors, would be sent to the bottom. The British commander on securing this information immediately communicated with his home station by wireless, and British destroyers were rushed in all directions toward the spots where the German commander indicated the German U-boats were apt to be. As a result every one of the four remaining U-boats were destroyed during the afternoon, marking the largest single bag of German submarines during the war."

Among other speakers at the meeting were Eleanor Gates, who declared that only by the methods of permanent relief the fund extended could many thousands of American soldiers and the soldiers of our allies be prevented from earning such a livelihood as might be gained from selling lead pencils, and Top Serg. Sam Barre, a Pershing veteran, who has just returned from France and who also served in Mexico and in the Spanish-American War.

There will be speakers every afternoon and evening until the exhibit, which has been extended through next week, ends on Saturday night, June 1.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

The British situation between the front about Mont Kemmel and La Bassée has certain elements which correspond closely to their position at Cambrai after the offensive last Fall. The scale of the thing is, of course, much larger now than it was at that time, but the military positions are generally very similar.

In General Byng's attack at Cambrai he thrust forward a wedge directly at Cambrai itself, extending his positions both north and south at the same time until he crossed the St. Quentin Canal on the south and had taken Bourlon Wood on the north. Here the German lines held so that the close of the battle saw the German lines all but punctured by this wedge, the apex of which was near Cambrai.

On the present front the British line gave way south of Arras toward Amiens, while to the north the Armentières defense almost snapped. The result was that as the Arras positions held fast, there was left projecting into the German lines a blunt salient, one flank of which extends from St. Venant to La Bassée and the other from La Bassée to Bucquoy.

This salient is the key to the situation. As long as it remains intact, the march to Amiens cannot be pushed to conclusion. It is not improbable that the next German effort will be made there, the fighting at Amiens taking on for the time being at least a subsidiary character. In reality, however, any attempt to break through the Arras defense will be an integral part of the battle of Picardy, since it will open up a wider front for succeeding operations.

The method of attack on such a position then can be seen by following the history of preceding German attacks under similar conditions. When the Germans finally reacted at Cambrai they made their attacks at three points. Simultaneously they drove forward from the north, the east and the south. The plan was, of course, to hold the British in the centre and then crush in the sides, pinching off the troops which held the body of the salient. If either side gave way the damage was done as far as the elimination of the awkward position was concerned. If both sides should give way the British forces were taken. As we know, the north and the eastern sides held fast, and the southern yielded to the pressure. There was, then, nothing for the British to do but rectify their line and give up much of the ground which they had taken.

In the attack now pending, if the Germans adopt the same general policy, they will drive from before Arras, from Bucquoy, and along La Bassée Canal, which now stands before the British lines on the southern side of the wedge.

It is possible, however, that in this fight the Arras front would be left alone because of its known strength. The Germans have tested this once and found it solid. They used up seven divisions of troops to ascertain this, but it was proved to them beyond question. It is doubtful if they will care to repeat the experiment.

There remain the two fronts of Bucquoy and the canal. In both cases, they are certain to find the going hard. The British still hold behind Bucquoy a wealth of high ground that gives them good observation and excellent artillery positions. The ground in fact continues high for some distance behind their lines.

Beyond the canal the situation is somewhat different. The plain of French Flanders extends southward for three miles beyond the present battle lines, being limited by the important railroad line from Hazebrouck to La Bassee. This line parallels the salient almost exactly, curve for curve, and skirts the foothills of the heights which extend northwestward from Arras. These heights are really the key to the situation, since the Heights of Notre Dame de Lorette and Vimy Ridge itself are merely extensions of the main ridge.

The British, therefore, have every advantage of position. The terrain favors them in every way. They can retire a little before the German offensive with the knowledge that behind them still is ground that will give them advantageous positions. At the same time the retirement will have to be limited in order that disaster may not threaten. Once the Germans got behind the line of heights, the Arras defenses would be flanked and rendered untenable. This would affect the fighting all the way to the line near Montdidier, as the positions along the Ancre, which the British have clung to so tenaciously, would be turned.

There have been numerous indications from time to time that the Germans were about to begin operations, but each time the fighting has come to a standstill without the infantry attack developing. It is at present largely a feeling out process, each testing out the other's strength at various points.

Walter Stabler, Chairman of House-to-House Canvass Committee, Reports Ready Response.

New York City is within less than $9,000,000 of its quota, $25,000,000, of the Second National Red Cross War Fund of $100,000,000. The official announcement made last night showed that at noon yesterday the city had contributed a grand total of $16,294,536, which shows an average for the first three days of the drive of $5,431,512 for each day of the campaign. With three working days still to go, this means that New York City, if this average is maintained, will go "over the top" with something like $5,000,000 in excess of its allotted quota. The total announced yesterday, it was pointed out, included only partial returns from Brooklyn, Queens, Richmond, and the Bronx.

The Carnegie Corporation led all contributions yesterday with a donation of $1,000,000, and in presenting this munificent gift. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the foundation, voiced the deep regret of the venerable founder of the organization at his inability to be present and deliver in person the message to the Red Cross. Other large gifts yesterday included four of $250,000 from the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Anaconda Copper Company, the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company. Gifts of $100,000 were made by Mrs. Edward H. Harriman, the Consolidated Gas Company, the American Locomotive Company, and the Inspiration Copper Company.

Carnegie Donation a Surprise.

The gift of $1,000,000 by the Carnegie Corporation was announced at the Chamber of Commerce noon meeting, at which the daily reports from the various teams, committees, and from individuals were announced. William C. Breed presided, and the announcement of the subscription by President Pritchett came as a complete surprise to everybody present except Mr. Breed who had, as it turned out, been told in advance that the corporation was going to do something very big.

The roll call of the teams, showing a total collected by them, since the beginning of the drive of $8,478,116, had just been completed when Mr. Breed addressed himself to Dr. Pritchett.

"I wonder if Dr. Pritchett has anything to say to us," Mr. Breed remarked, as he turned to the head of the foundation.

Dr. Pritchett responded by saying that he had no message from the Carnegie Foundation, but that he might be able to say a word or two for the Carnegie Corporation, which, he added, was an entirely different institution.

"This corporation," Mr. Prichett continued, "is by its charter compelled to devote the income of its large endowment to the increase and diffusion of knowledge and understanding among the people of the United States. Its trustees are today of the conviction that there is no knowledge and understanding among the people of the United States of such supreme importance as the knowledge and understanding of what this war means, and what the victory of the Allies means to liberty and civilization.

Red Cross Second Line of Defense.

"To promote that understanding means to promote all other understanding of right-minded and right-thinking people. We have one other conviction—that is, that, of the forces which are to bring victory, the Red Cross stands for mercy and sympathy and help to those who suffer; and it stands also as the second line of defense to succor the wounded and exhausted. And now, with these two conclusions, we feel ourselves honored to offer to the second Red Cross War Fund $1,000,000.

"I should like to say one word of a personal sort. Mr. Carnegie is in his eighty-third year, but he would have liked to come here and bring you this message himself. His health does not permit him to do it, but he feels grateful to have founded an institution that can do it, and he asks that you accept his unbounded faith and confidence in the outcome of this war which the Allies are waging for the civilization of the world."

On motion of Cleveland H. Dodge, the thanks of the entire committee and of the teams were sent to Mr. Carnegie through Mr. Pritchett.

Of equal interest was the announcement of another gift because of the identity of the donor. This came when Morgan J. O'Brien made his report as Chairman of Team 16. Judge O'Brien said he had a check for $1,500 from Cardinal Farley, and when the applause that followed subsided Judge O'Brien read the following letter from the Cardinal:

Cardinal Farley Sends Check.

Dear Judge O'Brien: That wonderful demonstration on Saturday last, which the President inaugurated in such an excellent and gracious manner, forecasted the success of the Second War Fund for the Red Cross. I have appealed to the clergy and Catholic people in New York to assist and I am sure my appeal will result in collections next Sunday.

I inclose herewith my check for as much as I can give. You are responsible for the fact that it is not a larger amount, having persuaded me to subscribe to other charities. However, it is all for the same cause. We must win, no matter how it hurts. May God bless all the good men and women engaged with you in this work.

JOHN CARDINAL FARLEY.

Another demonstration followed when Daniel Guggenheim of Committee 10 reported contributions from the great copper companies amounting to $425,000.

Darwin P. Kingsley, Chairman of Committee 10, after reporting a $100,000 gift from the Consolidated Gas Company, told how a gift of $1 was directly responsible for another one of $5,000.

"We have one contribution to announce," he said, "and that is a gift of $1 from a wealthy lady on the west side who gives it in memory of a half hour's talk with Gilbert Colgate. Mr. Colgate desires to keep that particular dollar as a souvenir, but in its place he himself has subscribed $5,000."

There was more cheering when Lewis E. Pierson told the story of the "keg of nails." The particular keg of nails, he added, was full to the top with nails.

"The nails," he explained, "are intended for the Kaiser's coffin and with this purpose in view they were auctioned off by the committee and I take pleasure in announcing that the sale averaged $1 per nail."

$1,000 for Bunch of Bananas.

This same committee also auctioned off a bunch of bananas, a box of cherries, a box of oranges, and another of grapefruit. The bananas brought $1,000, the grapefruit $300, and the oranges $250. "The cherries," Mr. Pierson continued, "were purchased by an Italian, who to my personal knowledge is a day laborer with a very small reserve fund, yet this patriotic Italian paid $100 for that box of cherries and seemed to think that he had a bargain."

This same committee announced a personal gift of $50,000 from F. W. Woolworth and another of $75,000 from the Woolworth Corporation.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Chairman of Committee 24, reported that his team was still "carrying on."

"I am obliged to report," said Mr. Rockefeller, "that our team is running far ahead of the standard which it set for itself on Monday. We are no longer working in high, but in first speed. This so as not to discourage our close competitor, Mr. Fox's team. Therefore we beg to report $85,358."

Charles E. Coffin, Chairman of the Industrial Division, declared that the employes of 503 corporations had been canvassed up to reporting time yesterday, and of those corporations 404 had turned in a 100 per cent. report.

"The amounts given," he added, "are not large, but they have been given cheerfully and gladly from a profound sense of patriotism. These corporations have 24,582 employes, and the sum subscribed is $266,058."

Finds People Enthusiastic.

Walter Stabler, Chairman of the House-to-House Committee, stated that the most gratifying feature of the work of this committee was the enthusiasm of people of all classes to do their "bit" for the Red Cross. Working girls, he said, beg permission to work during their lunch hour, while men as well as women in all walks of life vie with one another in helping the canvassers. The committee reported a total collected of $127,539.

When Colonel William B. Thompson, Chairman of the Corporations Division, was called on, he asked permission to correct his statement made the day previous.

"It was said that the railroads are not contributing to the Red Cross fund," Mr. Thompson said. "That is a mistake. Many of the railroads are now giving liberally. Our work is being made easy for us by the efforts of the teams which are reporting here today. As a result, we are able to turn in $3,556,881 as the day's total. This includes the $1,000,000 from the Carnegie Corporation. Our net total, including today, is $6,478,116."

Teams Report $1,335,948.

50,000 in House Canvass.

The number of house-to-house workers is now more than 50,000, and the supply of official badges has become exhausted. Authorized solicitors working without badges carry official documents signed by Mr. Stabler, Chairman of the House-to-House Committee, which appealed for 25,000 workers and got twice that number. Yesterday the committee inaugurated the use of official Red Cross collection boxes, and up to 6 o'clock last night more than 40,000 of these had been delivered to the canvassers. They are covering every nook and corner of the city, and the motto is "Let no one escape."

Members of the Stock Exchange took enough time off from their work yesterday to bid actively for an orchid of rare coloring containing six flowers, which was offered by Clarence E. Chapman for the benefit of the Red Cross. The price was run up rapidly from $25, and finally was knocked down to S. C. Mabon for $682. Mr. Mabon returned the flower to do further service for the Red Cross fund. The orchid was raised in Mr. Chapman's greenhouses at his country place at Oakland, N. J.

Hundreds kicked and punched a dummy of the Kaiser at a noon-day meeting at the Liberty Tower yesterday. For the privilege of mauling the figure coins were tossed into a big American flag which was spread on Liberty Street, just outside the Chamber of Commerce Building. T. B. Duyckinck presided, and speeches were made by Chaplain Vincent O'Toole and Ensign Swinnerton of the United States Navy. Music was furnished by the Interborough Band.

City Departments Win Emblems.

Robert G. Newbegin, Chairman of the Conference Committee of City Employes, which is in charge of the soliciting of city and county employes for the Red Cross War Fund, announced yesterday that thus far sixteen city departments had made complete returns. In all of these every employe had subscribed. Thus, each of the sixteen departments is entitled to display the 100 per cent. victory emblem of the Red Cross. Mr. Newbegin and his associates are working now to the end that every city and county department in New York City shall make a 100 per cent. return.

Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, has been named by the Governor as Chairman of a committee organized by the local officers of State Departments to co-operate with other organizations to raise money for the Red Cross. Yesterday the committee organized and subcommittees were named to carry on the work at high speed. Among the members of these committees are officials connected with the offices of the Attorney General, the State Controller, the Excise Department, and the State Industrial Commission.

An east side girl who has two brothers under General Pershing in France sent a dollar, and with it this note:

"I have two brothers over there fighting for America, and if I had more money I would send it."

Patsy Corizzo, a shoeblack at Far Rockaway, gave his entire receipts for last Wednesday to the Red Cross fund. He averages $3 a day, but when he announced that he was "shining for the Red Cross" his business took a big jump and his receipts for Wednesday were $9.37.

Lambs' Day at Public Library.

Today will be Lambs' Day at the American Red Cross booth of the State Woman's War Relief in front of the Public Library. Many prominent Lambs, led by Edwin Mordaunt, will go to the booth to help in the appeal for subscriptions from the crowd. The entertainments will begin at noon, and will last till 6 o'clock. Harrison Brockbank, Mme. Claybourgh, and Frederick Gunster will sing; Miss Mabel Adams will play the violin. The Police Glee Club will appear at 1:30. Colonel Preston, Mrs. Edith Ellis Furness, Howard Kyle, Lieutenant Skeyhill, Channing Pollock, and Elsie Ferguson will speak. Miss Grace George will be at the booth through the afternoon to take Red Cross subscriptions.

There were placed on exhibition yesterday in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel twenty paintings and works of art that are to be auctioned off at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday night for the benefit of the Second War Fund of the American Red Cross. Joseph P. Day, the Chairman of the Special Features Committee of the New York Red Cross organization, will be the auctioneer. The paintings and works of art are the donation of the galleries which own them, and no matter what sum they may bring under the hammer the entire amount will be contributed toward the drive in Greater New York. Many of the paintings are valued in the thousands, and connoisseurs have pronounced them worthy of high praise.

The more valuable paintings include: "Views on Grand Canal" and "St. Mark's Square," by Guardi, contributed by the Kleinberger Gallery; "Portrait of Sir Thomas Taysden," by Michael Doll, contributed by Reinhardt Galleries; "Changing Maples," by J. Francis Murphy, contributed by Knoedler & Co.; "Rocks of Cap Martin," by Louis Granner, contributed by Louis Ralston, and a painting by Martin Rico from the Judge Henry Hilton Collection.

The galleries donating paintings and works of art, supplementary to those already mentioned, are: De Mott Galleries, Reinhardt & Son, Bourgeois Galleries, French & Co., Seligman, Rey & Co., MacBeth Galleries, Kraushaar Galleries, Mr. Rasko, who gives fifty etchings of President Wilson as one parcel for auction; Kelekian Galleries, Ehrich's Galleries, Gimpel & Wildenstein, Canesa Galleries, Lewis & Simmons, Ralston Galleries, and Henry Symons.

The Program for Today.

8:30 P. M.—677 Fifth Avenue, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt; exhibition of posters and musical entertainment; admission free.

Governor Walter E. Edge of New Jersey and Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn will be the speakers at St. Paul's Chapel tomorrow, and on Monday Almet F. Jenks, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, and James M. Beck will make addresses.

The assistance of Governor Whitman made it possible to raise about $33,500 for the Red Cross at last night's theatrical performance at the Hippodrome, the sum being the second largest which has been raised at a single theatrical performance in New York since the beginning of the drive.

Announcement has been made that the Kaiser's Cup, a gold trophy, given by the Kaiser to Wilson Marshall, a yachtsman, in 1905, would be auctioned off, with the understanding that the trophy was to be melted down. The cup, which is said to be valued at $5,000, was purchased for this sum last night by William Fox, who turned it back to the Red Cross. The cup, United States Marshal McCarthy said, would be sold again at Madison Square Garden tonight.

A complete performance of "Cheer Up" was given last night, the company having been called together for the purpose ten days after the close of the season. The performance was the first of the series of five events which are being given for the Red Cross under the auspices of the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team.

A new plan to help the Red Cross will be put into force at the Waldorf-Astoria at noon today, when a dozen or more theatrical celebrities, headed by Weber and Fields, will turn waiters for two hours. All tips will go to the Red Cross. In addition to Weber and Fields, Raymond Hitchcock, Clifton Crawford, Barney Bernard, Thomas A. Wise, Will Rogers, William Hodge, Frank Craven, Grant Mitchell, William Courtenay, Leo Carrillo, Harry Fox, and Leon Errol will assist. On Monday the same players will serve during the lunch hour at the Café Savarin, in the Wall Street district.

Officials Confident of Large Oversubscription—343 National Banks Give $531,000.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Approximately $20,000,000 was subscribed today to the American Red Cross' second $100,000,000 War Mercy Fund, bringing the subscriptions reported up to tonight to a total of $63,949,611. Three more working days of the campaign remain, and officials were confident tonight there would be a large oversubscription.

Three hundred and forty-three national banks reported to the Controller of the Currency during the day that they had made donations to the fund, their subscriptions totaling $531,000. Other banks were expected to be heard from before the end of the campaign, the total contributions from this source being reckoned at several millions.

Memphis, Tenn., was the only city reporting today to go over its quota, its subscriptions being $137,973 and its quota $125,000. Many other large cities are near the top.

Subscriptions by divisions as announced tonight follow:

| | |
|---|---|
| Atlantic, including New York City | $24,789,799 |
| Central | 6,980,600 |
| Lake | 5,464,673 |
| Gulf | 1,478,979 |
| Mountain | 1,122,886 |
| New England | 2,734,000 |
| Northern | 2,362,000 |
| Northwestern | 1,869,923 |
| Pacific | 2,103,392 |
| Pennsylvania | 2,821,248 |
| Potomac | 1,600,525 |
| Southern | 2,379,871 |
| Southwestern | 7,447,255 |
| Foreign | 728,040 |

Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, and other members of the Detroit and Washington American League teams solicited downtown Washington for Red Cross funds tonight as part of the local campaign. Great preparations are being made for the Red Cross benefit game tomorrow between Washington and Detroit. President Wilson, who has not attended a game since 1916, has signified his intention of being present.

Co-operate with the Red Cross.

Announcement was made last night that the organization of "family units" to provide comforts for members of the 307th Infantry on overseas service, as described in a recent article in THE TIMES, will work in co-operation with the Red Cross, as under a recent arrangement all articles sent to soldiers and sailors abroad go through Red Cross channels.

LOAN FLAGS FOR CHILDREN.

Liberty Committee to Honor Pupils Who Helped in Drive.

Delegates from the New York public schools to the number of 2,820 who assisted in putting their schools "over the top" in the Liberty Loan campaign will meet in Carnegie Hall tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to receive the honor flags and certificates. The meeting is to be known as the Schools' Liberty Loan jubilee. The delegates were elected by 640 schools. A. B. Leach, Chairman of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee will preside.

The announcement of the rally by the Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee last night said that addresses would be made either by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo or Assistant Secretary Crosby; Arthur Somers, President of the Board of Education, and William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools. Three choirs of seventy-five voices each will present a patriotic musical program. The soloists includes Mmes. Alma Gluck and Lina Cavalieri, and Lucien Muratore.

GERMAN PEACE PLEA SHOWS NEW TONE

MAKES APPEAL TO LABOR

Asks Allied Peoples to "Link Their Efforts with Ours" to End War.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Not long ago the Vorwärts of Berlin proclaimed that the only possible way to peace was by a German victory in the west. Having waited longer than it expected for this particular solution, it now evidently is persuaded that it would be well to qualify considerably its former utterance. It merely adopted that attitude, it says, because "decision by force of arms appeared to be more probable at the earlier date than peace by understanding."

From this it may be gathered that the Vorwärts now has considerable doubts as to the stability of the basis on which it achieved its recent change of front. Now we are given to understand that the German Social Democracy is ready at any moment to abandon its faith in a peace by victory, although it often doubted the probability of it.

The journal, therefore, appeals to the workers of the various countries whom it wishes, while doing nothing against their own countries, to decide on a common policy; and it points out what terrible things will come about if they do not.

The lengthening of the war, it declares, "will do more harm than good to democracy and socialism. A long war will make people accustomed to reaction. It means the impoverishing of the world, and destroys a rapprochement. It is insanity to believe that democratic or socialistic aims can be achieved by war. The sooner the war ends, the better will be the prospects for the building up of State and social order."

Being convinced that such arguments will appeal to the people of the Entente, it concludes by calling on them again to "link their efforts with ours," and it warns them of the evil consequences of despising the German work for peace. The article, unfortunately, does not say a word about the highly unattractive "German work for peace" in the east.

NEW CZECH DISORDER; GERMANS, TOO, PROTEST

Wilson Again Cheered in Prague—Teutons Resent Polish Appointments in Silesia.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Further reports of disorders in Bohemia are published in the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin. It appears that recently there were renewed demonstrations in Prague, which the police found difficulty in quelling. Thirty arrests were made.

The first demonstration in the new outbreak occurred on Wensel Square in Prague on Monday. The demonstration was a big one and reached such pitch that in the evening the police had to interfere. The Czechs sang their patriotic hymn with its additional anti-German verses and raised cheers for President Wilson and Professor Masaryk, the Bohemian delegate now in the United States.

Although Wensel Square was thereafter barred to the demonstrators by the police, the demonstrations were repeated at 10 o'clock at night, and not until midnight did the mounted and foot police succeed in restoring order.

Another feature in the turmoil between the nationalities of Austria-Hungary, which recent occurrences in Bohemia have brought to the fore, is the situation in Austrian Silesia, which lies between Moravia and Galicia. An anti-Government meeting, news of which was suppressed by the local authorities, took place a few days ago at Troppau. The malcontents in this case, among whom Count Larisch was prominent, were Germans, who raged as fiercely against the Austrian Government as do the Czechs.

Their chief grievances, as alleged, are that the Government favors the anti-German party at the expense of Germans, whom it purposely neglects, and that Polish agitators are appointed to important positions, especially in Eastern Silesia. It is alleged that the aim of these agitators is to join Silesia and Galicia with the ultimate object of joining both to Poland. The malcontents demand countermeasures, and threaten to go to the extreme length of opposition.

ITALY THANKS RED CROSS.

King Tells Robert P. Perkins It Has Earned the Nation's Acclaim.

ROME, Wednesday, May 22.—King Victor Emmanuel has sent the following telegram to Robert P. Perkins, head of the Red Cross Commission in Italy:

"The humanitarian work carried out among us by the American Red Cross and so worthily directed by you has earned the acclaim of the entire Italian nation. In succoring the wounded at our front and in mitigating the sufferings of citizens driven from their homes by the enemy's invasion, the American Red Cross has earned everlasting gratitude and has strengthened still more the solid basis of the trusting and cordial friendship between the two countries. It gives me pleasure to express to you these sincere sentiments of the Italian army and people and of myself. I send you also by cordial greetings."

As an additional tribute to the Red Cross Mr. Perkins was received in audience by Dowager Queen Magerita, who expressed the deepest appreciation of the work of the American organization. The splendid results that have been obtained in a material way, she told the commissioner, had only been surpassed by the moral effect in still more closely uniting the two countries and coupling all their energies for the triumph of their common ideals.

SINKINGS AROUSE NORWAY.

Renewal of Submarine Outrages Discussed in Parliament.

CHRISTIANIA, May 23.—The renewal of operations by German submarines against Norwegian fishing vessels, a number of which have been sunk recently was brought up for discussion in Parliament today. Foreign Minister Ihlen said in reply to a question that he had asked the German Minister why these vessels were sunk. The German Minister replied that the danger zone in the Arctic still existed.

When it was pointed out that the submarines had even fired on lifeboats the German representative said he knew nothing about it, and promised to telegraph to Berlin a request that this practice be stopped. He asked for official reports regarding these cases. Maritime tribunals will make an investigation, and their findings will be sent to Berlin.

Several members of Parliament expressed indignation at the sinkings. They asked how long Norway would continue to sell fish to the Germans while they were sinking fishing vessels.

MINOTTO ADJUDGED AN ENEMY ALIEN

Swift's Titled Son-in-Law Loses Fight and Will Be Interned Unless He Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, the packer, is an enemy alien within the purview of the law; his claim that he is a subject of Italy is not founded on fact, it being clearly proved that he is a native of Germany; therefore, he is a fit subject for internment in an enemy alien camp, as directed in President Wilson's warrant.

This is the substance of a decision rendered this afternoon by Federal Judge Carpenter following argument on a writ of habeas corpus sworn out by Count Minotto's attorneys at the time the Presidential warrant was issued. After listening to arguments by counsel for Minotto, who sought to show that, although he was born in Berlin, he was in reality a citizen of Venice, Judge Carpenter declared it was unnecessary to hear counsel for the Government.

Pending the formal entering of the court's decision tomorrow morning Count Minotto was permitted his liberty on his previous bail bond for $50,000. In the morning, however, he will be bound over to the United States Marshal without bail. The Judge gave as one reason for postponing the order that the Court of Appeals was in session and Minotto could take his case there without delay if he wished to appeal.

WOMEN HELP MORE IN WAR.

1,000,000 Now Making Munitions for the British Forces.

LONDON, May 23.—Speaking today at the London Exhibition of Women's Work in Munition Production, Frederick George Kellaway, Secretary to the Minister of Munitions, said that in every one of the defensive measures taken when a raid is carried out the women have had their part, except in the actual flying of aircraft.

The development which had taken place in women's work during the last fourteen months, continued the Secretary, was quite as remarkable as its development at an earlier period of the war. In July, 1010, he stated, there ware 220,000 women engaged in munition industries, while in January, 1917, that number had been increased to 691,000, and today the number was 1,000,000.

A steady stream of trained women, the Secretary said, was being sent into the munition factories from training schools at the rate of 500 a week. Since the Ministry of Munitions had started the schools between 40,000 and 50,000 trained women had been placed in munitions industries.

ROOSEVELT ON WAR MISSION

Starts West Tonight to Preach Loyalty and Americanization.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will depart tonight for a speechmaking tour in the Middle West, which is expected to include Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin. His trip will take two or more weeks and is under the auspices of the National Security League as part of its campaign of patriotism through education for combating certain misapprehensions on the war and explaining the danger of a premature peace. The Colonel was scheduled to make his first address at Wittenberg College, at Springfield, Ohio, tomorrow.

In giving an outline of the message he will carry to the West, Colonel Roosevelt emphasized these points yesterday: First—Win the war, and win it now. Second—Preparedness after war, including universal military training and other thorough measures for adequate defense.

LEWIS FOR GIVE AND TAKE.

Asks Whitman to Let Employes Express Choice for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 23.—Attorney General Lewis tonight sent the following letter to Governor Whitman:

"My Dear Governor: Several days ago I announced my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. Immediately thereafter I gave notice to all of my deputies and employes that they are at liberty to support you for the nomination for Governor if they chose without fear of retaliation on my part. Some of them doubtless will vote for you in the primaries.

"There are employes in some of the State departments who would like to support me for the nomination. They are reluctant to announce their preference publicly and fear that by doing so they may give offense to you. Will you not make public a statement similar to mine? Such a statement would result in freedom of action on the part of Republican electors who now feel themselves hampered in the expression of their political views. Sincerely yours,

WETS WIN IN LOUISIANA.

State Senate Kills Resolution to Ratify Prohibition Amendment.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 23.—Louisiana is the first State to refuse to ratify the Federal prohibition Constitutional amendment. The State Senate, by a vote of 20 to 20, tonight defeated a resolution of ratification adopted a few hours previously by the House by a vote of 70 to 44.

Legislatures of ten States have ratified the amendment.

ACCUSE FELLOW-POLICEMAN

Marxhausen, Associates Testify, Assailed War Policies—He Makes Denial.

Remarks alleged to have been made concerning President Wilson and the war by Sergeant George H. Marxhausen, in the presence of his fellow-policemen of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, led to Marxhausen's arraignment yesterday before Deputy Police Commissioner John W. Goff, Jr., on charges of conduct prejudicial to the Police Department. One of the seven specifications in the complaint accused Marxhausen of asserting that the United States would never have entered the war except for the President. Sergeant James Dolan, now of the Charles Street Station, one of the witnesses, said:

"On the evening of Feb. 6, in the presence of Policeman Morris and myself, and during our discussion of the war, Marxhausen remarked that President Wilson favored war between Germany and the United States. Marxhausen then added that if his brother was drafted and went to France he 'would shoot into the air.'"

Detective Morris, another witness, testified that on one occasion Marxhausen had assailed the President.

Sergeant Thomas McAuley testified that when he had commented on German cruelty toward Belgian women, Marxhausen had replied that what the Germans were doing was too good for the Belgians, because they had tried to prevent the Germans getting through Belgium. Patrolman William T. Gatewood added that Marxhausen had told him he did not think the United States had any right to send soldiers to France.

Marxhausen denied the charges and said he had been "framed." He had subscribed, he said, to the Liberty Loan, to the Knights of Columbus war fund, and had made complaints against two patrolmen who had neglected their duty in guarding Government piers. Frank Moss appeared as his counsel. Commissioner Goff reserved decision.

It was said that Marxhausen's brother was drafted, but for some reason not made public at the police trial was taken to Fort Jay on Governors Island.

PURCHASES SHADOW LAWN.

H. T. Parson Pays $1,000,000 for the President's Former Summer Home.

Hubert T. Parson, Treasurer and General Manager of the F. W. Woolworth Company, it was learned yesterday, has bought Shadow Lawn, the former Summer home of President Wilson, near West Long Branch, N. J. The property, which includes sixty-five acres, has been sold by the Harson-Langham Corporation for nearly $1,000,000. Shadow Lawn was occupied by the President in the Summer of 1916 and was the scene of many of his campaign speeches for reelection.

Originally built by the late John A. McCall of the New York Life Insurance Company at an estimated cost of $1,000,000, it passed into the hands of several owners and finally was purchased by Colonel J. B. Greenhut. After its occupation by the President there was a movement afoot to present it to the Government for the President's Summer residence, but the matter met with opposition and was dropped.

Denies Attacks on German Chiefs.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

CHARGES ATTEMPT TO BRIBE IN MOTOR SUIT

Prosecutor Accuses Emerson Company of Trying to Influence Bay State Official.

The Emerson Motors Company, Inc.; three concerns which had sold the company's stock, and ten individuals, indicted for having used the mails to defraud investors, were yesterday placed on trial before Judge Manton of the Federal District Court. Federal Prosecutor Osborne, in opening the case for the Government, said that he would show that $20,500 of the million-odd dollars which it is alleged was obtained for the company's worthless stock, had been used to bribe a District Attorney in Massachusetts who had threatened to proceed against the defendants.

Besides the Emerson Company the defendants are C. R. Berry & Co., Robert P. Matches & Co., and H. B. Humphrey Company, Inc.; Theodore A. Campbell and George N. Campbell, President and Treasurer of the Emerson Company; Nicholas Field Wilson, Henry B. Humphrey, George B. Gifford, William Loomis, Robert P. Matches, William H. Stetson, Osborne E. Chaney, and William A. Cody. All of the individual defendants, except the two Campbells, are members of stock-selling concerns.

Treasury again tomorrow and to let the Congressional Committee know of his conclusions immediately. The leaders left both conferences believing that there would be no revenue legislation recommended by President Wilson at this session. They said that if the decision rested entirely with the President the matter was settled, but they are not certain that despite the present attitude of the President he will not finally agree with Secretary McAdoo if the latter is able to marshal new and convincing figures.

It was agreed that a bill providing for $6,000,000,000 in taxes should be passed by the next Congress. This bill would raise about $2,000,000,000 more than was levied by the present revenue law. If Secretary McAdoo can find sufficient revenue to run the Government until next year, Congress will adjourn in six weeks or two months.

ALLIED FLEETS BUSY KEEPING SEA SAFE

Ralph D. Paine Tells Morgan Guests Naval Men Still Hope for Real Fight with Germans.

THE SUBMARINE A PARIAH

Guns of Every Navy Turned Upon Any Periscope Without Waiting to Learn Nationality.

Stories of American, British, and French sea fighters in action were told in the Morgan library last night to a company of guests of J. P. Morgan, including a large number of officers in the three navies, by Ralph D. Paine, the novelist, who has visited the warships under Government authorization to prepare a book called "The Fighting Fleet."

"People talk of the inactivity of the grand fleet," he said, "but the grand fleet is continually active. It is not afraid of submarines; it has gone to sea again and again to answer alarms that the German high seas fleet was coming out, and in every officer and man in the fleet there is confidence that some day they will actually catch the Germans. I asked Admiral Beatty what would happen if the Germans did come out, and he answered cheerfully, 'We're here—what, what?'"

Mr. Paine told of one of these occasions when the fleet left its base in the north of Scotland between midnight and dawn in response to a report that the Germans were abroad. "They came through a channel," he said, "which navigators had said before the war could not be traversed at night; but in the war all the fleets have learned to do the impossible. On this occasion the newly arrived American battleships had received the place of honor in the van just behind the British flagship. The fleets cruised twenty hours in a high gale, but found no Germans.

"One of the British battleships had sent up an observer in a kite balloon just before the fleet sailed, and had no time to bring him down. So for twenty hours he was towed by the battleship at the end of his long cable in a wind so high that his observation car was usually sticking out horizontally behind the balloon.

"I visited also the submarine base where American submarines are undergoing intensive training for stalking German U-boats, under the direction of Captain Nasmith, who commanded a British submarine that performed remarkable exploits in the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, sinking a Turkish battleship and several transports. He is now training Americans in the very difficult work of submarine stalking.

"The submarine has no friends; other vessels shoot whenever they see a periscope without stopping to find out whether it belongs to friend or enemy, so the work is somewhat hazardous. The submarine men are resigned to a good deal of it. I met one officer who said that he didn't mind it when two destroyers of his own fleet had attacked his boat, one ramming it and the other dropping a death bomb; but he did think it was a little too much when the Admiral commended them for their energy. Among the crews of the larger ships there is a feeling that the submarine has spoiled this war."

Mr. Paine told of a German minelaying submarine which had settled on the bottom of a British harbor to discharge its mines, when on the shell of the boat there was heard a tapping which presently assumed the form of a message in the international Morse code.

"Unless you come to the surface and surrender at once," said the message, "we shall drop a depth bomb." Unable to see how the message could have been sent to him, the commander hesitated, but there came another tapping. "The bomb is being put into position." Then the German came to the surface almost under a British trawler, which, though taken by surprise, opened fire and forced the submarine to surrender; after which there came up from the depths of the harbor a diver who had been at work on a sunken wreck, had discovered the submarine, and tapped the message on her hull with his hammer, on the chance that there would be some sort of British ship at hand to take care of her when she reached the surface.

Of the American sailors in Ireland, he said that while a very larger percentage of them were of Irish blood and had gone over with a sentimental sympathy for Ireland, this had vanished because of the treatment accorded them by the population. "From the pulpit of the Cork Cathedral," he said, "the American sailors were denounced as vultures who had come to corrupt the young men and debauch the young women.

Mr. Paine saw the crew of a German submarine, whose commander destroyed her after surrendering, brought into port by the American destroyer Fanning.

"They came swarming out of an open hatch," he said, "as if violently propelled from below, like so many jacks-in-the-box. Never was a large, populous German submarine emptied so rapidly. And as they madly erupted on deck, every Hun flung his hands above his head with the most passionate sincerity and held them upraised while he bawled: 'Kamerad! Kamerad! Kamerad!'

"A gunner's mate on the forward deck of the Fanning grinned and exclaimed with pardonable emphasis: 'Kamerad, hell! What kind of a word is that to use in war? Somebody ought to tip these poor boobs off. We are sure-enough enemies.' 'They behave as if they expected us to shoot 'em in cold blood,' growled another petty officer. 'What do they think we are? Germans?'"

Among Mr. Morgan's guests were Vice Admiral Purefoy of the British Navy, Admiral Grasset and staff of the French Navy, and Rear Admirals Fiske, Gleaves, Johnston, Usher, and Burd of the United States Navy.

CAIROLA WORE WAR MEDAL.

Fort Lee Man Who Died in France Decorated for Gallantry.

Sergeant Raymond J. Cairola, reported in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing as having died of wounds, was the holder of a French medal of honor, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cairola of Fort Lee, N. J. He was 27 years old and a well known amateur baseball player. He won the French Croix de Guerre while serving in the French Army before this country entered the war. When Congress declared war he returned to the United States and entered the American service.

Private John Nacieukowicz, reported killed in action, was a Brooklyn boy and a veteran of the old Fourteenth Infantry. He went to France in January.

Edward Harold La Mont, also reported killed, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph La Mont of Yonkers. He was 22 years old, and was a former member of the 22d Regiment of Manhattan. His mother is seriously ill and has not been informed of his death.

Private George J. Brown, another of those reported killed in action, was a son of Mrs. William Brown of 6,420 Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn. He was in the Signal Corps and was 22 years old. He was a graduate of St. Peter's Parochial School of Brooklyn.

"If he had to die," said his mother yesterday, "I am glad that he died for his country."

John W. Lafferty, reported seriously wounded, is a Brooklyn boy. His brother Vincent, his nearest of kin, lives at 413 Bleecker Street, this city. He went to France with the regular engineers in June of last year. He is 41 years old.

Sergeant David Silverman, reported seriously wounded, has been in the regular army for eight years, and is in the Twenty-eighth U. S. Infantry. His parents live at 2,001 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. Silverman went to France with the first of the Pershing divisions.

86 Casualties Reported from Overseas; 14 Killed in Action, 12 Dead from Wounds

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The War Department today gave out a list of 86 casualties in the American army abroad, bringing the total to 6,194. The list included the names of 14 killed in action, 12 died of wounds, 1 missing in action, 39 wounded severely, 9 wounded slightly, and 11 died of disease.

Three commissioned officers are included. Lieutenant James Palache died of wounds. Lieutenants John T. Maguire and Hugh L. Sutherland were severely wounded. This is the second time that Lieutenant Maguire has been reported wounded. On Feb. 15 last the War Department announced that Lieutenant Maguire had been slightly wounded in action on Feb. 6. He is now reported as having been severely wounded.

Private.

SUMMA, ROCCO; Tony Summa, Mill St., Waterbury, Conn.

COHOES, N. Y., May 23.—Corporal James G. B. Lighthall, whose name appears among the killed in action in today's casualties list, was named for the late James Gordon Bennett, one of whose yachts won a race on the day Lighthall was born twenty-two years ago.

The last letter his relatives received from him was written several weeks ago from an American camp. It read in part:

"I hope I will soon be placed on the list of men to go over the top, as I wish to assist in making the world safe for democracy. If I don't return you will know that I died fighting for America and the Stars and Stripes, the greatest country and flag in the world."

Lighthall's wife and two-year-old son reside in Brattleboro, Vt.

LIEUT. KURTZ KILLED BY FALL.

Death of Pilot Probably Due to Accident, Pershing Says.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—General Pershing's communiqué, transmitted today to the War Department, reported that Lieutenant Kurtz, an American pilot, had been killed accidentally within the American lines.

His bulletin, dated at 9 o'clock last night, reads:

> Section A—The artillery activity has decreased. There are no new developments to report.
>
> Section B—This morning Lieutenant Kurtz, pilot in our air service, fell within our lines and was killed. His fall, apparently, was due to accident.

THREE AMERICANS CAPTURED.

All Are Privates and Their Homes Are in New England.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Information that the following American soldiers are prisoners of war has been received by the War Department:

Muldoon, James N., private; Mrs. M. J. Muldoon, 17 Upland Road, Brighton, Mass.

This information was forwarded by the American Military Attaché at London, who received it from the British Postal Censorship. All three men are reported to be unwounded. The location of the prison camps at which they are held has not been made known.

BANK FACILITIES FOR ARMY.

Equitable, Guaranty, and Farmers' Loan and Trust Cos. Perfect Plans.

A joint arrangement has been entered into by the Equitable Trust Company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and the Guaranty Trust Company to perfect safe and economical banking facilities for the American forces in France. These organizations have been officially designated as depositories for United States Government funds in France and England, according to a statement issued yesterday, and the "service checks" to be issued by them are the only checks of this nature authorized and approved by the Government.

The agreement provides for the sale at the concentration camps in the United States of checks which may be cashed at the London and Paris offices of the companies. They will be honored also at the London office of the International Banking Corporation, which is also a Government depository, and at the numerous branches of the Bank of France, the Credit Lyonnais, the Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris, and the Société Generale. The stamp tax imposed by France will be paid by the trust companies, so that the checks will command their full face value.

The checks will be sold on the basis of the official exchange rate agreed upon between the United States and French Governments, no commission being charged. The present cost of the checks is as follows. 50 francs, $8.85; 100 francs, $17.60; 200 francs, $35.15. They are self-identifying, which will make it practically impossible for any except the authorized holders to cash them.

The Columbia Trust Company, which is the American correspondent of the London County Westminster and Parr's Bank, Limited, of London, announced yesterday the receipt of advices that the British institution, with its 700 offices in the United Kingdom, would cash United States Army pay drafts. The same facilities will be offered at the Paris branch. The bank has also opened a forwarding mail department in London and Paris for the accommodation of the American forces, the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., &c., which will forward mail to any address, after arrival in England and France.

D. S. O. FOR AN AMERICAN.

Col. J. N. Hodges of the Engineers Honored by British.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 22, (Associated Press.)—Colonel J. N. Hodges of the American Engineer Corps has received an award of the British Distinguished Service Order in recognition of his services during the period from March 27 to April 3.

Colonel Hodges is one of the first American officers to receive the D. S. S. From March 27 to April 3 was the period during which the British were stemming the tide of the German offensive begun on March 21.

The latest published United States Army list gives John N. Hodges as a Captain in the First Engineers.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

BRITISH AID TO OUR TROOPS

Furnishing Clothing and Arms, Says London Paper—Convoy Success.

LONDON, May 23.—"The many-sidedness of Great Britain's contribution to the war might well be kept more than it is before the eyes of the world," says The Daily Chronicle in commenting on the statement yesterday of Sir Robert Kindersley, Chairman of the National War Savings Committee, respecting the great increase since last Fall in the assistance given by small investors toward financing the war.

"How many people, for instance," the paper continues, "realize that Great Britain is clothing American troops in France and providing nearly all their armament, except artillery?

"How many people realize that down to Jan. 12, 1917, Great Britain had advanced no less than £1,186,000,000 to her allies and £175,000,000 to her dominions; that she transports a daily average of over 7,000 personnel and more than 30,000 tons of military supplies to France; that to the end of August, 1917, her navy and mercantile marine had transported and protected across the sea some 13,000,000 of personnel with the loss of only 3,500 altogether?

"The scale of the navys' work in particular is far too little appreciated. Its burdens extend much beyond the 420,000 who now man our ships. For instance, the Royal dock yards since the beginning of the war have repaired 31,470 war vessels, exclusive of the great amount of repair work done on allied ships.

"These branches of British war effort represent a strain for which there is practically no German equivalent, and are too often left out of account in comparing the other branches of activity which affect Great Britain and Germany alike, such as the provision of man power for the army, the supply of munitions, or the manufacture of aircraft."

WILSON SPARES DESERTER.

Orders Death Sentence Commuted to Twenty Years in Prison.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP McCLELLAN, Anniston, Ala., May 23.—The sentence of death imposed by a general court-martial here, Feb. 11, on Private George Abendachein of Company L 115th Infantry, has been commuted to twenty years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta by President Wilson upon the recommendation of Major General Morton, commander of the 29th Division. Private Abendachein, whose home is in Maryland, was tried on charges of absenting himself from his command without proper authority and escaping from confinement three times before being set at liberty by proper authority.

He deserted twice, at Laurel and again at Camp McClellan in November, 1917, and was apprehended at Parkersburg, W. Va., a few days later.

In forwarding the case for the attention of the President General Morton made the following note:

"In the foregoing case of Private George Abendachein, Company L, 115th Infantry, the sentence is approved, but the execution thereof is suspended until the pleasure of the President is known and the record of trial is forwarded. It is recommended that this sentence be mitigated to confinement at hard labor for twenty years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and forfeiture of all pay and allowances due or to become due."

Publication of the court's finding, General Morton's recommendation, and the orders of the President bearing on the case were published at the division headquarters this morning.

RUSSIANS HERE PLAN TO RAISE AN ARMY

WILL SEEK OUR SANCTION

Report That Kerensky Is Already Here Denied—His Lieutenants at the Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—A group of influential Russians came to Washington today with the suggestion that a movement be initiated for the overthrow of the Bolshevist régime and the restoration of Russia to a position of importance in the war. The delegation, which spent some time in conference with Boris Bakhmetieff, the Russian Ambassador, and which was later accompanied to the State Department by Baron Ginsberg, an attaché of the Russian Embassy, was headed by Apollinarius Dimitrovitch Semenovsky, who was Minister of Ways and Communications under Premier Kerensky.

Other members of the delegation who took part in the conference at the Russian Embassy were reported to be Colonel Lrkoch, a member of the Russian Commission sent to the United States by Kerensky, Whitney Wishnevietsky, a representative of the Russian labor party, of which Premier Kerensky is himself a member, and Elias Rosenthal, an attorney.

The conferences today were preliminary to the formulation of a definite plan for aiding in bringing about the restoration of Russia to a position of power and influence, as well as of law and order. It is expected that when the plan has been definitely formulated it will be submitted to the United States Government for consideration and approval. The plan, so far as it has been developed, is understood to include the raising in this country of a volunteer force of Russians to be dispatched to Siberia. It is not yet known whether the movement will be an independent one or associated with the activities of General Semenoff.

The movement, to succeed, it is believed, would have to enjoy the support of the United States Government and depend on it or the Allies for supplies of guns, munitions, rolling stock for the Siberian Railroad and food supplies for the expedition. There are also many Russians outside of the United States who might be depended upon, it was asserted today, to join any substantial movement for the restoration of Russia.

A report was current that Secretary Baker would confer with Ambassador Bakhmetieff and Semenovsky at the Embassy today. This was officially denied at the Embassy, although it was intimated that there might be conferences with the American Government when the plans under consideration reach the point where they can be definitely submitted.

SEMENOFF SETS UP INDEPENDENT STATE

Anti-Bolshevist General and Admiral Kolchak Said to Have Quarreled.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, May 23.—General Semenoff has established an autonomous Government in the Trans-Baikal region.

HARBIN, May 19, (Associated Press.)—Serious differences have arisen between General Semenoff, the anti-Bolshevist military leader, and Admiral Kolchak, former commander of the Russian Black Sea fleet, and recently elected Director of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Last week the Admiral, who commands the Russian forces in Manchuria, went to the town where Semenoff has his headquarters. The General refused to call, and the Admiral took the initiative.

General Semenoff, it is declared, declined to acknowledge that the Admiral possessed any authority outside Manchuria or any control over his forces. General Semenoff is wholly dependent upon the railway administration, while Admiral Kolchak can exercise no authority outside Manchuria without the support of Semenoff's soldiers.

FIGHTING IN PETROGRAD.

Great Stores of Anarchist Munitions Destroyed by Bolsheviki.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—The Morning Post's Stockholm correspondent says that, according to reliable information received from French and American men of business in Russia, violent battles were fought on April 21 at Petrograd and Moscow between the Bolsheviki and anarchists.

Great stores of ammunition and arms belonging to anarchist clubs were blown up, and many people were killed.

MANNERHEIM RESIGNS AS FINN MILITARY CHIEF

General Disapproves Plan of Finnish Conservatives to Invade Russian Karelia.

LONDON, May 23.—General Mannerheim, Commander in Chief of the Finnish White Guard, has resigned because of the plan of the Finnish Conservatives to invade the Russian province of Karelia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

PUT 1,752 TO DEATH.

Wholesale Executions in Finland by Germans and White Guards.

LONDON, May 23.—Under the White Guard and German régime in Finland, 1,752 persons were executed up to May 1, according to a Finnish Socialist, who has escaped to Sweden and whose interview with the Folkets Dagblad is transmitted from Copenhagen by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

According to the exile, 516 were executed in Tammerfors, 148 in Tournea, 380 in Varkom, and 380 in Vasa. Prisoners taken by the German and Finnish Government forces, he says, were treated so badly that many were starved to death.

KORNILOFF BOBS UP AGAIN.

Now Reported South of Moscow with His Army.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—General Korniloff is reported to be south of Moscow with his army, and by many is regarded as destined to deliver Russia from the Bolshevist tyranny. There is no foundation whatever for the rumor that he and Lenine have been assassinated.

"WALKING DEAD MEN."

Condition of Prisoners Exchanged by Germany Enrages Russians.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Arrival at Petrograd of the first contingent of 1,500 Russian prisoners to be exchanged under the recent Russo-German agreement was reported to the State Department today. The men, the dispatch said, were "veritable walking dead men."

Recent dispatches said that the Germans had demanded an agreement for the exchange of prisoners under which only Russians not fit for work would be returned to Russia, and only able-bodied Germans would be returned to Germany.

Today's dispatches to the State Department said the condition of the soldiers returning to Petrograd aroused great indignation.

EMERY STILL IN GERMANY.

Finnish Government Again Asks for American's Release.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The State Department today received a belated telegram from Stockholm stating that Major Henry C. Emery, who was captured by the Germans on the Aland Islands while attempting to reach Sweden from "Red" territory in Finland, after leaving Petrograd when that city was menaced by the Germans, is at Lauenburg, Pomerania, where he is permitted by the Germans to move about freely.

American Minister Morris at Stockholm in another cable to the department reports that he had received word from the "White" Finnish diplomatic agent at Stockholm that his Government has again asked Germany to release Major Emery, and that there was a hope that this soon might be accomplished.

JAPAN AND CHINA SIGN NAVAL TREATY

Military Agreement Between the Two Countries Explained by Peking Government.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, May 23.—The Enemy Trading act, which has been promulgated, consists of eight clauses. The Chino-Japanese Naval Convention has been signed.

PEKING, May 19—(Associated Press.)—The Government, through the Chinese News Agency, has authorized the following statement regarding the military agreement between China and Japan:

In view of the circulation of false reports, it is necessary to inform the Chinese people of the facts of the negotiations. Since the conclusion of peace between the Russian Maximalists and the enemy the fear has existed in Japan and China of an eastward intrusion of German influence. On account of the propinquity of their territory, the Government recognized the necessity of a definite arrangement for joint defense. This joint defense concerns military movements in Siberia and Manchuria, and has no reference to other matters. The scheme will become null and void with the termination of the war.

On the other hand, the convention will not be enforced unless the influence of the enemy actually penetrates Siberia. It is not a treaty, but an entente, which will become a scrap of paper if there is no enemy menace. The sole reason for the non-publication of the contents is the preservation of the secret from the enemy. The convention does not involve the loss of sovereign territorial rights and Japan gains no privileges.

TOKIO, May 17—(Associated Press.)—The military agreement between Japan and China has caused increased attention to be given the question of intervention in Siberia. It is understood that both Great Britain and France are actively favoring intervention, the former because of the dangers of the spread of German influence, and both Great Britain and France because they are convinced that it would hasten the winning of the war. The General Staff is ready for any action that may be ordered, but the Government has not announced any decision in the matter.

The best opinion here is that intervention is not likely until it is favored by the United States.

LONDON, May 23.—The British Government, Reuter's Limited says it learns, has now received the main terms of the agreement between China and Japan, and they are regarded with satisfaction by the British Government. The convention, it is declared, is a purely military one, with the object of the effective co-ordination of the military forces of the Allies, when such may become necessary to combat the German menace in the Far East.

The Red Cross is for those who suffer

War has not brought new sufferings, but it has enormously multiplied suffering and has caused misery to fall in new places and in horrible combinations.

The old who were protected, the children who were sheltered, the women who were cherished, have been called upon to endure to the uttermost. Upon those countries exhausted in death grips the blows have fallen hardest; upon those least able to meet them calamities have piled upon calamities. It happens that this full load of tragedy has not fallen upon us, but it happens by the same token we may help to meet it.

The Red Cross aims to be where human needs are, and to act as its individual members would, could they be present and endowed with the same means.

The Red Cross is helping our soldiers and sailors in a practical way. It is helping the comfort and the spirit of our Allies, and in both these things it is helping to shorten the war by rendering more effective the service of the armed forces of all the Allies.

But beyond its practical help it is dedicated to the alleviation of human suffering, and this war has given splendid evidence, through the Red Cross, of the spirit of the American people, the spirit of simple human kindness, toward suffering wherever encountered. The daily record of incidents which the widespread Red Cross organization meets suggests how universal is the need for help. The need is so vast that only a universal answer can cope with it.

Children

THE spirit of the children of France makes doubly worth while the efforts of the Red Cross to save them. Major Murphy tells this story:

"I remember I was at one time outside Popering. I went there to a little home which was maintained for refugees. It was a hospital and a home. I saw soldiers — a mutilated soldier was walking across the lawn, and he was leading by the hand a little boy about eight years old who had a bandage over his eyes. That child had been blinded by a German shell, and they had to take out both of his eyes.

"He did not know he was blind. He thought it was the bandage; and even when they took the bandage off he still thought there was something tied over his eyes. He was very happy, and had no idea of the seriousness of the situation. While standing there talking to this soldier, the little fellow put his bandaged head down on the ground and turned a somersault. There is so much of that spirit over there."

IN THE ordinary course of a day's work, a Red Cross official sent in this report to the Paris headquarters:

"There arrived last week at Evian, where the repatriates from France and Belgium are received back into France, a train loaded with Belgian children.

"There were 680 of them — thin, sickly, from four to twelve years of age — children of men who refused to work for the Germans and of mothers who let their children go rather than have them starve. They poured off the train, little ones clinging to the older ones, girls all crying, boys trying to cheer. They had come all the long way alone.

"On the platform were the Red Cross workers to meet them. The children who could walk at all marched along crying, 'Meat, meat; we are going to have meat.' Their little clawlike hands were significant, but a doctor said, 'We have them in time; a few weeks of proper feeding and they will pull up.' Thirty per cent. of the older repatries die the first month from exhaustion. The children can and must be saved."

THESE trains that pull into Evian are laden with the too-young and the too-old for German purposes. On their arrival the repatriates are registered, washed, given fit clothing and food, and put to sleep in clean beds. Thousands and thousands of these repatriates have known the blessing of Red Cross help. The story of Gaston is typical.

Gaston is a little boy aged seven, who walks with a crutch. His father had gone to fight the Boche; his mother managed to keep the home until a certain day when the siren blew. That day Gaston and his sister were playing in the yard and ran to the cellar when they heard the first blast. They had been told to do so. When the siren ceased they went back to play in the yard.

Then something happened, and for days after he came out of the hospital Gaston couldn't for the life of him remember what it was.

The thing that dropped in the yard tore away one leg and mangled his sister.

While he was in the hospital his mother disappeared. So they put Gaston on a train for Evian.

The Red Cross nurse was helping Gaston along the road — he handled his crutch, awkwardly as yet — when a woman shrieked and gathered the cripple to her bosom.

Few mothers and children among the repatriates are so blessed with fortune. Tens of thousands of them will never know the bliss of such reunions.

THE school children of France have learned to slip on their gas masks as handily as their fathers in the trenches. The regions under gas fire are growing with the increasing range of the big guns, for more and more of the shells are gas shells.

No matter how constant this menace is, or how near to the lines a town may be, the future of the French boys and girls is not neglected, and the schools go on. But the day's routine is varied by the drills, when, at a given signal, gas masks are slipped on, just as at other signals, which mean bombardment, the children run to the cellars or fall flat on the floor to protect themselves.

When the Red Cross began to help these children, it was found that many of them were mere infants, some less than one year old. The tinier children could not manage the gas masks, and for these and for the children who had been herded together in old barracks, dirty and practically unfurnished, and with no sanitary appliances, the Red Cross established a home at Toul, where hundreds of tots are brought from the dangerous districts and saved from the death which would almost certainly overtake them were they left in their homes.

THE American Red Cross is caring to-day, in one way or another, for 50,000 French children. It is the hope of the Red Cross, in co-operation with the French Government, to save the lives of 40,000 infants a year.

Serbia

CRUSHED by the combined Austrian-German advance, the nation of Serbia was overrun; its population forced into exile or left in the hands of the invader. Serbia was no longer a vital military factor in the war. The contribution of the American Red Cross to the people of Serbia is an expression of human kindness on the part of the American people to a suffering nation.

When the Red Cross Mission went to Serbia, the Austrian atrocities had reached their zenith. The Austrians had set themselves to annihilate that nation. In some places the people were driven by soldiers with fixed bayonets into courtyards of the schools and there shot down. In others, they were tied in groups to hayricks which were then set on fire. Victims were left hanging by scores to village trees.

There is a little strip of Serbia in the neighborhood of Monastir that has been saved from the invader, and it is here the Red Cross is helping what is left of Serbia. There are 21,000 acres of fertile plain in this district, and to this district the Red Cross is sending enough seeds and farm machinery to assure the production of thousands of bushels of barley, rye, potatoes and other food produce this year.

The 50,000 Serbians huddled into this district will become self-supporting. The medical assistance, the sanitary help necessary to these women children and old men, is being provided. There is hope for at least this little remnant of a brave people.

Roumania

COMPARABLE with Serbia is the case of Roumania. Rendered helpless by the enemy advance, Roumania, too, gave the Red Cross an opportunity not for making a nation more effective for war, but rather a chance to help a stricken people without hope of gain.

The Red Cross Mission to Roumania found conditions impossible to describe; found inhabitants picking wild grass for food. In the little village of Seltiu, a squalid shack of wood and mud was occupied by three little children. Their mother had succumbed to typhus. Their father was a soldier at the front. The eldest, a girl of ten, was acting as mother to a boy of four and a little sister of seven. The boy was lying helpless on a bag on the stone floor, his face eaten partly away by a malignant skin disease. The bones stuck out all over his tiny body. The girl was little better off. There were neither relatives, friends, nor any Government agency to give relief to these unfortunate children.

While it could, the Red Cross strove with all its might to bring relief to this stricken land. But the determination of Roumania and the help of the Red Cross was not sufficient proof against the trying conditions which Roumania faced, and the last chapter of American Red Cross help for Roumania was written when the Queen of Roumania recently cabled the Red Cross:

"At this hour in the midst of tragic events my thoughts turn with gratitude towards those who in anxious days, but when there was still hope, came to my aid. I wish once more to thank the American Red Cross for the splendid way in which it answered my appeal of a few months ago. A terrible fate has obliged Colonel Anderson, who was ready to remain in spite of adverse circumstances, to leave with all his unit. The work the American Red Cross Mission did amongst our wounded and amongst the suffering population is unforgetable to me and my people. Now that my country has to remain alone and forsaken, I wish once more to raise my voice and to thank all those who helped me, and to ask that we and our nation should not be forgotten. I ask of the great heart of America to remember Roumania, if even for a while. Strangulated, her cries will not reach it, and her tears will have to be wept in secret."

MARIE, QUEEN OF ROUMANIA.

* * *

These are the situations that, multiplied almost without limit, challenge the American Red Cross. The story of Red Cross help must necessarily be told in totals, but for each unit there is a terrible and pathetic story. Where the symbol of the American Red Cross goes there is the reminder to bruised souls that the long miles between cannot separate suffering from American sympathy.

Then there is the great faith that America, rich with a wealth greater than any, with her territory undisturbed, can and will move with the spirit of devotion of which the Red Cross is a symbol and to which it is a servant.

L COMPANY OF 69TH GAME IN FIRST FIGHT

STOOD FAST IN HAIL OF FIRE

Several Won Crosses, and All Acted Like Veterans, He Informs Their Women Folk.

Captain Van Santvoord Merle-Smith, commanding Company L of the old 69th Regiment, has sent a letter to the relatives of the men of his company describing the conduct of the soldiers the first time they were under German shellfire. He details graphically their coolness under the attack and mentions the names of many who distinguished themselves by gallant behavior. Four of his Sergeants, he reports, have been taken from the ranks to be commissioned as officers.

The letter is addressed to the mothers, wives, and friends of the men of the company who meet as a unit each week to exchange bits of news from the front and work for the regiment.

The letter follows:

To the Women of Company L, 165*th Infantry:*

Probably you have heard by this time from those you are interested in details of the first experience of actual warfare we have had, but it is due that I should share with you my pride in the magnificent showing your boys, brothers, and husbands made when up against the boche, and the steadiness and courage and loyalty which meant so much to me and to all in their confidence in each other.

I have not time to relate the preparation work under heartrending conditions of hardship and lack of facilities, where the loyal and efficient work of the non-commissioned officers pulled us through everything with a smile and a company pride which became at first the secret envy of men and officers of other companies, and then the outspoken admiration. All the men deserved credit, but I can only mention here Sergeants Gannon, Larkin, Collins, Mahon, Heffernon, Donahue, Dunn, Landzert, Wittlinger, and Redmond among the many who helped to develop the present company.

The first experience of the men under fire came while digging a reserve trench behind the lines. Picture the long, long line of men digging like beavers except when called to stand immovable when German airplanes passed overhead. Then in the stillness the sharp crack of a shell bursting about sixty feet in the air directly over the centre of the line, and a shower of small splinters from the back blast. It was so sudden and unexpected, this first shell, that the men gave me the impression of metaphorically feeling themselves all over to see whether they were killed. They looked a bit dazed, but nobody was hit. It was a ranging shot from a German battery on our flank; the dangerous splinters passed well over us, so the men were ordered to work, and they did it with a laugh. After three more shells the Huns began to better their range, so I withdrew the men and, well spread out in the woods, we had our lunch, watching from a safe distance the Hun shower with about 150 shrapnel and high explosive shells the position where we had been working. When the bombardment let up, back we went, the men well separated, and, although about ten shells burst over them, there was hardly a movement in the line except to bend the head toward the burst to get the fullest protection from the steel helmet. In a short three hours they had gone a long way on the road toward being veterans.

Hail of 1,700 Shells.

It was clear from the rate of fire that the Germans thought they had scared us off and were putting these shells over slowly to keep us away, so I kept careful watch for the German plane which undoubtedly would come over to see if we had fooled them and come back. Over it came, just as we finished the work. Quick orders, and with the smoothness of veterans equipment was hurriedly slung and we moved rapidly out. When we were about 250 yards down the road in safety, the heavens opened and about 1,700 shells of all calibres were thrown on the spot where we had been digging, covering the immediate vicinity with shell holes all along the trench. We had done our work, fooled the boche, with no casualties but a rifle stock broken by a shell splinter, and each man was secretly proud because all knew that the company had been put in the most dangerous part of the trench after the first bombardment because they could be relied upon.

The same night news came from the front line of a number of casualties in our company sector, and of the dangerous condition in which the sector had been put by heavy enemy bombardment. The orders were changed and Company L was designated to take over that sector, instead of another one.

When we marched out at 1 A. M. to relieve this other company all knew that we would have serious work ahead of us. The relief was made, and we had no more than the usual shelling for a day. The next day the boche started in with 10-inch mortar shells on the outposts and trenches. There was much danger, but report after report came to me from the officers referring to the coolness of the men, their prompt obedience to orders involving risk of death. Men in the outposts stuck to their posts, though their shelters were laid flat by shells which made craters 18 feet in diameter and 8 feet deep. Lieutenant Booth was wounded, not seriously, withdrawing men from the outposts under this fire, and has been decorated with the French Croix de Guerre. I cannot give you the detail of the work of your men, but for about seven hours each day the Huns hammered our outposts and trenches. Sections of trench were reduced to masses of craters, huge gaps were torn in our wire entanglements, and each night under machine-gun and rifle fire your men worked out in No Man's Land, repairing wire, or in the trenches, digging them anew, while the covering parties patrolled out toward the German wire to prevent attack.

The men worked there many nights until the next dawn began to show on the eastern horizon. You may well suppose that working all night and suffering heavy bombardment all day could be a considerable strain, but never once under fire or during dangerous and delicate work did I fail to receive an easy confident smile from your boys as they stood at their posts or did their work. Here showed the results of the hard, grinding training, and their confidence in the non-commissioned officers and platoon leaders. One can never realize unless one has been through it how much of the natural strain is taken off every one's mind by the knowledge that the man on post next you is surely on the job and ready to do more than his duty; that the non-commissioned officers and officers are keen and cool and know what they are talking about when they tell you such and such a place is the best for you, or when ordered to do a dangerous thing that every possible precaution is taken for your safety. And the confidence was well taken, because with all the hammering we got there were only three wounded in the company sector, and those so slightly that they were annoyed at having to go to the rear.

Corporal Spencer Wins Cross.

I cannot give you the details of raids from and on our sectors, though I wish I could, nor of the many little deeds of devotion to duty and bravery. Private Sandy, after having a large splinter up the side of his overcoat, calmly called his men, put them in safety, and then continued his observations of the enemy fire. Corporal Spencer, in an unprotected observation post, amid showers of splinters, noted and reported on the position of the enemy guns shelling us and the effect of our own counter-artillery fire. He was given the Croix de Guerre for his coolness and bravery, and for the result of his careful work, insuring the safety of the command. Corporal Bezald did excellent work directing wiring parties at work under machine gun fire. There was the cool resourcefulness of Sergeants Collins, Heffernon, and Donahue, and of Acting Sergeants Convey and Redmond in various dangerous situations; the work of Sergeant Kerr and Private Barlin (or Balin?) in repairing the telephone wires under bombardment when the wire they were repairing was cut by splinters between them.

These are only a few instances among the number I know about, and there are undoubtedly many more of which I am ignorant. For instance, it does not include the men sent under shellfire daily to carry food and supplies to the front-line trenches, or the messengers who must go whatever the conditions. These are all things which in other wars would have earned citation of bravery; in this war they are merely one's duty.

Such is the stuff of which your men are made, and the above is a poor picture of experiences that have put a new look into their eyes. They are veterans, and they show it in looks and in behavior. They have gained new confidence and comradeship and many other things, and they are proud of it, for they know it is pure gold.

I only wish to report that I write this so that you may share in the intense pride I have in them, one and every man, and to share also with you my joy in seeing them all in magnificent health and spirits after my return from the hospital, where I was forced to go after we left the trenches because of a slight wound.

Please let my wife know if there is anything we can do for you over here.

VAN SANTVOORD MERLE-SMITH,
Captain N. G., 165th Infantry,
Commanding Company L.

P. S.—Sergeants Mahon, Larkin, Donahue, Collins, and Dunn have been taken from us to make officers of them, and Sergeant Sheahan has been promoted to Regimental Color Sergeant.

GERMANS RAIL AT WILSON

But Vorwaerts Says Red Cross Speech Points Berlin Mistakes.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Commenting on President Wilson's recent speech in New York in opening the Red Cross campaign, the Berlin newspaper Vorwärts says that it is easy to pick out many parts of the address as mere German-baiting and exaggeration, but that on the whole it accurately reflects the psychological impression which the peace of Brest-Litovsk and that of Bucharest were bound to produce on the other side of the Atlantic. The Socialist organ rails at what it calls the "alleged unselfishness" of the Entente's aims, but says that doubtless President Wilson's people will believe him.

The peace made by the Central Powers in the East, the newspaper thinks, has greatly strengthened President Wilson's position. Germany is propagating the idea, says Vorwärts, that the speech was meant to offset "the British peace offensive," but it declares the trick will not work.

Other German newspapers, none of which prints the speech in full, comment in the usual abusive style on the alleged "impurity" of the President's motives. "His is a pathological case," the Kreuz-Zeitung says.

52 ENEMY ALIENS LEAVE FOR GEORGIA

O'LEARY IS STILL MISSING

Women in Bronxville Unite in Crusade Against Attacks on Allies.

Fifty-two enemy aliens started for the internment prison at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, yesterday morning. One of the enemy subjects was "William L. Dunbar," the young German who was arrested several months ago when in command of a United States naval patrol vessel. Until his name—the name he uses is said to be assumed—appeared on the list of enemy subjects ordered interned, not a word had been given out concerning "Dunbar" since his arrest by agents of the Naval Intelligence Service last year. The man posed as an American citizen of English extraction in order to get into the navy. He held the rank of ensign in the Naval Reserve force when taken into custody.

It transpires that Dunbar has been for months a prisoner in the Mercer County, N. J., jail. The fact that he made an unsuccessful effort to get into the aviation section of the army, and failing in that got into the navy, has caused a great deal of speculation as to the action the Department of Justice would take in his case. The matter has now been settled and he will reside in the Georgia interment camp until the war ends.

Eugen Schwerdt, the German wool expert, who was one of Hugo Schmidt's chief assistants in the effort that was made to get wool from the United States, South America, South Africa, and Australia into Germany, was also of the party. Schwerdt is the man who went to Belgium more than a score of years ago, became a subject of the Belgian crown, and even permitted his son to enter the Belgian army. He won the friendship of King Albert, and as a result of that friendship was able to get his son out of the army and bring him to this country. Subsequently he sent the boy to South America to gain information needed by the Germans.

Karl Schubert, said to be a friend of Bernstorff's, and whose wife was the first German women to be arrested after Congress passed a law putting German women on the same status as men, is also among those on the way to Georgia. Josef Stulz, the Poughkeepsie chemist who married into one of the best-known and wealthiest families of that city, is another member of the southbound delegation.

Others in the party are Charles Lang, Josef Baliznec, Franz August Wildgrube, Louis Glanz, Gothilf Wenzel, Ernst Müller, Wilhelm Suhring, Georg Adolf Schmidt, Edward W. C. Muller, Edmund Fischer, Paul Degenhardt, Josef Stochlin, Hans Donecker, Johann Yeager, Ernst Brunette, Zarle Alesmann, Karl Gessert, Johann Heinrich, Johann Beckmann, Fritz Berlitz, A. E. Jacob, Fritz Schaly, Georg P. Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the Sinn Fein agitator, was reported absent when, for a second time this week, he was called for trial in the Federal District Court yesterday. O'Leary has been missing since May 8, the day he left his home on what was supposed to be a trip to the Adirondacks. The case will be called for trial a third time on May 31. In the meantime the Secret Service is searching the country for the fugitive.

While details have not been made public, it is known that the Government is now making a thorough investigation of the Sinn Fein situation in this country, particularly in New York, where the agitators are said to have their headquarters.

Prominent women of Bronxville, who met at a luncheon given by Mrs. Casper Whitney at the Hotel Gramatan yesterday, adopted a resolution declaring that, "Since it is generally known that there is a group of persons in this village, who, while not openly antagonistic to our Government, still give evidence of a disposition to thwart the efforts of our Government by voicing utterances tending to create suspicion in American minds as to the good faith of some of our allies, it becomes the duty of every person here present to assist in creating such public opinion that these persons will cease their insidious endeavors or that they be dealt with in such a manner that they can do no more mischief."

FIND O'LEARY'S AUTO.

Newburg Garage Owner Says Car Was Left by Fugitive's Brother.

NEWBURG, N. Y., May 23.—The seventy horse power Mercer car belonging to Jeremiah O'Leary, the Irish agitator, was found in a garage here early today by James Williamson, County Detective, and Lieutenant Dickey of the Newburg police. The owner of the garage, William P. Donahue, said the car had been left with him on May 11 by Dr. Daniel O'Leary, a brother of the fugitive. The instructions, he said, were to remove the tires and jack up the car, as it would not be placed in commission again this year. The license number plates had been taken off, but were in the car. Dr. O'Leary is a practicing physician here. He said today that the car had been brought to Newburg by John O'Leary, another brother.

REA AND WILLARD DROPPED BY M'ADOO

On all of these points, however, Director General McAdoo remained silent today and refused to discuss the reports which were heard on every side.

Mr. McAdoo today announced the selection of two more Regional Directors. After June 1 the Southern region will be in charge of B. L. Winchell, who has resigned as Director of Traffic of the Union Pacific and severed all of his connections with other corporate interests. Mr. Winchell will have offices at Atlanta. He was a former President and General Manager of the Kansas City, Fort Worth & Memphis system; President of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, and President of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad.

N. D. Maher, President of the Norfolk & Western Railway, was appointed Director of the Pocahontas region, with offices at Roanoke, Va. He will have supervision over the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway east of Louisville, Ky., Columbus, and Cincinnati; the Chesapeake & Ohio Northern, the Norfolk & Western Railway, and the Virginian Railway. In addition, the Pocahontas region will include the terminals and harbor operations of all lines reaching Hampton Roads.

The selection of Federal Managers who will be in charge of the operation of the individual lines and report to the regional Directors is being studied with the greatest care by Mr. McAdoo, his regional Directors, and the members of his Advisory Council. It will be the purpose of the Railroad Administration in this way to obtain the services of the men who have been active in the operating end of the systems and men who have exhibited the spirit of co-operation with the Government officials since the railroads came under their control.

It is understood that a number of the railroad Presidents who have not been in direct charge of operations have expressed the desire to remain at the head of their corporations rather than be named as Federal Managers, as they consider that they will have work of the most vital importance to the stockholders, to perform in the former capacity. All of these questions will be taken into consideration.

All Freight Charges in Cash.

Another sweeping order, which will have a far-reaching effect, was issued today by Mr. McAdoo placing all transportation charges strictly upon a cash basis. It was stated frankly that this was done to make it impossible for railroads to demand cash of some shippers and extend credit to others, a practice which Mr. McAdoo believes permitted much unfair discrimination.

The new regulations will go into effect on July 1. The first intimation that such an order would be promulgated was given on May 20, and there have been protests lodged by a number of shippers, some of them affiliated with the National Shippers' Association of Chicago and other organizations. To all such protests Mr. McAdoo, however, has turned a deaf ear. As a warning to the railroads and shippers Mr. McAdoo authorized this statement by C. A. Prouty, Director of the Division of Public Service and Accounting of the Railroad Administration:

"The Director General is about issuing an order putting the payment of all transportation charges upon a cash basis, and is especially desirous that this shall result in as little inconvenience as possible to the public. The rule should be interpreted in a practical, business way. If, for example, the consignee who is financially responsible is accustomed to send for his freight in the morning, and the collection of the freight charge is effected in the afternoon, that should be treated as a cash transaction, so long as the consignee continues to pay his freight charge promptly upon presentation of the freight bill. Similar application of the rule should be made in the collection of a prepaid charge from a shipper. That is to say, payment of such a charge, if made on the day the shipment is forwarded, will be treated as a cash transaction.

"The enforcement of the cash rule will require payment by the shipper and consignee, for the most part, without opportunity for the correction of errors in the freight bill, but in all cases where a mistake is obvious or where it is plainly indicated upon the face of the bill, the agent should make the correction before exacting payment.

"The Director General is also anxious that the public shall understand that the reason for the promulgation of this order is to prevent discrimination between shippers and consignees. The extending of credit in the payment of transportation charges to one person while it is denied to another results in a preference in favor of the person to whom credit is given. While repeated attempts have been made in the past to check this evil, competitive conditions have rendered it impossible to do so. At the present time many shippers and consignees, especially large ones, enjoy with respect to many of their freight bills a credit not only of days but of weeks and sometimes of months. There seems to be no way of dealing with this except to enforce the cash rule.

"The Director General further instructs me to say that he has under consideration rules, which will be promulgated in the near future, touching upon the settlement of overcharges and claims for loss and damage, which he believes will result in the prompt and fair disposition of such matters with a minimum of inconvenience to the public."

Rea and Willard Out.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been deposed of any connection with the operation of the line under the Government. Mr. Rea was called to Washington last Monday and told that his services as operating head of the Pennsylvania System were no longer desired. The same notice was given to Daniel Willard to step out of the operating affairs of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, of which he is President.

So far as can be learned, Director General McAdoo advanced no reason for his action. The order was conveyed through Walker D. Hines, Assistant Director General. The two Presidents will give up the operating reins when Charles H. Markham, newly appointed Director of the Allegheny Region, embracing this district, assumes control about June 1.

It was generally believed Mr. Rea would be named Federal Manager of the Pennsylvania to co-operate with Mr. Markham. The fact of Mr. Rea's long association with the operation of the Pennsylvania inspired the belief that his services would be invaluable to the Government at this time.

Mr. Rea will continue to act as the corporation's President. In this capacity he will have charge of protecting the interests of the stockholders. This includes the management of the income from property owned by the system. Control of the railroads by the Government has split the conduct of the business into two parts—operating and corporate. The Government's control extends only to the physical operation. It has no authority to dispose of property owned by the corporation, such as income from securities, rentals from buildings, &c.

It is to care for this corporate end of the business that Mr. Rea will be retained. Whereas actual appointment to this office has not taken place, it is a foregone conclusion among interests in a position to know that the Directors will ratify this program at their next meeting, June 12.

A week ago last Wednesday Mr. Rea started on an inspection trip over the lines of the system. He received word in Pittsburgh on Sunday to report to Director General McAdoo on Monday morning. Mr. Rea was there on time, and in the ante-room he found Daniel Willard. A request for Mr. McAdoo elicited the information that the Director General was ill and could not see them. However, Mr. Hines appeared and explained that the services of neither executive were required under the Government program. At that time also it was explained that the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio systems were to be cut in half at Pittsburgh, with Charles H. Markham as Regional Director for this territory.

Much speculation has arisen as to the actual reason for the discharge of Mr. Rea, and conclusions have been drawn as to a possible similarity of some clash of authority as occurred in the case of C. W. Huntington, President of the Virginian Railway, who was relieved from duty for a supposed failure to co-operate with the national railroad program.

For years the Pennsylvania has not been on good terms with the Interstate Commerce Commission, on account of the fact that it took the lead in fighting for increases in freight rates. Mr. Rea usually opened the case for the lines and some of his comments were understood to have irritated members of the commission.

Titus Left More Than $25,000.

The will of ex-Police Inspector George F. Titus, who died on May 7, disposes of an estate of more than $25,000. Mrs. Julia T. Titus, the widow, receives $20,000 cash and all personal effects, and the remainder of the estate goes to Anna W. Titus, their child. They are the only heirs-at-law.

SHORT LINES WORRY McADOO

Counselor Payne Outlines a Scheme for Taking Them Over.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—In a letter to Senator Overman of North Carolina today, John Barton Payne, General Counsel of the Division of Law of the Railroad Administration, dwelt upon the difficulty confronting the Administration in taking over the short-line railroads, authority for which was granted to the Railroad Administration under the law passed last Winter. The problem of increased rates and wages, Mr. Payne pointed out, has been perplexing, owners of the short-line railroads feeling that they ought to be allowed increases proportionate to those made in the trunk lines.

Owing to the difficulties of adjustment, Mr. Payne said, the Administration had not as yet taken over the short-line roads. In his letter Mr. Payne outlined a scheme evolved by the Railroad Administration for taking them over, and asked that Congress express its opinion of it. Mr. Payne wrote:

"I call your attention to the very great difficulties which the Railroad Administration confronts with reference to the short-line roads. You know that many people believe that the Government should take these roads and operate them. Many of them are not necessary for any Government purpose, but it is a matter of profound interest that they be continued in operation, because they serve the highest need of many local communities. What is best has been given the Director General and his staff great anxiety. I submit the following suggestions as a solution of the problem:

"(a) If the roads are taken over by the Government there will be an immediate raise in wages of all employes in keeping with the wage adjustment which has just been made with the trunk lines, and there will be a demand for an improvement in service and an improvement in general conditions on the line so as to bring the roads up to the standard of the trunk lines. This will be due to the fact that they are under Government control and that the Government should treat everybody alike.

"(B) It seems to me that the roads themselves, the communities, and the Government will be benefited if the following happens:

"(1) That the Government see that the short-line roads have a fair division of the joint rates; in many cases heretofore they have not enjoyed a fair division.

"(2) Also an increase in rates—this must be by the State Commissions—so as to keep them on a parity with the rates on the trunk lines which must be raised to meet existing conditions; also the Government will see that the roads are furnished so far as is possible with an adequate supply of cars, so that they may serve the public, and that the freight shall not be so routed as to discriminate against these lines.

"Please advise me whether, in your opinion, if the Administration adopts such a policy as is here outlined, it will not best serve the public and the Government."

Senator Overman has submitted the letter to the Committee on Railroads which will consider a reply.

Senator Cummins of the Interstate Commerce Committee offered a resolution in the Senate today calling upon the Railroad Administration to furnish the Senate a copy of the agreement between the Government and each railroad as to compensation under Government operation of roads, also the names of carriers, if any, that have failed to enter into the agreement.

POLA RAIDERS PRISONERS.

Pellegrini and His Men Are Safe, Italian Embassy Learns.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Definite announcement that Commander Pellegrini and his men, who torpedoed an Austrian battleship in the harbor of Pola May 14, were taken prisoners was contained in a cable dispatch to the Italian Embassy today from Rome.

Press dispatches have said that it was not known definitely what became of the Italian commander and his men, who entered the harbor in a small craft which they sank after torpedoing the battleship.

MISS STINSON MAKES NEW FLYING RECORD

LANDS AT BINGHAMTON

Lack of Gas Forces Her to Make Descent, Which Damages Machine —Will Complete Trip Today.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 23.—Katherine Stinson, who left Chicago this morning with Government mail for New York, landed two miles north of this city at 6:50 this evening. She met with an accident while attempting a landing, the machine turning turtle just as it reached the ground. The propeller was smashed and one of the wings damaged. Miss Stinson was uninjured.

Having covered the 783 miles from Chicago to this city in ten hours, Miss Stinson bettered the distance made by Ruth Law in her record-breaking flight in the Fall of 1916 by about nine miles. She circled the city in search of a suitable landing place, and finally picked out a small plateau on a high hill north of the city. A strong wind added to the difficulties of the landing.

Hundreds of automobiles raced to the landing place and help was at hand soon after the plane came to a stop. Miss Stinson directed the work of righting the machine, apparently none the worse for her mishap.

Although keenly disappointed because of her failure to reach the metropolis, Miss Stinson was elated at having smashed two American records, one for distance and another, held by herself, for endurance.

Will Complete Trip Today.

After being brought by automobilists to a hotel here, she stated that repairs to her plane will be made during the night, and that she will be ready to resume her journey to New York at 8 o'clock in the morning. A new propeller will be forwarded from Elmira, and the slight damage to the machine will be repaired by local machinists.

The previous distance record, Miss Stinson stated, was held by Bounds, an American aviator. This was for 700 miles without a stop. She bettered this record by eighty-three miles today. The endurance record established by Miss Stinson in her flight from San Diego to San Francisco, on Dec. 11 of last year, was bettered by her performance of today by one hour and five minutes.

Miss Ruth Law's flight over the same route two years ago to Binghamton, Miss Stinson pointed out, was not a non-stop flight, Miss Law having landed before reaching this city.

Lack of gas forced her to land here, Miss Stinson explained. She decided to land on the side hill because it had a level appearance and she thought that the drainage would be sufficient to remove any danger of mud. In this she miscalculated, for the muddy soil proved her undoing. The wheels of the plane became imbedded and this caused it to topple over.

"You may tell the mothers of any young man in the flying service for me that there is no necessity for them to worry about their boys," Miss Stinson stated. "My flight today proves that long distances may be covered with little danger."

Interviewers were forced to shout their question to the aviatrix because the roar of the motor during her long period in the air had rendered her almost deaf.

Left Chicago at 7:37 A. M.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Katherine Stinson left from Grant Park at 7:37 this morning unannounced. In addition to sixty-one letters she carried a message from Frank O. Wetmore, Chairman of the Red Cross campaign here, to Secretary McAdoo, telling of the success of the drive in this city. Miss Stinson said she expected to arrive at Garden City, Long Island, about 8:30 in the evening.

Her rations for the flight consisted of three handfuls of malted milk tablets. In waving farewell to Captains Richard Poillon and L. A. Donahue of aviation headquarters, she remarked, "One handful is my breakfast, one is my luncheon, and the third is my dinner."

Miss Stinson's start was made after more than a week's delay. First, she was required to obtain a special permit from the War Department, and then she had to be sworn in as a special Post Office messenger. These commissions were received yesterday.

The morning was perfect for the flight. Miss Stinson was swathed in woolens and leather when she took the air. The only persons to see her leave were Postmaster Carlisle and a few invited guests.

When on Nov. 20, 1916, Miss Ruth Law glided her obsolete 100-horse power "pusher" airplane to a landing on Governors Island after a flight from Chicago, it was announced that she had established an American non-stop cross country record, the world's record for women, and the second best world cross country non-stop record. Miss Law left Chicago at 8:25 A. M. (Eastern time) and reached Hornell, N. Y., at 2:10 P. M., a distance of 590 miles from Chicago. She remained in Hornell just one hour and fourteen minutes and took to the air again, making Binghamton, ninety miles further, at 4:20 P. M. She spent the night there and the next morning started away again at 7:23 7:23, and at 9:37 landed on Governors Island.

In making the non-stop trip to Hornell Miss Law broke the non-stop cross-country record that had just been made in the first Chicago-New York flight for THE YORK NEW TIMES by the late Victor Carlstrom,, who flew from Chicago to Erie, Penn., a distance of 452 miles.

Carlstrom was forced to interrupt what was a record trip because of a leak in a gasoline pipe.

The only aviator said to have flown further than Miss Law was Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal of the French Army, who on June 20 and 21 last flew from Nancy, France, to Chelm, Poland, a distance of 812.5 miles.

Miss Law had mapped out her course carefully. She was forced to alight at Hornell because of lack of fuel and as soon as her tanks were refilled she took to the air again. In describing the flight from Binghamton to Governors Island Miss Law said that she was coming down the Hudson, opposite the city, when her engine began to miss fire, warning her that her gasoline supply was becoming exhausted. Instead of coming down she used what fuel she had to go higher and when at a sufficient height she shut off the power and slid down the air to a safe landing on the island.

There was considerable disappointment at the aviation field here when it was learned that Miss Stinson had met with an accident near Binghamton. About 6 o'clock a few of the aviators were flying about the field, waiting for the expected arrival of the young aviatrix. They remained aloft for an hour or more, when word was received of her delay and they returned to the field.

Postmaster McDermott of Hempstead was at the field to receive the mail which Miss Stinston is carrying, and will return tomorrow if the trip is to be continued.

HOOVER SAYS WORLD MUST GET FOOD HERE

Declares the United States Will Be Last Source of Supply When the War Ends.

The world duty of the United States is to build up its food resources so as to stand ready for any demand made by the Allies on this country, said Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover yesterday in addressing a large gathering of farmers and dairymen at the National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition held at the Grand Central Palace.

"It is of no purpose to send millions of our best men to France if we fail to maintain the strength of their men, women, and children on our lines of communication," he said. "After the war the time will come when we will need to replenish their herds from our own cattle, and we will need to supply the whole world. The United States is the last reservoir of men, the last reservoir of ships, the last reservoir of munitions, and the last reservoir of food upon which the allied world must depend if Germany is to be defeated and if we are to be free men."

Therefore it devolved on America, Mr. Hoover said, to maintain its present great potential strength in herds, which, if once lost, could not be re-established. He declared that not only must our herds be maintained as a guarantee to our allies, but they will be vital in the world's regeneration.

Mr. Hoover, addressing yesterday more than 200 of the 1,000 east side bakers who are on strike, appealed to them to end their strike by accepting an award of mediation which in part meets their wage demands.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

LAND ARMY INCORPORATES.

Will Aim to Supply Woman Farm Workers for New York State.

With the view of organizing units of women for farm work in Westchester County, the New York State Woman's Land Army has filed a certificate of incorporation at White Plains, with principal office in the White Plains Court House. Its objects are to respond to the appeal of the Government for increased food production through self-sustaining groups or units of women for farm work, to distribute and assist in distributing such units or individual workers to such farming districts in New York State as may most need their services; to co-operate with the national organization doing similar work, and with any other public or private organizations or agencies.

MAYOR NAMES MAGISTRATE.

Francis Mancuso Will Fill Vacancy Caused by Resignation.

Francis X. Mancuso, for the last thirty days a temporary Magistrate, and former Assistant District Attorney under District Attorney Swann, was appointed yesterday a permanent Magistrate by Mayor Hylan.

Magistrate Mancuso, who lives at 246 East 115th Street, and has a law office at 95 Liberty Street, will probably preside today at the Jefferson Market Court.

He was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Magistrate Edward Boyle, who resigned as a Magistrate when he was appointed a Municipal Court Justice more than a month ago.

Georgia Negro Lynched by Mob.

CORDELE, Ga., May 23.—James Cobb, the negro taken from the jail here by a mob shortly after midnight, was carried to the scene where he attacked and killed Mrs. Roy Simmons, seven miles east of Cordele, and hanged to a tree.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

By Lieut.-Colonel JOHN McRAE
(Died while on duty in Flanders)

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

—From London Punch.

In this spirit men are giving their lives—How can we hesitate to give our money? Give, give to the Red Cross! Give till your heart says Stop!

No single agency in the world is doing more to keep up the spirit of the fighters at the front, to bring cheer to the stricken, to heal the millions of broken hearts and torn limbs, to keep alive the spirit of brotherly love, than the American Red Cross.

The American Red Cross is maintained by popular subscription only. It's your dollar and our dollar that makes this work possible.

First contribute all the cash that you can in the form of subscriptions to the American Red Cross. Then take advantage of this offer which certain druggists in New York City who have pledged 10% of their receipts tomorrow have been authorized to make.

There must be a lot of things sold in the drug store that you need in your home, drugs, remedies, toilet needs, soaps, tooth brushes, hair brushes, toilet powders, stationery, rubber goods or nursery supplies. Take advantage of our regular Week-end Food Specials, tea, coffee, cocoa sold at reduced prices.

YOU MIGHT JUST AS WELL buy and thus contribute 10c of every dollar that you spend just as surely as though you had sent it to the Red Cross yourself.

This same plan of giving ten cents of every dollar received is not alone in effect in the Liggett Stores, but in every drug store in New York City that signifies its intention to donate 10% of its receipts by displaying the official sign which we reproduce at the heading of this announcement.

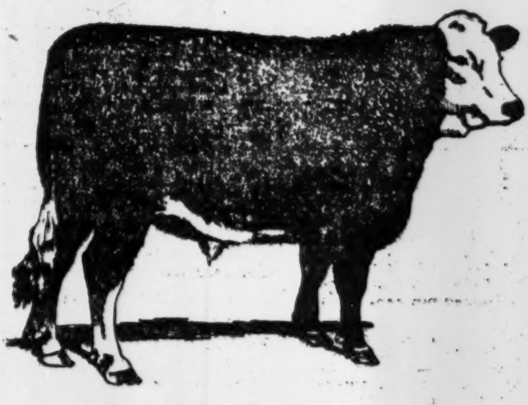
Only About Half the Steer is Beef



Live Weight 1200 pounds
100%

Dressed Weight 672 pounds of Beef
56%

When Swift & Company buys a steer weighing 1200 pounds, only about 672 pounds goes to market as beef; the other 528 pounds consists of hide, fats, other by-products, and waste.

When the packer pays 15 cents a pound for a steer, he sells the meat to the retailer for about 24 cents. But the packer gets only about 6 cents a pound for the other 528 pounds.

This means that the packer gets about 16 cents a pound for all the products from a steer for which he pays 15 cents.

The difference of 1 cent per pound covers the cost of dressing, preparation of by-products, freight on beef to all parts of the United States, operation of distributing houses, and leaves a net profit of only about ¼ of a cent per pound on all dressed beef sold.

Large volume of business and utilization of parts that were formerly wasted, make this achievement possible.

GIANTS TRIUMPH IN FOURTEENTH INNING

Doubles by Zimmerman and Fletcher and Holke's Single End Long Contest.

CARDS USE THREE PITCHERS

Tesreau and Anderson, However, Prove Equal to Task of Winning for New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—It took the Giants fourteen innings to wrest a victory from the Cardinals by a score of 6 to 4 in the final game of the series today. The Cardinals expended three pitchers in a vain attempt to check the Giants, using Jakie May, Bill Doak, and Bill Sherdell, while Jeff Tesreau and Fred Anderson worked for the Giants.

Hendrick's men got away to a two-run lead in the first inning on a single by Smith and Walton Cruise's smash into the right field stand.

The Giants collected their first run in the second inning. Holke drew a pass. McCarty fouled to Snyder, after which the attention of the umpire was called to the fact that McCarty had batted out of turn. Rodriguez, whose place the catcher had usurped, was declared out and McCarty, ordered to bat again, singled to centre. Tesreau followed with a single to right, scoring Holke.

The Giants scored again in the sixth. Holke doubled to right and reached third when Paulette, fielding Rodriguez's bunt, threw to Baird too late to head off the runner. Rodriguez stole second, and when Snyder's throw went into centre field Holke scored. Rodriguez raced for third on the error, but Smith, who retrieved the ball, threw him out.

The Mound City crew pulled up one notch in the seventh, tallying on Paulette's double to right, Wallace's out, and Snyder's single through the box. They knotted the count in the eighth, errors by Fletcher and Rodriguez figuring in the scoring of the tying run.

Hornsby was sent up as a pinch hitter for Doak and singled to centre, and Packard was sent in to run for him. Fletcher fielded Smyth's grounder and stepped on second to force Packard, but the runner was declared safe when the ball dropped from Fletcher's hand. Smith's sacrifice advanced the runners, after which Baird hit to Fletcher and Packard was thrown out at the plate. Rodriguez booted Cruise's grounder and Smyth dashed over the plate with the run that put the teams on an even basis.

PIRATES BOW TO PHILLIES.

Mayer's Wildness Troublesome, but Pittsburgh Fails to Hit.

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—Philadelphia and Pittsburgh closed a three-game series today, the visitors winning 3 to 2. Mayer, who pitched for Philadelphia, was wild, passing eight men and hitting two, but he was effective with men on the bases.

Bancroft's error in the second gave the home team its two runs and, but for this fact, Pittsburgh would have been shut out.

BRAVES MAKE SERIES EVEN.

Hit Eller Hard in Two Innings, Downing Matty's Men, 4 to 3.

CINCINNATI, May 23.—Boston evened up the four-game series today by hitting Eller hard in two innings. Hearn was hit safely thirteen times, but kept the blows well scattered, and his control was perfect.

His double in the eighth started the inning rally. J. Smith's two errors each cost a run, but his single in the eighth sent in the tying and winning tallies.

WEAVER BAFFLES BROOKLYN

Young Cub Pitcher Keeps Dodgers at Bay and Wins, 5 to 0.

CHICAGO, May 23.—The Robins were completely mystified by the pitching of Chicago's young pitcher, Weaver, here this afternoon, the recruit holding Brooklyn to four hits in a 5 to 0 shutout. Dan Griner pitched seven innings for Brooklyn, and the Cubs had no trouble in bunching hits when they needed runs. The Dodgers played perfect ball in the field, but were helpless before Weaver's twirling, Olson, Myers, Johnston and Griner getting the only hits.

The Cubs greeted Griner with a brace of hits in the first inning. Flack singled to left and Olson threw Hollocher out at first, Flack going to second. Merkle smashed a two-bagger to right, sending Flack home. In the third inning the Dodgers had a chance but failed to get a run across. Krueger walked, and went to second on Griner's single. Both runners advanced on Olson's out. O'Mara rolled to Hollocher, who threw Krueger out at the plate, Griner going to third. On an attempted double steal Griner was nipped sliding home.

In the fourth, with one out, Paskert singled to centre. Deal was out at first, Paskert going to second and scoring on Zeider's single to centre. Hollocher walked in the sixth and Mann singled to left. Merkle sent the runners along with a sacrifice. Paskert grounded to O'Mara and Hollocher was out at the plate. Mann then counted on a double steal.

The Cubs were busy again in the seventh. After Zeider walked, O'Farrell sacrificed and Weaver fanned. Flack singled to left, scoring Zeider, and went to second on the throw in. Flack went to third on Griner's wild pitch and scored on Hollocher's single.

RED SOX GET ONLY ONE HIT.

Morton Holds Sway from Mound and Indians Win, 1 to 0.

BOSTON, May 23.—Guy Morton held Boston to one hit today, Cleveland winning 1 to 0 and taking two out of three for the series. It is the first home series Boston has lost this year.

In the seventh Strunk sent a Texas League single over Chapman's head, too weak for Wood to catch. Chapman singled in the fourth, and, after Speaker had flied to Whiteman, Roth's double off the scoreboard in left scored Chapman with the only run of the game.

M'NAMARA, PAIRED WITH HAGEN, WINS

Latter Is Low Man in Pro Four-Ball Golf Match, Which Barnes and Nicholls Lose.

Even though he had never seen the course before, Walter Hagen was low man in a professional four-ball golf match at the Apawamis Club yesterday afternoon. The North and South champion, with Tom McNamara as partner, defeated the English pair, Jim Barnes and Gil Nicholls, 3 up and 1 to play. Hagen was credited with a round in 73; Nicholls, 75; Barnes, 76, and McNamara, 78.

As far as being unfamiliar with the course goes, yesterday's play at Apawamis was also Barnes's first experience. Incidentally the Western open title holder had hard luck in that his three longest drives got him into trouble. From the seventh tee he "stung" the ball so viciously that it never stopped going until it reached the rough well into the gorge. The drive was close to 300 yards. A little later from the tenth tee his ball rolled into the pond, a hazard that in days gone by has caught hundreds of pulled second shots.

It was from the seventeenth tee, however, that the tall Briton hit a ball that made the gallery gasp. Straight down the course the sphere flew, finally stopping within a yard of the old cross bunker. The hole is 537 yards, and had Barnes's ball been a few feet shorter he probably would have been able to get home with a cleek. As it was in trying to get distance he failed to get the ball up sharply enough to clear the hazard. This drive, too, was close to the 300-yard mark.

Throughout the match Hagen and Nicholls were never far behind Barnes, and at the seventeenth hole the two first named were over the green on their second shots. Even if he was on the losing side, Nicholls flashed brilliantly on several occasions. A fifteen-foot curling putt enabled him to win the fourth hole in 3, a stroke under par, and he supplemented that with another birdie at the short fifth, holing a chip shot from off the green's edge for a 2.

At the turn the sides stood all square, but Hagen soon changed this aspect by laying an approach shot close up at the tenth and winning with a 3 there, while at the twelfth, after failing to drive the green, he chipped in with his mashie for a 2. That made the homebreds 2 up, and they always looked like winners thereafter, even though Nicholls did win the thirteenth in 3. With threes at the 217-yard sixteenth, where their opponents overdrove the green, Hagen and McNamara became dormie. The latter pair completed the job by winning the seventeenth, McNamara getting a 4.

FORDHAM SHUT OUT AGAIN.

Mt. St. Joseph's College Gets Lone Tally in First Inning.

Fordham was blanked yesterday afternoon on Fordham Field by a 1 to 0 score for the second time in two days. The nine from Mt. St. Joseph's College of Baltimore applied the whitewash, and, as happened in the Fort Slocum game, the lone but potential tally secured in the first inning was enough to win the game.

In this frame McGuire was hit by Martin, stole second and third, and scored when Lefevre let Galligan's high peg get by him. Abbott was nailed at home in the eighth when he tried to score from second on a single, Ganon making a perfect throw. Brooks was too effective in the pinches to allow scoring, although Fordham filled the bases in the fourth.

Martin retired in favor of Halloran in the fourth with the bases filled, and Halloran allowed four hits for the rest of the game.

CITY COLLEGE VICTORIOUS.

Lavender Nine Finds Cathedral College Easy and Wins by 8 to 2.

City College took the measure of the Cathedral College nine yesterday in the City College stadium by the score of 8 to 2. The Washington Heights team downed the conquerors of Columbia in easy fashion. Errors by the visitors contributed largely to their defeat, seven blunders being chalked up against them. Thomas, who was on the mound for the Lavender, held his opponents to five scattered hits.

YALE CREWS OFF FOR RACE.

Second 'Varsity and Freshman Eights Leave for Harvard Contests.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 23.—The Yale second 'Varsity and freshman crews left here this afternoon for their races Saturday on the Charles with Harvard. As usual, Yale has arranged races for both 'Varsity and freshman crews with its ancient rival, but the first 'Varsity event will take place on the Housatonic River a week later.

Practically no change has been made in the freshman eight since its losing race on the Schuylkill two weeks ago. Coxswain Carson has been elected Captain and Stroke Heminway, a 143-pound oarsman, is relied upon by Coach Mather Abbott to give the shell drive enough to get over the finish line first. The freshmen showed great possibilities in their race with Pennsylvania, but rowed that contest like an inexperienced eight and lost.

The freshmen's chances for victory at Boston are stronger than those of the second 'Varsity, which has lost Stroke Austin, who was promoted to the first eight. Price, however, of the first shell, has been sent back to 5 in the second eight. S. B. Dexeter, who has been a substitute, has been placed at stroke, although he has had little experience. Another substitute, Campbell, has been placed at 6. In his preparatory school rowing at Duluth he received the coaching of Ten Eyck. Patterson has gone into the shell at 4, displacing Borders, who has gone to 3, and another substitute, Du Pont, has displaced Rostand.

CORNELL HAS TRIAL SPIN.

'Varsity and Cub Crews Prepare on Carnegie Lake for Tiger Race.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 23.—The Cornell 'Varsity and freshman crews held a trial spin over the Carnegie Lake course this afternoon, in preparation for their dual regatta with the Tigers on Saturday. They arrived here about noon, and their shells having arrived the day previous, everything was in readiness for them to commence applying the finishing touches to their development. Following the practice the oarsmen declared they found the conditions on Carnegie Lake very similar to those to which they are accustomed.

The Princeton oarsmen held their last hard workout of the season this evening, and will complete their season's work tomorrow with a very brief practice. The Ithacans will probably hold two practices tomorrow.

Coach Fitzpatrick expressed himself as satisfied with the new combination which he has had to piece out during the last two weeks. Gardner, No. 2, left college a little over a week ago to enter the fourth officers' training camp, Camp Grant, Illinois, and he has been replaced by Campbell, who rowed in the freshman eight last Spring. Duncan, who rowed at No. 5 in the Harvard and Childs Cup races, has been obliged to stop rowing, due to an injured knee. His place has been taken by Gregor, also a member of the freshman eight of last Spring.

Saturday's regatta will be the only one of Cornell's season, and the final one for the Tigers. The season has been a rather disappointing one for both universities, as nearly all of the experienced oarsmen are in service. None of the Cornell oarsmen have had any experience, and seven of them have never been out for the crew before this season. The Tigers are a little better off as regards material, but their eight is essentially a wartime crew, too.

GILMOUR VICTOR AT GOLF.

Leads Eastern Trade Players with Net 76 in Tourney.

Members of the Eastern Trade Golf Association took part in their Spring tournament on the links of the Upper Montclair Country Club yesterday. W. G. Gilmour won the Red Cross medal for the lowest net score. His card of 100, 24—76 led a field of about fifty contestants, and was 3 strokes better than his nearest rival, F. W. Broatch, who had 95, 16—79. Broatch, George H. Chasmar, a Washington golfer, with 84, 0—84, and E. J. Hughes, with 104, 20—84, were all awarded certificates.

Because of his modesty in only taking a 28-stroke handicap in the blind kickers' handicap event, W. H. Staples gained the prize. He was in a triple tie with C. A. Miller, who handicapped himself at 60, and G. G. Schmidt, who took 45. In the best-ball foursomes competition C. A. Geoghegan and C. A. Miller, with 103, 36—69, were the winners. The scores:

W. G. Gilmour, 100, 24—76; F. W. Broatch, 95, 16—79; George H. Chasmar, 84, 0—84; E. J. Hughes, 104, 20—84; J. B. Garfield, 86, 0—86; E. Chester, 121, 34—87; W. W. Hubbard, 102, 15—87; A. F. Armagnac, 97, 9—88; W. H. Staples, 107, 18—89; M. E. Conran, 115, 24—91; F. J. Oliver, 107, 14—93; C. A. Geoghegan, 133, 34—99; E. W. Wood, 120, 20—100; S. J. Cutting, 121, 20—101; J. Barnum, 141, 34—107; C. A. Miller, 139, 36—103.

LARGE CROWD AT BOUTS.

Amateur Contests Attract an Audience of 2,000 for Preliminaries.

A crowd of more than 2,000, probably the biggest that has ever witnessed an opening night's competition in a local amateur boxing tournament, last night saw Charles Pilkington of the Union Settlement A. C., New York State's amateur boxing champion at 125 pounds, defeat Frank Dispensa, a clubmate, in the ring of the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory. The boxers were opponents in one of the preliminary bouts of the 130-pound class, and, although Dispensa furnished an interesting brand of boxing, he was outclassed by the titleholder.

Another interesting bout came in this class when J. Sullivan, Trinity Club, won a three rounds decision over W. Levy, unattached. About fifteen other contests were held at 110, 120, and 140 pounds, and all were more than ordinarily interesting.

The tournament was held for the benefit of the 69th Regiment, New York Guard, and while no admission was charged the large crowd, a collection was taken up for funds with which to purchase athletic paraphernalia for the soldiers. More than $200 was realized. The finals will be held tomorrow night.

ELEVEN STAR BOUTS AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Array of Country's Ring Experts Will Fight at Red Cross Benefit.

Madison Square Garden this evening will be the scene of the greatest boxing carnival in the history of pugilism when a series of bouts will be held by the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team of the American Red Cross, for the purpose of increasing contributions to the second Red Cross war fund. Eleven bouts have been arranged, and all of them, it is particularly stated by the officials of the show, will be strictly on their merits. It is expected that the total returns from the show will reach nearer to $100,000 than the $50,000 originally stated as the probable financial goal. This prediction is made on the strength of the advance sale, which has far surpassed even what was hoped for by those behind the carnival. William Fox, Charles J. Harvey, Joseph Humphreys, and Charles Dosserick are the prime factors in the promotion of the bouts, and they reported yesterday that everything was in readiness for tonight.

One of the important contests will bring together Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, welterweight champion, and Jack Britton of Chicago, former holder of the title. In another Lew Tendler, Philadelphia's rising lightweight boxer, will face Mel Coogan of Brooklyn. Other leading lightweights, including Johnny Dundee, Willie Jackson, and Frankie Callahan, have been paired with formidable opponents, and the same is true of the middleweight, heavyweight, and bantamweight classes, all of which will be represented by some of their cracks.

Two of the heavyweight bouts will be between Jim Coffey, now a member of Uncle Sam's naval forces, and Battling Levinsky, instructor of boxing at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass., and Bill Brennan, recently enlisted in the navy, and Frank Moran, boxing instructor at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. In another Gunboat Smith, the California veteran, will oppose Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, who also recently enlisted in the navy.

The advance sale of tickets has been for reserved seats, but the admission tickets will be placed on sale tonight when the Garden opens, at 6 o'clock. There are about 2,000 of these, and they will go at $2 apiece. At 6:30 the band of the land battleship U. S. S. Recruit will give a concert, and at 7 a song concert will commence, in which many Broadway favorites will appear.

The bouts arranged are:

STAR HAMPTON HAS A LENGTH TO SPARE

Jeffords's Colt Outfoots Sanford's Yurucari in Colorado Stakes at Jamaica.

LARGE FIELDS PREVAIL

Kilmer and Wilson Colors Are Carried to Front for First Time in Present Season.

Walter M. Jeffords had the honor of capturing the first important stake for two-year-olds of the season yesterday when his colt, Star Hampton, by Star Shoot—Dorothy Hampton, reached the finish line a length ahead of John Sanford's Yurucari in the race for the Colorado Stakes, which carried a guaranteed value of $3,000.

The event, which was won last year by August Belmont's Lucullite, brought out the best field of youngsters that have gone to the post this season, and several of the contenders already had gained winning brackets. Star Hampton's performance in running second to John Sanford's Ute recommended him to many of the spectators, but the fact that Ute had been scratched and the bearing of the Sanford colors left to Yurucari caused the latter to be installed favorite, with Star Hampton a strong second choice. P. A. Clark's Lion d'Or and the Greentree Stable's Lad's Love, both winners at the meeting, were also supported.

Robinson, on Lad's Love, was wide awake at the start and shot into the lead, of which he was deprived after the first quarter when Star Hampton took command. Yurucari had a slice of ill luck and was knocked back so that he was almost in last position as the field swept around the bend. Star Hampton, meantime, raced Lad's Love into submission and entered the home stretch with a lead of three lengths. Kelsay had Yurucari in his stride by that time, and the Sanford colt ran over most of the contenders as soon as he found a straight path for home.

The lead of Star Hampton was too great to be overcome, however, and the son of Star Shoot maintained his advantage to the finish, where he had a length to spare. Yurucari beat the Casco Stable's Different Eyes by a length and a half for the place. Lad's Love was so used up from racing with the winner that he finished absolutely last.

Large fields in three of the events provided excellent sport, and, though only two favorites won, all the winners except one were well supported. Willis Sharpe Kilmer and R. T. Wilson, Jr., each had the pleasure of seeing his colors carried to the front for the first time this season. Mr. Kilmer captured the first event at five and a half furlongs with Nelsweep, which was admirably handled by Jockey Knapp.

Fairy Prince was the medium of the success of Mr. Wilson. This son of Olambala had the credit of defeating the largest field of the meeting, sixteen maiden two-year-olds going to the post under selling conditions. Johnny McTaggart showed a glimpse of his old form when he guided Fairy Prince through a narrow opening on the rail and got up just in time to win from J. O. Talbott's Milda. This was the second winner for McTaggart, as he had previously captured the second race in a big field with M. F. Bronner's Election.

The summaries:

SIR HENRY J. WOOD TO SUCCEED DR. MUCK

Noted British Conductor Accepts Offer of Boston Symphony Orchestra.

LONDON, May 24.—Sir Henry Joseph Wood has accepted an offer to become conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, according to this morning's Daily Telegraph, which says that he "may be relied upon to introduce to his new American public many works of the British composers."

Sir Henry will succeed Dr. Karl Muck, whose resignation as director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra was accepted on March 31, following his arrest at Boston as an enemy alien. Dr. Muck, the agitation against whom started at Providence, R. I., on Oct. 30, last, when he was accused of refusing a request to play "The Star Spangled Banner" at a concert, is now interned for the duration of the war.

Sir Henry was born in London on March 3, 1869, and when 10 years old became deputy organist at St. Mary's, Aldermanbury. He became a conductor in 1889, after giving organ recitals for several years. Since that time he has been constantly before the English public and in charge of some of the greatest orchestras of England. In addition, he has directed the presentation of notable concerts and superintended many musical festivals, the last of which was the Parsifal Tableux, given at the London Coliseum in 1913.

Sir Henry has been twice married. The first wife was Princess Olga Ourousoff of Podolia, Russia. She died in 1900. In 1911 Sir Henry was married to Miss Muriel, the daughter of Major Greatrex. He has two daughters.

ACTORS AND AUTHORS NOW HAVE A THEATRE

A Co-operative Organization at the Fulton Opens with a Double Bill.

One of the last deeds of the Authors' and Actors' Theatre, Inc., before their opening yesterday evening at the Fulton Theatre, was to release Edwin Milton Royle as director and take in his place Otis Skinner. The result, it may be assumed, was to increase the influence of the histrionic side of the new household. The event seems to have been somehow connected with the production of the chief item in the bill. "Her Honor, the Mayor," a comedy by Arline Van Ness Hines, is distinctly of the actor type of play. It abounds in "parts," with something doing on the stage all the time, and is conspicuously lacking in drama—which is the only means, in the theatre, of getting anything effectively done.

The things doing, moreover, are of no great novelty to the public, nor of any real credibility. Her Honor is a nice young thing who succeeds in getting herself elected as Mayor of a city in the Middle West. The women of the play, a full dozen of them, adore her and vote for her, but the men are a very bad lot, even for the males of feministic drama, and are bitterly opposed to her. There are, as a matter of fact, only five of them, not counting the butler; but these include an idiotically narrow-minded clergyman, a transparently villainous political boss, a jailbird relative, and a bloodthirsty district attorney, out for convictions. Her Honor spends the three acts of the "comedy" in dealing with these in a manner as high-handed and effective as it is unconvincing. They have only to make a stand before her to be knocked down. It is a form of sport in which the poor quarry hasn't the ghost of a show—a sort of game, hog pot hunting.

For some forty years before the winning of suffrage for women this kind of propaganda was familiar. But even a brief experience of the working of the real thing has brought a saddening conviction that men in politics are only too willing to make political eyes at the newly enfranchised, while it is their sisters, if anybody, who persist in voicing the cry that woman's sphere is the home. When we have a genuine "comedy" of the woman in politics we shall see the male politicians forming a flying wedge to prostrate themselves at her feet, while her dangerous enemies are of her own sex.

The leading rôle is what the French call a false good part. Laura Nelson Hall is one of the most personable and charming of our actresses and a thorough mistress of her art. But, though occupying the centre of the stage for the major part of three acts, and always triumphant, the final impression was curiously unimpressive. There are few things more fatal to an actor than to be always doing things without ever giving the impression of anything really done. In her support were many excellent artists, including Amelia Summerville, Ada Gilman, Etienne Girardot, C. H. Meredith, J. Irving Southard, Auriol Lee, and Zola Talma; but they shared in the prevailing effect of unreality.

The main piece was preceded by "The Good Men Do," which the program called "an indecorous epilogue." The scene is the hall of Shakespeare's house on the day of his death, and the action shows the bickerings of his puritanical family, who are represented as ashamed of his life as a dramatist and mainly interested in the disposition of his will.

The facts presented are faithful to the records collected in Lee's biography, and the intended effect of grim irony is successfully achieved; but the essential verity of the whole is very seriously open to question. Whatever else Shakespeare may have been, he was the leading citizen of Stratford, and a man with an uncommon faculty for making himself respected and loved.

The play is by Hubert Osborne, who wrote the romance "April," which lately departed this life at The Punch and Judy; and, like that piece, it is a product of the Harvard workshop theatre.

ELEVATOR RUNNERS STRIKE.

Hudson Terminal Employes Return to Work Soon After Quitting.

There was a short-lived strike of elevator operators and starters in the Hudson Terminal Buildings, 30 and 50 Church Street, yesterday. The men left their posts because of a misunderstanding. They believed they were not being considered in the readjustment of wages.

After a conference with President W. C. Fisk of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, the men returned to work. He explained to them that not all the questions have been settled in Washington and that in due course their affairs would be taken up.

'Doll's House' Matinee for Red Cross

A special matinee of "A Doll's House" will be given by Mme. Nazimova and her company at the Plymouth Theatre today for the benefit of the Red Cross. Various players will appear between the acts, including Mme. Andree Barlette of the Theatre Femina, Paris, who will read a note to the Kaiser in French.

Not a Pulmotor That Exploded.

A dispatch from Newport News, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 9, stated that the explosion of a pulmotor oxygen tank injured two naval surgeons and four enlisted men at the Naval Torpedo Station. It was not a pulmotor oxygen tank that exploded, but another device, not manufactured by the company making the pulmotor.

Acknowledgment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES received a check for $2 on Wednesday, May 22, from Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sawyer, 101 Sawkill Avenue, Milford, Penn., for Alma Gluck's Red Cross fund. The check has been forwarded to the American Red Cross.

EXPECTS FOUR SHIPS A DAY FROM YARDS

ORDERS 100 MORE VESSELS

Director General Starts to Carry Out His Pledge to Increase Production by 60 Per Cent.

Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, expects the shipyards of the country to turn over to the Government four ships, averaging 4,000 tons each, every day beginning June 1, according to Dr. Charles A. Eaton, head of the National Service Section of the United States Shipping Board, who returned yesterday from a four-day inspection trip with Mr. Schwab and Charles Piez, Vice President of the Fleet Corporation. The party visited the Great Lakes region and, inspecting nine of the section's fourteen yards, found the shipworkers enthusiastic and determined to increase the output of ships.

On his trip Mr. Schwab officially put into effect his plan to increase the shipbuilding program 60 per cent., and obtained from the Middle Western shipwrights a pledge that next year they would construct 1,000,000 tons of shipping additional to the vast tonnage they have already contracted to deliver. The Director General awarded contracts for the building of more than 100 extra ships, the vessels to average 4,000 tons and their construction to start immediately.

Dr. Eaton said that Mr. Schwab authorized him to announce that from April 20 to May 20 the shipbuilders had delivered for service more than 300,000 tons of shipping, an average of about 10,000 tons daily. He said that the Fleet Corporation expected the monthly output to increase steadily from now on.

The inspection trip, Dr. Eaton said, was undertaken in order that Mr. Schwab and Mr. Piez might establish personal relation with the workers and urge them to put every ounce of energy into their tasks. The party visited three yards at Cleveland, one each at Lorain, Elyria, and Toledo, Ohio, and arrived at Detroit in time to witness the launching of two vessels. As spokesman for Mr. Schwab, Dr. Eaton said:

"In all I think we talked to about 25,000 shipworkers. We were generally introduced to the men as the three Charlies, an allusion to our all bearing the same first names, which seemed to make a great hit with the men. On three of our four days on the road, the Director General himself made seven speeches at as many meetings, and whenever he took the platform the men would go wild.

"There would be shouts of 'Give us the steel, Charlie; we'll give you the ships!' and from the crowd men who formerly worked under Mr. Schwab at South Bethlehem would push up to the front for a handshake and a bit of gossip with 'the boss.' Several times Schwab left the platform and went down among the men. When he came back his hands were black with grease where the men had gripped him, his collar and linen were splotched with dirt, and in general he looked like 'one of the boys.' as he said he felt."

Dr. Eaton said that the newspapers were doing a great deal toward speeding up the ship program, and that the spirit of constructive criticism rather than partisan faultfinding was proving a great benefit to the morale of the workers. He added:

"I can truthfully say that today there is a spirit of harmony and co-operation pervading the building of ships that extends from the highest official in Washington down to the humblest workman in the yards. It is wonderful to see this at work in the yards, where hundreds of thousands work every day actuated forward by one impulse—winning the war by ships."

The yards of the Great Lakes region, Dr. Eaton said, stood at the head of all the shipbuilding plants. They were the best equipped, he said, their management was excellent, and the quality of their production the highest yet attained. Mr. Schwab, he said, had ordered that whenever another ship was added to the number under construction the shipbuilders must lay down an additional way.

According to Dr. Eaton, conditions between employes and employers everywhere were harmonious. He said that the men had adopted a rule of arbitrating their minor differences among themselves.

WORK IN SHIPYARDS ALL DAY SATURDAYS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Shipping Board may ask the workers in all shipyards to work a full day on Saturdays during June, July, and August to speed up the shipbuilding program. It is believed that materials soon can be supplied in quantities sufficient to keep the yards working on a full-time basis. Officials of the Shipping Board and of the Emergency Fleet Corporation believe that an appreciable increase in the tonnage produced can be obtained. There are at present about 300,000 men employed in the 132 yards doing Government work.

A telegram was received today by Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board, from the Executive Committee of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., proposing that the members of the union voluntarily work a full day on Saturdays for "straight time." While the offer will be accepted, the Shipping Board will not take advantage of the willingness of the men to sacrifice a part of their wages, and will pay time and one-half for the overtime.

The telegram from the Oregon union contained this resolution:

> Resolved, That we, the Metal Trades Council, in meeting assembled, recognizing the great need of our country for ships, and, actuated only by pure patriotic motives, do hereby submit to a vote of the local unions of the metal trades a proposition to waive the Saturday half holiday for the months of June, July, and August, 1918, and to agree to work on those Saturdays for straight time, if desired, it being understood that in waiving these holidays, already guaranteed us by the Macy award, we are not permanently surrendering any rights under that agreement. It is earnestly hoped and expected that this action will meet the approval and be concurred in by all union men and women of the entire country.

Chairman Hurley wired this reply:

"Each and every member of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., is to be congratulated on the broad patriotic stand they have taken in offering to work Saturday half holidays during the months of June, July, and August, and if necessary to agree to work on these Saturdays at straight time. At a meeting of the Shipping Board today, I was asked to send you the following resolution:

> That the United States Shipping Board, Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Charles M. Schwab, Director General, desire to express to the members of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., their sincere appreciation of the patriotic and cooperative spirit shown by their action in unanimously and enthusiastically agreeing to work on Saturday half holidays during the months of June, July, and August.

"You have set a standard of patriotism on the part of labor that will make the Portland Metal Trades Council stand out as a labor organization which has only one thought in mind, and that is winning the war."

The Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board wired this appreciation:

"The Executive Committee of the Metal Trades Council of Portland give an inspiring demonstration of patriotic purpose in submitting to a vote of the local unions the proposition to waive the Saturday half holidays for the months of June, July, and August. Their action will appeal to every loyal American citizen and will give heart to every American soldier at the front. Express to them the commendation and congratulation of the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board."

MORE SHIPS BUILT THAN U-BOATS SINK

MORALE OF CREWS GONE

Sea Made an Inferno for Underwater Pirates—Allies' Food Supplies Now Adequate.

LONDON, May 23.—The enemy is destroying British, allied, and neutral tonnage at the rate of about 3,500,000 tons yearly, while Great Britain and her allies and the neutral countries will very soon be producing tonnage at a rate of about 4,000,000 tons yearly, writes Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, in The Daily Telegraph. That favorable situation, he declares, should be reached in a few weeks, and thenceforward the upward curve in favor of the Allies should proceed in a manner to convince the Germans of their failure.

There are indications, the writer points out, that the Germans themselves realize that the submarine campaign was a political blunder. The allied navies have not been weakened, he notes, and the submarine, which brought America into the war, has not been able to interfere seriously with the transportation of American troops and material.

As a result of the elaborate preparations made by the Admiralty last year, Mr. Hurd comments, the sea is becoming an inferno for the submarine pirates, and the morale of the officers and men employed in the enemy's submarine service is steadily declining, as is shown by evidence of the most conclusive character.

The naval correspondent of The Daily News, analyzing the shipping losses for April, points out that the total of allied and neutral sinkings was hardly more than a third of that of a year ago, while there is not any likelihood, he says, that there has been any marked decrease in the shipping entering and clearing the ports of the United Kingdom.

Although the effects of blocking the bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend, and the placing of the great new minefield in the North Sea are not yet known, the Germans in the whole first quarter of 1918, the correspondent shows, sank little more shipping than they did last year in a single month, while the total losses for each quarter from April, 1917, up to the present have steadily fallen.

"We are entirely justified in believing this improvement will continue and be progressive," he writes.

Discussing the recent statement by Admiral von Capelle, the head of the German Admiralty, that the number of German submarines had increased, the correspondent declares that the rate of destruction of U-boats has now passed the rate of construction, and he asks why, if the number has grown, an increased number of U-boats is doing so very much less damage.

The correspondent gives several reasons for the lower rate of sinkings. Among these is the convoy system. Another is the arming of merchantmen, while the increased number of destroyers, patrol boats, and seaplanes is also a factor. Perhaps most important of all, he thinks, is the unification of command and methods in the Mediterranean. He also points to the increased demoralization and poor training of the German crews. Admiral von Capelle's confident words, he declares, are falsified by the facts.

The Daily News in an editorial draws a comparison between the economic conditions of the allied and enemy countries where the rations have been reduced, and says that thanks largely "to the splendid and self-sacrificing efforts of America" the food problem of the Allies is merely a problem of distribution. The supplies are adequate, it declares, and promise to remain adequate for every need. "The defeat of the submarine," it adds, "is at last becoming a visible reality."

NEW SHIPYARD DEAL.

$9,000,000 Corporation to Take Over Greenport Plants.

GREENPORT, L. I., May 23.—It is the belief in shipbuilding circles here that the end of this week will see the transfer of several of the most extensive shipyards to an unnamed corporation. The deal is said to include the Tuthill & Thorn shipyards and the Radel plant.

Very little could be learned concerning the corporation which is to take over the shipyards, except that it is capitalized at $9,000,000. To what use the corporation intends to put the yards is also unknown, but according to one report they will be used for the construction of steel trawlers. Another report says the yards will be turned over for Government work. The Tuthill & Thorn yard is one of the oldest and best-equipped in Eastern Long Island. It has a shore frontage of 1,000 feet.

69,000 SEAMEN INSURED.

Those Serving in Merchant Marine Carry War Risk Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The extent to which officers and men in the merchant marine have enjoyed the benefits of war risk insurance is indicated by figures of this line of business carried by the Government during the last year.

More than 69,000 officers and men serving on merchant ships have been insured since last June. These risks have been mainly for men whose service took them into and through the war zone. This insurance is handled by the Seamen's Insurance Division of the War Risk Bureau, where, during the year, policies to the aggregate amount of $115,000,000 have been written. In the year claims to the amount of $180,000 have been paid.

WAR SAVINGS PARADE.

Whitman to Take Part in Memorial Day Celebration.

The committee in charge of the sale of war savings and thrift stamps at the New York Public Library, Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, announced yesterday that with yesterday's receipts the total sale of stamps from the library steps would exceed $150,000. Hundreds of persons daily visit the library to view the miscellany of war savings posters, 200 more of which were added yesterday to an already extensive collection.

Governor Whitman, it was announced, will review the War Savings parade through the east side on Memorial Day. The parade will form in Rutgers Square, pass up East Broadway to Grand Street, to Essex Street, to Avenue A, to Fourteenth Street and down Second Avenue to Rutgers Square by way of Christie and Canal Streets. Governor Whitman will address a meeting in Rutgers Square.

The National War Saving Committee yesterday invited all singers who are familiar with the chorus part of "Elijah" to attend a rehearsal on Saturday at 4 o'clock at the College of Music, 128-130 East Fifty-eighth Street. "Elijah" will be presented as a part of the thrift festival to be held under the direction of Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, U. S. N., on June 2, at the Polo Grounds. The soloists will be Charles Harrison, Oscar Seagle and Leon Rothier, Mmes. Schumann-Heink, Sundelius, and Alda.

Hearing in Move to Bar German.

The Board of School Superintendents will hold a meeting today at 10 o'clock in the Board of Education Building, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, to consider a resolution offered by Superintendent J. L. Tildsley requesting the Board of Education to banish the German language study from the city high schools. Today's meeting will be for the purpose of giving the opponents of German a chance to be heard, and representatives of various patriotic organizations will be on hand.

HOUSE VOTES "DRY" ON BEER AND WINE

Passes Bill Calling for Prohibition of Use of Foodstuffs in Their Manufacture.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Power may be granted to President Wilson to enforce a measure approaching complete national prohibition during the war as a result of the action of the House today in adopting a prohibition clause in the Food Stimulation bill. By a vote of 178 to 137 the House amended the bill to provide that $6,000,000 of the appropriation shall not be available unless the President shall issue a proclamation prohibiting the use of foodstuffs and fruits in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes.

After the "dry" forces had succeeded in forcing into the bill the amendment, offered by Representative Randall, the House, by a vote of 231 to 64, passed the measure. It now goes to the Senate, where the "wets" will attempt to defeat the prohibition amendment.

The Randall amendment was accepted by the Committee of the Whole last Tuesday. Opposition to it immediately showed itself among the Administration forces, and spokesmen for the Administration were quoted as saying that the President was opposed to having the clause in the bill. Representative Candler of Mississippi, who sponsored the bill, himself a prohibitionist, fought the amendment, declaring it was not fair to the President to force him to settle a moral question.

Representative Candler would not admit on the floor that the President had formally declared his opposition to the clause, although members who had conferred with him say that he so informed them.

The Randall amendment provides that none of the $6,000,000 provided for field agent work in the Department of Agriculture shall be available unless the President shall prevent the use of foodstuff in the making of beer and wines. If this section should be accepted by the Senate, and the President approve the bill, there would be an instant closing down of the making of beer and wines, and, it is estimated, that the nation would be without any alcoholic beverages in another year. The production of whisky was stopped by the act of August, 1917, and reports show that the supply in the country will become exhausted in another year.

The Randall amendment reads:

> No part of this appropriation shall be available for any purpose unless there shall have been previously issued the proclamation authorized by Section 15 of the act of Aug. 10, 1917, entitled "An Act to Provide Further for the National Security and Defense by Stimulating Agriculture and Facilitating the Transportation of Agricultural Products," such proclamation being the prohibition of the use of foods, fruits, food materials, or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes.

The "wet" leaders are saying tonight that they are certain that the Senate will not accept the amendment and that the House conferees will recede on the clause, but obviously they are worried.

NEXT YEAR'S TAXES.

The argument in the affirmative for the postponement of the levy of next year's taxes until next year is the convenience of Congressmen. They are afraid equally to meet their constituents this Fall on their record on this year's taxes, or on the new taxes, which must be larger. The argument in the negative for present action is that the money is not necessary, and cannot be spent if voted. The Government has plenty of unissued bonds upon which it can borrow, and this year's experience shows that it is idle to vote funds which the productive capacity of the country cannot take up. But the proportion of bonds to taxes should be settled upon other considerations than the personal and political convenience of Congressmen, and this year's experience throws no light upon next year's expenditures. Increasingly, the Government's expenditures are of a sort not related to factory capacity, although it will continue to be a large proportion of the outgo. The army alone will need as much as this year's total expenditures. The shipbuilding program promises to take up more money than has hitherto been reckoned upon. The same is true of the airplane production, which now is entering upon its quantity stage. The expenses of the first half of the next fiscal year will approach the total of this year. There is no doubt that larger provision ought to be made. The only question is whether it should be made now or later.

Against the convenience of Congress should be set the convenience of the Treasury and the taxpayers. Congress has fallen into the habit of levying taxes retroactively. It is better that the taxes should look forward. The business on which the taxes will be collected is now being done in ignorance of what the taxes will be. It is not possible to keep the accounts according to the tax laws if the laws are not known. It is not possible to conduct business with suitable regard to economic or financial considerations unless the taxes are enacted before the taxes fall due. If it is possible for Congress to pass the new taxes promptly after the new year, it is equally possible for them to pass the taxes promptly now. In that case the Treasury and the taxpayers would be freed from the threat of such confusion as embarrassed the Treasury and business generally between October and April of this year.

Congressmen are wrong in thinking that the taxpayers' chief complaint, or the Treasury's, is the burden of the taxes. The complaint is of the bad methods of taxation, not of the amount. Everybody is prepared to pay higher taxes, but everybody wants to know what must be paid, and would be glad to have the tax law such that it could be understood by those desirous of complying with it. Business fears fixed burdens less than the certainty, if legislation is postponed now, that there will be agitation during the period of postponement for the convenience of Congress.

Congress has no prestige to support it in this matter. It confronts Secretary McAdoo, who has great prestige, and who is supported by the President. Congress has much to fear and nothing to gain from a controversy with them. It is not worthy of Congress to suggest that if it is forced into legislation against its convenience it will lay taxes obnoxious to the country, or heavier than the occasion calls for. The true policy for Congress is not to remedy bad tax legislation with worse, but with better. For that there is ample opportunity. There are plenty of home and foreign examples of taxes which Congress has avoided levying, as though willfully. There is no example in all tax history of a tax bill so chaotic and burdensome as the one from which business is now suffering. The proposal to prolong the present tax, and perhaps to repeat it in another tax passed under pressure of haste in the short session, cannot be approved. Congress is no better than other slackers if it botches its job for reasons of convenience to itself.

TRUST MR. HUGHES.

The letter of Mr. Hughes to the Attorney General, in which it is asked that their investigation of "the activities relating to aircraft production" may proceed "unembarrassed by any other parallel course of action," cannot be disregarded by the Senate, and it would be the part of wisdom for Mr. Chamberlain and others on the Military Affairs Committee who were contemplating an independent inquiry to relinquish or forego their plan. They can hardly do otherwise without losing public confidence, and this is so because there is no investigator whom the American people are more willing to trust than Charles Evans Hughes. He has a shining and unimpeachable record as a truth-seeker in dark places, and, besides, he sat with honor on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States.

When Mr. Hughes pledges himself to investigate aircraft production and scan the doings of all who have been connected with it, there is nothing more to be said. His competence has been convincingly proved, his energy is well known, his integrity scandal-proof. "We shall not," he says in his letter, "be able to ascertain whether there has been dishonesty or malversation of any kind unless we go thoroughly into all the transactions which have been had." He promises an "adequate" report, dispassionate and impartial and "confined to the facts," which means, in his case, that no man who has blundered will be spared and no man who has defrauded the Government will be allowed to escape. And Mr. Hughes points out that if there is an independent Senate inquiry there would be danger of bringing out something that "would at once suggest to the guilty, if there be such, where effort should be made to block successful prosecution." This seems to be unanswerable.

It is simply a question of believing in and trusting Mr. Hughes, and giving him a free hand. If the American people are ready to do that, what can anybody in the Senate propose that should make them draw back? Has the Senate any investigator like Mr. Hughes, as wise, as resourceful, as keen on a scent?

KICKING THE GRAVE.

This was the most unkindest cut of all,
For when the noble Caesar saw him stab—

Not that the Prohibition Party much resembles the noble Caesar, nor the Anti-Saloon League Brutus. Nor should we call it a stab that the league gives the expiring carcass of the party; it would be more accurate to call it a kick. The league sends out a notice to woman voters warning them against enrolling with the Prohibition Party, if they want to accomplish anything for prohibition. That last contemptuous wallop at the cadaver was certainly deserved, but seems almost unnecessary. It seems but yesterday, though it is twenty or more years ago, that the Prohibition Party was a thing seriously to be reckoned with. What killed it was the success of prohibition. As the country began to go prohibition the Prohibition Party waned and shriveled, until finally it became a bargain counter and we saw such amazing scenes as Sulzer and the unknown influences behind him bidding for the control of it.

When Clinton B. Fisk, John P. St. John, and John Bidwell were its standard bearers, when honest and earnest men planned and dreamed for it and thought they saw the coming realization of their dream in its constantly mounting vote, who would have expected such decay and demoralization, and, above all, who would have suspected that it would be prohibition that brought about the party's fall? Prohibition has steadily marched ahead, with its eyes fixed on the goal, disregarding utterly the pipings of the constantly dwindling wreck of a party by the roadside. And now the chief element in the prohibition struggle in this State warns all who have prohibition at heart to leave the poor thing alone.

Fallen at length
Its tower of strength,
Its sun is dimmed ere it had nooned;
The great Ahkoond of Swat
Is not!

WOMAN VOTERS SHOULD ENROLL.

Tomorrow the polls will be open all over the city for the enrollment of woman voters. This enrollment is to enable them to vote in the primaries for the nomination of candidates for Governor, State Senators, members of Congress, and the other offices to be filled at the November election. No one can vote in the primaries who is not enrolled.

The duty of participating in nominations is as great as the duty of participating in the final election. There is no way to prevent the nomination of unfit candidates and assure the nomination of good ones except by every good citizen's participation in the primaries where the nominations are made. Therefore every woman who takes her suffrage responsibilities seriously will enroll for the purpose.

The polls will be open from 8 A. M. until 10 P. M. Women who enroll will sign a statement saying that they intend "in general" to act with the Democratic, the Republican, or some other party. This does not commit them to the support of that party at the November election; it merely prevents them from voting in the primaries of any other party than the one they specify, and is intended to prevent misuse of the primaries. Any woman, however independent she may be in politics, may sign the statement with a free conscience, and unless she does sign it she is debarred from voting in the primaries.

IN AUSTRIA.

The division of Bohemia into twelve district governments is a German electoral and administrative gerrymander, long demanded, in principle, by the "bourgeois" Austrian Germans, and a fit new ally of the repression and oppression that have prevailed, steadily or sporadically, in the Magyar-German treatment of all the irredentist nationalities since the war began. Martial law, instituted in Croatia the other day, or in Galicia, or now introduced into parts of Bohemia, is but another vain effort in this redistribution of local governments and populations to keep the majority down. The struggle is long. Amid the economic and financial exhaustion of Austria and the shadowy, fading expectation of German military success on the western front, the only possible lifesaver for the Dual Monarchy, this nagging by the German Austrians seems pitiful, ghastly, the device of distracted and feeble men. If there is ever time for discretion in Austria, it is now.

Meanwhile, the main present facts in regard to Austria are that the South Slavs and the Czecho-Slovaks are united; that not merely the Slav Socialists but the German Socialists have been attacked by the agrarian reform program of the Czecho-Slovaks and South Slavs; that Bolshevism, at least the revolutionary spirit, is spreading by the return of soldiers from Russia as it had spread before by the example of Russia.

Agrarianism, socialism, irredentism: these are three forces variously strong, but all now working together for the dissolution of the Hapsburg Monarchy. What are constitutional changes, administrative readjustments, fresh expedients to give the German Nationalists more hold over the majority, the irredentist nationalities seeking to be nations? Austria-Hungary depends for the continuance of its superfluous existence upon the sword of its German suzerain in the west—German military or political, and perhaps social, revolution.

GIVE TO DEFEAT THE BOMBERS OF HOSPITALS.

How can anybody read the story of the American Red Cross workers going into the first-line trenches to serve coffee to soldiers about to start on patrol duty in No Man's Land and not make a contribution to the Red Cross War Fund? Not just enough to ease the conscience, but a sum that the heart speeds on its way.

The Red Cross workers are always noncombatants; they carry, not arms, but food and drinks, dry socks, and other things that sustain and cheer the soldiers when they make their hazardous dash for the trenches, while we at home are seated at well-provided and well-lighted tables, untroubled, comfortable, secure. "A cold, rainy night recently was marked," says a dispatch from Paris, "by activity of the Red Cross men. The soldiers had messed at 5:30 P. M. and would have had nothing to eat until 6 o'clock the next morning had it not been for the Red Cross workers." And some time between dark and dawn there were parties of American soldiers who went "over the top" to raid the enemy, that most nerve-racking and risky duty from which any man is fortunate to return on his feet and unscathed. On the cold, rainy night mentioned in the Paris dispatch the American soldiers who got back safe from the desperate venture in No Man's Land, with its black horror and traps of death, found warm drinks waiting for them and the solace of tobacco, thanks to the always thoughtful Red Cross.

If the people of New York could see what the noncombatant men and women of the Red Cross, scorning danger, working till they sink down from exhaustion, sustained only by their sense of duty, are doing for the soldiers in the trenches, for the mutilated and dying in the hospitals, and for the soul-stricken refugees behind the battlelines, if the perils and sacrifice and devotion of these Red Cross workers, these crusaders of humanity and agents of mercy, could be brought home to every thinking and sentient person in New York, the community would pour a good deal more than $25,000,000 into the War Fund.

THE RESTORED PICTURE.

It is good to see the reconciliation of brethren estranged. It is good to see flower-soft friendship overgrow the nettles of feud. In the dark days of 1912 the Republican Club tore from its walls the true effigy, in oil, of Theodore Roosevelt, buried it contumeliously in the cellarage. He was no longer a Republican. Heretic pravity possessed him. He had forfeited his right to look upon Republicans from his frame and those orthodox walls where Mr. Root and Mr. Taft and other illustrious Republicans kept him company. Down with him, down to the darkest, deepest basement or sub-basement!

Such is the fate of partisanship. Yet, whatever his divagations in 1912, Mr. Roosevelt was too potent, too engaging a figure, despite his little eccentricities, exuberances, and violences, to be left out of the Republican gallery. His absence could not be permanent. Even among many who have quarreled with him to the hilt, or whom he has "jumped on" in his artless, primitive method of exercise and amusement, there is a kind of admiration for his concatenation of talents, acquirements, virtues, humors, faults. He is a breathing, one might almost say a roaring, antithesis. His continual flow of antithetical expression is unconscious self-expression. The style is the man.

Back in the fold, gradually recovering good and regular standing as a member of the Republican congregation, forgiven by all but the irreconcilable resenters, fanatics of principle, or fatteners of grudge, accenting his recovered orthodoxy by miles of so amiable "criticism" of Democratic doings, why shouldn't Mr. Roosevelt, the old, old love in his bosom swelling, come back to the Republican Club, which had solemnly and joyfully adorned a too long vacant space with his reverently dusted portrait, restored to honor, luminous and salient on that respected wall?

The Republican civil war is over. The Restoration is come. "I shall be around at the club very soon," writes the reinstated Mr. Roosevelt.

Happy day! Must William Barnes sit in darkness when the feast of the Prodigal Son is celebrated? Can't he forgive and be forgiven? A "good hater," like Dr. Johnson and Mr. Roosevelt, but what's the use of hating? It can't improve the liver or digestion, or delay morose old age. Mr. Barnes, Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt, you remember Mr. Barnes?

FIRST STEP TOWARD RAISING RAILWAY RATES.

The Director General is charged with the rehabilitation of nearly twenty billions of railway capital, owned by many millions, and the basis of many other billions of credit and trade engagements. Therefore he will have sympathetic support in his task of reducing the railway deficit by operation and thus restoring the credit of the companies. It is not enough that the Government should be fair in its treatment of the railways under the President's plan of taking them over for the period of the war, and to maintain the plant in good physical condition. To restore the railways to their owners under a continuation of the conditions which prostrated them financially would be unfair treatment, whatever other good things were done. The railways must be made able to earn their dividends and interest and costs of operation, all on a fair basis in relation to all other prices. It would seem impossible to do this without an increase of rates, and there is a first step which should be taken in this direction for political as well as financial considerations.

For years the State Commissions have made sport of the Interstate Commission's rate orders. This week are published two decisions by the Supreme Court dismissing appeals from the Interstate Commission's order that the Texas Commission should cease discrimination in favor of Texas trade by making intrastate rates in conflict with interstate rates. The Director General will be on firm ground for summary procedure in all such cases, and they are multitudinous. There can be no easier or juster way of beginning with rate increases than by enforcing the Federal rates and fares over State rates and fares which are in avowed opposition to official Federal declaration of reasonableness. The railways and the Commission alike have been reluctant to join issue with State authorities, but the Director General will not hesitate with the Supreme Court at his back.

It is idle to think of another advance in rates when the States cut below existing rates in the manner of the Sinn Fein on our own soil. To raise existing rates to an equality throughout the Union is an obvious first step. The Director General cannot control the State Commissions, but he can make sure that there is no business done by his subordinate railway officials at rates other than those approved by the Supreme Court. Then the Commissions and Attorneys General can go into court, if they like, with the result against them known in advance. Every step toward putting the railways on firmer ground is reassurance of the broader financial situation. There is law enough. What is wanted is action in keeping with the spirit and need of the times, rather than the fighting over of old quarrels.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Chance to Right a Wrong.

Convincing evidence should—and therefore must—be given by the celebration of today as Italy-America Day that New York is not without full appreciation of the part played by Italy in the great war, of the sacrifices she has made, the courage her men have displayed, and the achievements of her armies. To do this will not be simply paying well-earned honor to the Italian people and the Italian Government; it will be also a demonstration that only in seeming have we failed to remember that Italy for three long years has been fighting to the full extent of her resources for the Good Cause.

We have not ever really forgotten all this. If sometimes—and too often—we have not grouped the Italian flag with those of Great Britain and France in our decorations on festival and memorial occasions, it has been only from the natural human tendency to concentrate attention on the chief features of any scene or subject and to have only a half-consciousness of details, even though important. We have been well aware, all the time, that except for the diversion of Austria's forces and a part of Germany's to the southern front, the German attack in the west would have been far more powerful than it was, and in that case the result might have been—one that we can now refuse to state or even to imagine too clearly.

And Italy had in the beginning what would have served her as an excuse for not entering the war at all, or for entering it on the side of the Central Empires. By following either of these courses she probably could have gained more in material reward than a victory of the Allies will give her. That she hesitated for a year before making the great decision was a delay that we, however it may be with others, must call short, not long, and, in evil fortune as in good, her purpose has not changed, her fidelity weakened.

It is a duty and a reparation, therefore, as well as a privilege, for us to join our fellow-citizens of Italian blood in celebrating worthily this day—in making it our day as well as theirs, as, indeed, it is.

They've Had a Lot of Tobacco.

That one of The Times representatives in France traversed the whole American sector and on only two occasions saw a distribution to our soldiers of tobacco bought from "funds" raised here by popular contribution proves only how far from all that goes on in even one part of this colossal war can be seen by any one observer. Negative testimony has no weight in the balance as against evidence that is positive, and there is positive evidence of indisputable quality that one "smoke fund" alone—The Sun's—has not only collected and spent for tobacco a great sum of money, but that the tobacco has really crossed the Atlantic and really been distributed among the American soldiers.

Counting each cigarette or pipeful of tobacco as a "smoke," the number of "smokes" which The Sun Fund has already provided for our fighters abroad reaches the colossal total of 137,000,000. This is an average distribution of more than 13,000,000 a month for the ten months during which this fund has been in operation, and as, for a considerable part of that time, the United States had in France not more than 50,000 men, the share of each could not have been minute.

And that the distribution was effected is demonstrated by the receipt of many letters from the soldiers in the ranks and by other letters from the Quartermaster General and his assistants. So that question can be regarded as settled.

That it is an important question as well as a settled one is shown by the fact that this week—far from too soon and long after both Great Britain and France reached the same conclusion—our Government has decided to count tobacco among the necessaries of its soldiers and has made it an item in their regular rations. This was a wise and therefore a commendable action. Tobacco may not be a necessary of life, in the ordinary sense of that term, for men in either peace or war, but certainly it lightens the inevitable hardships of war as nothing else can do.

In anticipating the decision of our Government the originators of the several "smoke funds" have served well their country and earned its gratitude.

Loyalty Saves and Serves.

With characteristic wisdom, President Schurman devoted a large part of his commencement address to the Cornell students this week to telling them stern truths as regards the spending of money in wartime—truths deserving of earnest consideration, not only from those and other youth, but from the great number of people who have more money to spend well or ill than boys and girls just out of college are apt to possess. President Schurman did not preach the doctrine of "business as usual." He preached against it. He recognized the fact that business as usual is impossible when conditions are utterly unusual, and he applied the harsh name of "traitor" to those whose expenditures are now determined, not by their actual needs, but by the amount of cash in their pockets and by their inclination to spend it in luxurious living.

He dismissed—a little too brusquely, perhaps, but better so than not at all—the argument that the confinement of expenditure to necessaries works disturbance to trade and throws thousands out of employment. The disturbance of trade is unquestionable, and unquestionably it, like innumerable other consequences of war, is regrettable, but the disturbance of the luxury trades, or of the nonessential trades, is not fatal or even greatly calamitous, while the men and women employed in them will not have to look far, in wartime, to find other work, as well or higher paid and vastly more conducive to national welfare and safety.

Probably President Schurman, though the brief reports of his address now at hand do not show it, dwelt upon the fact that wars are not waged with money, really, but with goods and services directly utilized in fighting the enemy. Only when money can command these has it any military importance, and it can command them only when everybody is willing to save and is compelled to serve.

From the Netherlands Legation.

KONINKLYK GEZANTSCHAP DER NEDERLANDEN.

The Netherland Legation at Washington, D. C., presents its compliments to the editor of The New York Times and begs to inform the latter that the Legation's attention has been called to the news item marked as "Special to The New York Times" appearing in that paper's issue of May 22, 1918, Page 12, last column. Therein the statement is made that the United States Government has permitted three vessels of the REQUISITIONED Netherland fleet to sail for Holland with grain and that the War Trade Board has decided not to release three additional ships of the REQUISITIONED fleet, as requested by the Netherland Government. The Netherland Legation wishes to say that this statement is not correct. None of the six Netherland ships referred to belong to those requisitioned by the American Government or the Governments associated with the United States in the war.

The Legation expects the editor of The New York Times to be anxious to rectify the erroneous impression which the said news item conveyed.

ANTI-VACCINATION ERRORS.

Dr. Keen Corrects Two Misstatements About the Armies.

In connection with the action of the Buffalo Academy of Medicine, as noted in your issue of the 19th, may I call attention to the two resolutions of the New York Anti-Vivisection Society passed on Jan. 31, last?

The first one, referring to vaccination against typhoid fever, demanded that "it be left to the free will of each soldier as to whether his health and life shall be endangered by an operation which, in actual experience, has resulted in deplorably affecting the strength and availability of our National Army, and occasioned unnecessary loss to thousands of American families who have bravely offered their young manhood to our beloved country."

The statement in this resolution is not true. On the contrary the anti-typhoid vaccination has practically banished that historic scourge of armies from our own cantonments and our own army and navy, and also from all the armies in Europe. In the British Army in France 99 per cent. of the soldiers, having seen the splendid protection of this vaccination, voluntarily secure its benefits.

The second resolution "points to the provision of exemption now made by Great Britain, that power having been forced to rescind the rule of compulsion after the alarming effects of inoculation were disclosed." The statement in this resolution is also untrue, as is shown by the following cable correspondence between myself and Lieut. Gen. Goodwin, Surgeon General of all the British armies:

Surgeon General Goodwin, War Office, London:
Has antityphoid vaccination ever been compulsory in British Army? KEEN.

London, April 29, 1918.
Professor Keen, Philadelphia:
Antityphoid inoculation has never been compulsory in British Army.

A Question of French Law.

The article appearing in The Times, under date of May 10, over the signature of A. Tardieu, contains a statement to the effect that an indictment was found against Frank J. Godsol in 1917. This is absolutely untrue. The minutes of the proceedings of the Chamber of Deputies show that I am correct in making this statement.

A. T. SCHARPS.

Referring to your question as to whether or not the word "indictment" is the proper equivalent for the procedure describing the French phrase "l'ouverture immédiate de l'instruction judiciaire," and speaking for the High Commissioner, I may state the following:

In view of the fundamental differences which exist between legal procedure in this country and in France, it is difficult, if not impossible, to translate literally legal phraseology such as above quoted. The best that can be done is to try to find an equivalent.

The essential fact is correctly emphasized in M. Tardieu's statement, namely, that it was at the instance and request of M. Albert Thomas that the charge of wrongdoing against Godsol was brought and laid before the appropriate French Court, for action.

Sure of Her Soldier.

The following quotation from a letter, showing the sentiments of an American mother in sending her boy to the war, may be of interest to your readers:

"I do not worry about John. Why should I? He was well equipped mentally, spiritually, and physically for whatever is ahead of him. He takes his responsibility gravely and is ready to do his best to the limit. If he had not been ready for his duty then I would have been worried. I am proud of him."

ITALIA REDIVIVA!

E'er to its echoes in new conflicts hurled;
With breath of thine Alps blow miasmas asunder

Cradled and buried hast thou without number
Princes and prelates and lords of emprise;
No more may thy soil foreign despots encumber,
Untrammeled thy soul shall commune with the skies.
Italy, out of thy centuries' slumber,
Unified, glorified, conqueror, rise!

From Frank and from Ostrogoth, Lombard, and Rhaetian,
Masterful purpose within thee still strains;
Genoese, Florentine, Pisan, Venetian
While iron of Roman with fire of the Grecian
Transfusing and molding thee, hardening remains.

Down from the North, where the heavy skies lower,
Threatens the Teuton's vain storming and stress.
From glacier and torrent, from temple and bower,
Thy spirit resurgent to rescue must press.

Voices of poet and potentate run;
Quenchless they'll carry, through ruin and slaughter,
Thy warrior sons to the doom of the Hun!

From terraced Trieste to thy tides Tyrrhenean,
With triumphs before thee and sorrows behind,
Thy glorious duty shall burst in one paean
That all the free nations in chorus shall bind,
Till into the heights of thine own empyrean
They lift the new chant of thy passionate mind!

Italy, Italy, changeling of wonder,
Crooned in thy cradle by crag-riven thunder;
Into the caldron of strife ever hurled;

WILSON SALUTES GALLANT ITALY

Pledges Ever-Increasing Resolution and Force on Eve of War Anniversary.

MESSAGE READ BY LANSING

Ambassador, Also Speaking at Celebration, Discusses Italy's Territorial Aims in War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—At a meeting held under the auspices of President Wilson tonight at Liberty Hut, near the Capitol, in celebration of the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, this message to the Italian people from the President was read by Secretary of State Lansing:

> I am sure that I am speaking for the people of the United States in sending to the Italian people warm fraternal greetings upon this the anniversary of the entrance of Italy into this great war, in which there is being fought out once for all the irrepressible conflict between free self-government and the dictation of force. The people of the United States have looked with profound interest and sympathy upon the efforts and sacrifices of the Italian people, are deeply and sincerely interested in the present and future security of Italy, and are glad to find themselves associated with a people to whom they are bound by so many personal and intimate ties in a struggle whose object is liberation, freedom, the rights of men and nations to live their own lives and determine their own fortunes, the rights of the weak, as well as of the strong, and the maintenance of justice by the irresistible force of free nations leagued together in the defense of mankind. With ever-increasing resolution and force we shall continue to stand together in this sacred common cause. America salutes the gallant Kingdom of Italy, and bids her godspeed.
>
> WOODROW WILSON.

The President's message has been sent to the American Ambassador at Rome for presentation to the Italian Foreign Office.

To Name Ships for Italians.

It was announced at the meeting that as a further compliment to Italy two vessels which the United States Shipping Board will launch tomorrow, the third anniversary of Italy's participation in the war, will be named after eminent Italians. One, to be launched at Seattle, will be named the Vittorio Emanuele III., after the present King of Italy. The other will be named the Garibaldi, after one of the national heroes of Italy.

President and Mrs. Wilson, Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, most of the members of the Cabinet, many other high Government officials, the Italian Ambassador and other members of the Italian Embassy, as well as other foreign diplomats were present at the celebration tonight. Secretary Lansing, Count V. Macchi di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, and Will Irwin were the principal speakers.

In his speech Secretary Lansing said the people of Italy, as of this country, "must not doubt for a moment the outcome," and, "as sure as there is a just God in Heaven, the day will dawn when victory will crown the eagles of Rome, as in ancient days, and, side by side with the victors and sharing their glory, will be the eagles of America."

"Three years ago," he said, "Italy made her great decision. On that day, which will ever be memorable in history, she wrote across her battle flags the world 'Liberty' and unfurled them to the world. Since that hour of decision the Italians have courageously struggled against the Teutons. Today the presence of the foe defiles the soil of Italy, but we who are warring against the same enemy of mankind have confidence that the national spirit of Italy and the genius of Italy's Generals will force back the invaders.

"United with you of the Latin race are we. who could desire no prouder title than 'the Romans of the West.' A citizen of this young republic could crave no higher public virtue nor covet a more devoted patriotism than that which inspired a dweller on the 'Seven Hills' in the brave days of the old Roman republic.

"My friends of America and of Italy, we will win this war. It may be on the wasted fields of Flanders and Picardy; it may be in the valley of the Piave and amidst the snow-crowned peaks of the Alps, or it may be on the German lands beyond the Rhine. Somewhere and somehow and sometime we will win."

Italian Ambassador's Reply.

Count di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, responded feelingly to the address of the Secretary of State.

"I am deeply touched," he said, "by the fact that it is under the high patronage of the President of the United States that the celebration of Italy's Day is being held here in the capital of this nation, whose friendship we cherish and whose moral and material support in these fateful years we look upon as sure evidence of the victory which awaits us.

"To him goes my thankful expression of homage and gratitude, not only in my own name but in the name of my country, that knows what the President has done and is doing for the cause of humanity, for the triumph of those lofty ideals upon which the very foundation of this Commonwealth was built and rests.

"Nowhere as in Italy have the boldest elements of evil worked to disrupt the unity of the nation's will and to nullify the patriotic efforts of the Government and of the people. Nowhere has the test, consequently, been more crucial and significant, nor the spirit and the love of freedom more resiliently and convincingly triumphant. Today the whole nation stands strong and determined, facing the enemy of centuries once more entrenched in the Venetian plains, and never was her spirit higher or her attitude more defiant.

"Whatever the enemy may have to say or may desire others to believe about it, Italy is not in this war for any base and selfish motives of conquest, imperial or unlawful territorial aggrandizement. While in fact fighting for the liberation of mankind threatened with oppression and slavery, Italy is aiming at the liberation of her oppressed sons within and beyond the boundary imposed upon her by an iniquitous treaty.

"For the freedom of our country we need security on land and sea; a security which nature herself has assured us with well-defined geographic boundaries and which the violence of oppressive and barbarous nations has too long stolen from us. Now we see our duty clear; and, faithful to our duty, we will not lay down our arms until the freedom of mankind, which implies the freedom of our oppressed brothers and the security of our land, is attained.

"At the same time we look with heartfelt sympathy and a sincere spirit of co-operation upon the lawful aspirations and rights of other countries, for we have fought too long and too hard for the achievement of our national unity and independence to begrudge others the same blessings. All of those who have suffered or are suffering from the same oppression and injustice, and are with us in the hopes of redemption and are in the fight for the realization of an ideal, we hape to have with us on the day of victory and vindication."

ITALIAN CELEBRATION HERE.

Roosevelt at Washington Square Festa, Baker at the Metropolitan.

The third anniversary of the entrance of Italy into the war will be celebrated today. The celebration of Italy-America Day will open at 8 o'clock with the distribution of flowers from automobiles all over the city. At 11:30 o'clock 150 automobiles, laden with flowers and decorated with the colors of Italy, with banners, streamers, and green boughs, will move down Fifth Avenue from Sixty-first Street in parade formation.

In the evening a festa and mass meeting will be held in Washington Square. Members of 400 Italian societies will take part in a ceremony called "The Mystic Ceremony of Adoration to the Spirit of Victory," before an altar of victory erected in the square near the statue of Garibaldi. The meeting will be addressed by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Nicholas Murray Butler, Professor Oreste Ferrera, Captain Sapalli, Consul General Tritoni, and General Gugliemotti of the Italian Embassy.

A concert at the Metropolitan Opera House will conclude the day's festivities. Secretary of War Baker, Charles E. Hughes, and the Italian Ambassador will be the speakers.

Mayor Hylan issued a proclamation yesterday directing that the Italian flag be displayed on all public buildings and calling on the inhabitants of the city to appropriately decorate their buildings. The proclamation says:

PROCLAMATION.

> The President of the United States has proclaimed Friday, May 24, 1918, as "Italy-America Day," to celebrate the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the world war.
>
> The purpose of the celebration is to afford the American people an opportunity to express in unmistakable fashion their appreciation of the splendid and heroic service rendered by Italy in the present war. An expression of cordial appreciation from the American people will be of great moral service to the Italian people in the struggles yet to come.
>
> Italy's invaluable contribution of human and material resources in this awful conflict will long be remembered, for she has participated gallantly in three years of the hardest fighting. We rejoice in her victories, and will stand by her until complete victory crowns the efforts of the allied armies with speedy and triumphant success.
>
> I hereby direct that on Friday, May 24, 1918, the flag of Italy shall be displayed upon public buildings in this city, and I call upon all inhabitants of the city appropriately to decorate their buildings and to display therefrom beside the flag of the United States the national colors of Italy.
>
> In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused my seal to be affixed.
>
> Done in the City of New York this 23d day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.
>
> JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Signor Angelo Tritoni, Consul General of Italy to the United States, and Professor Robert McN. McElroy of Princeton University were the speakers yesterday at the College of the City of New York combining Red Cross and Italian Day celebrations.

BIG PARADE IN ROME TODAY.

Allies Send Envoys to Mark Italy's War Anniversary.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

ROME, May 23.—The anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war has never been so solemnly and generally celebrated as it will be this year, the chief reason being that the enemy now treads Italian soil, and therefore the people wish to demonstrate their dogged determination never to lay down their arms until they have redeemed the captured towns of the mother country.

Another reason is that notabilities have been sent by the allied nations to represent them on this occasion. America has sent Hamilton Holt; Great Britain, the Prince of Wales; France, Minister Simon, and Japan is represented by her Ambassador. This sign of friendship and esteem has produced an excellent effect on the public, once again demonstrating that all the allied nations are fighting for the same ideals.

An imposing procession will pass tomorrow through the chief thoroughfares of the city, composed of Senators, Deputies, organizations, representatives of the allied armies, old followers of the national hero, Garibaldi, and a detachment of Czecho-Slovak troops fighting on the Italian front, which, when asked to take part, answered with an enthusiastic message of accord. The chief features of the demonstration will be the presence of the flags of Venice, Vincenza, Agordo, Udine, and Pordenone, all decorated with gold medals, which have waved on the firing line.

Minister Berenini has ordered that the wounded shall see the procession from the windows of the Palazzo Venezia, which formerly belonged to Austria. In the evening there will be an imposing ceremony at which all the envoys of the allied nations will be present.

The Tribuna says in commenting on the celebration of Italy Day in America:

"We see the great loyal hand of America clasped forever in cordial intimacy with the hand of Italy. Two identical civilizations based on liberty, right, and nationality find each other again today after losing sight of each other for many years. They meet in civilization on the Capitoline Hill, whence civilization sprang and was propagated all over the world. We wish that on the other side of the Atlantic, where in these days our adored flag waves over American homes, not a single word of our gratitude shall be lost, but that it shall arrive fresh and fervent as it started from Italy to cement the absolute unity of our hearts and the perpetuity of our collaboration."

CECIL APPLAUDS ITALY.

Asserts Faith in Her Desire to Free the Jugo-Slavs.

LONDON, May 23.—Italy will not flinch from the task of fighting shoulder to shoulder with her allies for satisfying and promoting the civilization of the world, said the Marquis Imperiali, the Italian Ambassador, in answer to a toast at a luncheon yesterday at the Mansion House to celebrate the anniversary of Italy's entry into the war. Italy, he added, was a warm advocate of the principle of nationality and would fight for it to the bitter end.

The Ambassador recalled the visit of King Victor Emmanuel to London in 1855, and said that the sentiments of friendship toward England then expressed were those that animated the Italy of today.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, who spoke for Foreign Secretary Balfour, said that Italy had come out of the trials of the war with clearer unity and self-confidence and, if possible, greater courage than she had before. Italy had shown herself ready to extend to the Poles, Czecho-Slovaks, Rumanians and Jugo-Slavs the principle on which her own unification was founded and on which she might go forward to a greater future.

On one side, Lord Robert said, we have the German gospel of force and the belief that you can dragoon free nations into an artificial unity. On the other were the principles for which the Allies stood—freedom, that Government must be carried on with the consent of the governed and that no culture and no national existence can be built upon the oppression and subjection of nations rightly struggling to be free.

These were the principles of the Allies, and Lord Robert was sure that the Italian Government shared to the full these views and aspirations.

Lord Robert's speech is made the theme of general editorial comment in this morning's newspaper. The Morning Post cites Italy as an example of the national cohesion caused by the war. It continues:

"What is true of Italy is true of France, the United States and Great Britain, and the longer the war continues the more powerful becomes the integral force binding each nation among the Allies into a tenacious whole, and each ally to the other. The process of internal cohesion is particularly remarkable in the case of the United States."

The Post recalls America's lack of organization for war and the length of time required before the real meaning of this war could be apprehended by the American people, culminating in President Wilson's taking action "with a celerity and resolution which made him eminent among the leaders of men."

"When in a recent speech," continues the newspaper, "President Wilson declared his intention to prosecute the war until the deliverance of Russia was accomplished, he was in a position to make good his words. That declaration happily coincides with the statements of the Italian Premier in respect of the solidarity of the Allies. They are now not only united in intention, but in a combination of steadily increasing men and material, toward one end—the destruction of the military power of Germany.

"We cannot tell what view the rulers of Germany take of the situation, but we think that the Allies may justly regard it with some confidence."

EVIDENCE READY ON IRISH PLOTTING

CLASH ON WILSON APPEAL

Dublin Mayor's Refusal to Submit Document to Gen. French May Prevent Trip.

LONDON, May 23.—Evidence concerning the German plot in Ireland will be submitted to the British Cabinet today by Edward Shortt, Chief Secretary for Ireland, a Press Association dispatch from Dublin reports.

If it is thought that any part of the evidence could or should be published, compatible with the public interest, it will be done, says the dispatch, which adds:

"It can be stated on the best authority that justification for the arrests exists in the shape of astounding evidence, but publication of the same is a question affecting not merely the welfare of the prisoners, but the well-being of the empire."

In a dispatch to the Times from Dublin it is suggesed that the delay in publishing the evidence of the German plot is due to the discovery of new evidence since the arrests.

Discussing the prospects of recruiting under the arrangement of which notice was given in last Saturday's proclamation, the dispatch says that few persons honestly believe that the scheme will be successful, as the atmosphere, so far as the public is concerned, is decidedly unfavorable to voluntary enlistment. The correspondent takes the view that some Irishmen might be brought to the colors by promising priority in the redistribution of land under the Land Purchase Act to returned soldiers and sailors and the dependents of those who have served.

The writer combats the idea that this would be bribery, and he submits information to show that, as regards land distribution, the men who stay home fare better than those who have served and returned. Some of the latter, he says, are eking out their military pensions by working as laborers for a few shillings weekly.

Part of the plan for voluntary recruiting in Ireland, the Dublin correspondent of The Daily News says he learns, probably will involve the complete reversal of an old War Office policy. This will mean the adoption of immediate steps to form homogeneous Irish brigades or Irish divisions in which all reasonable measures will be taken by the use of Irish emblems and the observance of Irish customs to foster the idea of a distinct nationality within the empire.

The correspondent predicts that Nationalist civilians will give only lukewarm support to the plan, and thinks that most Nationalist members of Parliament are hardly likely to accept the invitation to appear on the recruiting platform, although he admits that some of them favor supporting voluntary enlistment.

DUBLIN MAYOR REJECTS BALFOUR CONDITION

Belief That Wilson Appeal Will Not Be Made—Nationalists Fear American Disapproval.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, May 23.—The refusal of the Lord Mayor of Dublin to submit documents intended for President Wilson to the British Government before sailing will probably result in cancellation of the trip. Replying to the request of the British Foreign Office that any such documents intended for America be first submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the entire Mansion House conference agreed that this was "another humiliation" which could not be endured.

What the documents contained has not been learned, but it is understood that one bears on a League of Nations and the proposed setting up of an international tribunal to which the case of Ireland shall be referred immediately.

This unexpected development may have something to do with the return of some of the Nationalist leaders to Parliament to lay the case of Ireland "before the world." So long as they remain in Ireland, it is explained, they are without full means of informing the world that they do not sympathize with the policies of the Sinn Fein. The leaders fear that, because of their compact with the Sinn Feiners on the conscription question, public opinion in America and other countries may confuse their stand with the pro-German sympathies which the Government now formally charges against the Sinn Fein leaders.

By returning to Parliament, the Nationalist leaders enjoy the freedom of privileged communications and free speech and can lay before the bar of the House the Irish situation from their viewpoint.

Some of the leaders fear that they aided, rather than injured, the British Government by remaining away at a time when, above all things, they desired the support of American opinion, and that unless they are able to get an exhaustive statement from their viewpoint before the American public they may be disgraced and discredited if the Government should reasonably prove the case against the Sinn Fein.

John Dillon, leader of the Nationalists, explained today that his party never had sympathized, and never could sympathize, with the policies of the Sinn Fein.

"Logically and inevitably," he said, "their policy will lead to rebellion and bloodshed, which no sane and farseeing man could tolerate. For the Nationalists to fall in with Sinn Fein would certainly strike a blow against Ireland in America, the very spot where we must keep our skirts clean in this trying crisis."

Dillon is more than ever convinced now that the Irish question should be settled on the dominion plan within the empire, and, at all events, that Ireland should not make it more difficult for America to carry on the war. By giving Ireland home rule on the dominion plan he is satisfied that Ireland would be in a position to aid more in the war than under any other plan and bring the Allies into a better understanding of Irish aims.

But for the fact that the withdrawal of the Nationalist candidate in the East Cavan District might be construed as approval of Sinn Fein policies, Dillon would call off the campaign immediately. He goes to Bailieborough on Sunday for a conference with the Nominating Committee, where he hopes to settle the muddle.

Though declaring that there is no way of agreeing with Sinn Fein policies for freeing Ireland, Dillon and the Mansion House conference have agreed to use the defense funds gathered for the fight on conscription for the relief of the families of the Sinn Fein leaders now interned in England. To this extent the Nationalist leaders are ready to be identified with the Sinn Fein and take the consequences.

The Sinn Feiners are preparing a big demonstration in the County of Cavan for Sunday, at which one of the principal speakers will be Father O'Flanagan of Crosna.

Balfour Letter Checks Mayor.

DUBLIN, May 22.—At the anti-conscription conference at Mansion House today a letter was read from A. J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, to the Lord Mayor of Dublin stating that passports would be granted to the Lord Mayor only if he agreed to submit to the Irish Government all documents which he intended to carry to America on his proposed trip there. It was announced that the Mayor had replied that the only document he intended to carry was one direct to President Wilson from the Mansion House conference and that he would decline to submit this to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The matter was considered in a two-hour sitting, after which the conference adjourned until tomorrow.

The document which the Lord Mayor was to take to President Wilson was a statement of the case of Ireland against conscription as framed by the conference. His departure is now delayed further, and he will not leave—if at all—before the end of next week.

The Lord Mayor in a letter to Secretary Balfour on May 15 wrote:

"I have received from you passports to proceed to America to place before the President of the United States the case against conscription being enforced in Ireland. I beg to thank you. I understand that no documents may be carried by passengers going to the United States. I would be glad if you would kindly have authority issued to enable me to convey a document which has been drawn up for presentation to President Wilson."

Mr. Balfour replied:

"I am advised by competent authorities that the document which you desire to convey to the President of the United States ought, in the first instance, to be submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland."

The Lord Mayor of Dublin sent this reply to the Foreign Secretary:

"My conference has decided that as the document is a direct communication between the conference and the President of the United States they decline to submit it to the Lord Lieutenant."

Edward Short, Chief Secretary for Ireland, left Dublin by the morning boat today for Holyhead on his way to London. His departure was entirely unexpected in official circles and his absence from Dublin Castle was known only to a few persons until this afternoon.

Several appointments made for today and tomorrow had to be canceled, and it was believed generally that the Chief Secretary's sudden journey to London came as a consequence of a series of conferences held yesterday between the heads of the military and civil departments. As compared with the activities there yesterday, the atmosphere at the Castle today was of a normal and quiet character.

John Etchingham, a local Sinn Fein leader, was arrested last night in Southern Ireland.

The members of the Sinn Fein who were deported have been informed that, if they so desired, they could have an investigation of their cases before Justices Sir Robert Younger of the High Court of Justice, and Sir John Sankey of the King's Bench Division, but it is understood that this offer has been refused in every case. The Sinn Feiners have been allowed to correspond with their relatives.

Public boards throughout the country continue to protest against the arrests. Dublin is quite normal, and reports from the country show an equally calm state of affairs.

All the newspapers in Ireland, both morning and evening, publish The Associated Press interview with John Dillon prominently, but editorially they ignore his attack on the Sinn Fein, and only emphasize his attack on the British Government. The Freeman's Journal and other leading Nationalist papers still accuse the British Cabinet of desiring "to poison American opinion against Ireland."

WANTS LEAGUE OF GOOD-WILL.

Daughter of John Redmond Spurns German Propaganda.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—Johanna Redmond, daughter of John Redmond, in a letter to The Chronicle, suggests a League of Good-Will between Great Britain and Ireland.

"German propaganda," she says, "has been cleverly at work under the surface, spreading the seeds of hatred and dissension between Great Britain and Ireland. So wily have been their methods, so crowned with success their efforts, that we have almost claimed a religion of hatred as our own. It is not too late, however, even now, to recognize its trade mark, 'Made in Germany,' and to plant a new seed in its place—a League of Good-Will.

"Surely, such a seed should flourish and bear wholesome fruit. It has been stated, especially since the base menace of conscription has electrified this country, that the Irish people are filled with bitter hatred and ill-will toward the peoples of England. This is a mischievous falsehood.

"That the Irish people distrust and loathe the British misgovernment in Ireland, is true; and they do so with such avowed good cause that it would be superfluous to recount the reasons. But whatever the British Government has done in the past, or contemplates in future—even enforcing of such an act of injustice and despotism as conscription—the attitude of the British people in this war, their generosity and sacrifice, have gained the respect and admiration of all civilized nations of the world. It is inconceivable that Ireland, with her historic generosity of spirit, would, by condoning such hatred and ill-feeling, place a weapon of destruction in the blood-stained hands of the common enemy.

"That England's difficulty in this war has been Ireland's opportunity, is true. Now, in a new sense, it is an opportunity, not to revenge herself for her past ill-treatment or present vital wrongs, but, on the contrary, to prove herself a nation so broad-minded, actuated by such noble ideals and pity for the wronged, that in a just and noble cause she can, without detriment to her honor, hold out the hand of peace and good-will to the ancient enemy at her gates.

Now, at this momentous hour, wholeheartedly, even with pride, we must admit the alliance with England. Whatever our differences, and they are many and grievous, we are one with her in the cause of humanity, with a large, unbigoted heart.

"It is our warmest duty to learn to be tolerant and sympathetic of all that is brave and admirable in the English character, to root out harsh prejudices against it, trusting nothing but the chivalrous impulses of our own hearts, letting no threats alarm or promises alure us.

"We must take our stand, shoulder to shoulder and united, against the common foe. It is possible for us to do all this, and still remain true Irishmen and Irishwomen, with our hearts burning with love of Ireland, our brains striving for her welfare, and true to our principles of Irish nationality."

SISTER OF PARNELL DIES IN WORKHOUSE

Mrs. Ricketts Had Means and Is Said to Have Been Deranged —Wrote of Brother.

DUBLIN, May 23.—A sensation was caused in Dublin today by the death in the workhouse hospital known as the "South Dublin Union" of Mrs. Emily Ricketts, sister of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, the famous Irish patriot.

Mrs. Ricketts, who was formerly Mrs. Emily Dickinson, was admitted to the hospital early last week. The authorities say that she then gave her name as Mrs. Roberts. She was nearly 80 years of age. She died in the hospital Sunday and it was some time later when the authorities learned of her identity.

The authorities communicated with Mrs. Ricketts's brother, Jack Parnell, who said that he was at a loss to understand the reasons which prompted her to take refuge in a charitable institution, as she possessed ample means to enable her to live comfortably. One of the newspapers says:

"It is supposed that her mind was deranged and that she was not responsible for her actions at the time."

Mrs. Ricketts was a writer of considerable ability. In a recent article containing reminiscences of her famous brother, she wrote:

"It has been said that ours is the most tragic family in Ireland. This, I think, is true."

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

HAYS, IN PLEA, URGES WOMEN TO ENROLL

Republican Chairman Advocates Fullest Participation in Political Activities.

CITES PARTY'S PRINCIPLES

Miss Hay Draws Up a List of "Don'ts" and Tells Women Not to be Political Slackers.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, yesterday issued an urgent appeal to women to enroll tomorrow. His plea, summed up, was that as a Republican he naturally preferred to have the women enroll as Republicans, but that in any event he wanted them to enroll.

"The test of all time of the womanhood of the world is upon us," said Mr. Hays. "It is the women who are carrying the supreme burden of this war and noble and magnificent beyond expression is their conduct.

"A particular, immediate duty comes to the women in New York with the enrollment. You have received the right to participate in your own Government, a most just and proper privilege, and supremely important to you now in this crisis in the country's affairs. You can only vote in the primaries if you enroll, and enroll you should.

"I most earnestly urge the fullest participation by the women in political activities. You owe this to yourselves; you owe it to the State and nation.

Outlines Republican Principles.

Continuing Mr. Hays urged the women to vote "that better politics and consequent better government may result at all times," and then asked them to join the Republican Party, which, he said, "has carried the flag as it has kept step with the music of the Union which it made. I am convinced," he said in conclusion, "that the women of America can be depended upon and that they believe in those things for which the Republican Party stands.

"First—To win the war now. Second—For a peace by victory and never a peace by compromise bargaining which would make of our children's sacrifice a sacrilege, to be made again by our grandchildren. Third—For a sane preparation now for the solution of the immeasurable problems of reconstruction which will come after the war; for a forward stepping as well as a forward looking program, touching the human and economic issues with our eyes always to the front and our feet always on solid ground."

Miss Hay Issues Appeal.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, last night issued her "last appeal to women voters to enroll." In this she said that tomorrow would be a "red letter day in the political lives of women in this city when you will leave the isolation of the disfranchised women and not only openly indorse party principles, but enter into a political comradeship with men that will mean much to the community as the years go by." She wound up her appeal with this series of "Don'ts":

Don't fear to enroll in a political party because you think you may surrender your independence. You do not have to vote for every one of its candidates—you can vote a split ticket, as many citizens do.

Don't neglect the primaries and then complain because better candidates are not nominated. Don't be a howler—be a helper.

Don't hold aloof from the parties because you think women will thus have more power. Service, not power, should be your watchword.

Don't think that the parties are composed entirely of politicians. Your husbands, fathers, brothers, and sons are in them. Join with them for political betterment.

Don't forget that we won the ballot through the votes of the men. Let us try to help them to solve their problems through the parties.

Don't fail to make the record of the woman voter of the city a good one, for the eyes of the country are upon her and the disfranchised women of other States will profit or lose by what she does.

Don't forget that you can learn much from men by association with them in the parties.

Don't take advice from any one about what party you should join. Study party platforms for yourselves and make a conscientious decision.

Don't be a political slacker. A political slacker is a patriotic slacker. More and more the men are called to the front. Women must do good work in the parties that all may be well when the men return. Voting is as patriotic as sewing for the Red Cross or selling Liberty Bonds.

Don't fail to enroll on May 25. Don't fail to vote at the primaries on Sept. 3. Help the parties. Help the Government. Help democracy.

Miss Hay, who lives at 2 West Eighty-sixth Street, is a suffrage captain of the Second Election District in the Ninth Assembly District. Miss Hay is preparing to distribute among women voters in her election district the enrollment handbills which the Suffrage Party has been getting out, giving the addresses of the polling places. Mrs. John Blair, who lives in the Nineteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District, will do similar service in her district. Mrs. Robert T. Oliver, who is leader of the Woman Suffrage Party in the Eleventh Assembly District, is conducting an enrollment school for the women of her district. Miss Adeline Sterling, Corresponding Secretary of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, is also acting as captain of her election district, the Thirteenth of the Thirteenth Assembly District, and is rounding up the women voters by letter, urging them to come out and do their full duty tomorrow.

Miss Carson to Wed Lieut. Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Moore Carson of 149 East Thirty-seventh Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betty Carson, to Lieutenant Charles McGhee Tyson of the United States Naval Reserve Flying Corps.

Miss Carson has been prominently identified with the younger set since her début, and has taken part in many of the charitable affairs of society.

Lieutenant Tyson is a son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Tyson of Knoxville, Tenn., and was graduated from Princeton, class of '12.

Griswold-Bridgman Nuptial June 15

The wedding of Miss Isabel Battell Bridgman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Bridgman, and George Griswold, son of the late George Griswold of New York and Tuxedo Park, will take place on Saturday, June 15, at Fox Hill, the country home of the bride's parents. Their engagement was announced last December.

Miss Draper to Wed Ensign Buck.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Draper of 270 Riverside Drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Rifflard Draper, to Leonard J. Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Buck of Bethlehem, Penn. Mr. Buck is an ensign in the Naval Aviation Corps and is stationed at Cambridge, Mass. Miss Draper is an ardent worker for the Red Cross. The wedding will probably take place shortly.

BENNETT BURIED IN PARIS.

Diplomats Attend Funeral of the Publisher in Trinity Church.

PARIS, May 23.—The funeral of James Gordon Bennett, owner of The New York Herald, was held today in Trinity Church. It was attended by members of the Government and the diplomatic corps, including the American Ambassador, William G. Sharp; the Spanish Ambassador, Senor Quinones, and the French Foreign Minister, Stephen Pichon.

The services had a naval aspect. Captain Portier of the French navy was present as representative of President Poincaré. A number of United States naval officers were in the procession to the cemetery.

The pallbearers were attachés of the American Embassy and friends and business associates of Mr. Bennett. The Rev. Frederick W. Beekman, rector of the church, officiated at the service. He was assisted by Bishops McCormick and Israel. Floral designs from French and American societies and friends were numerous, and hundreds of Parisians and others who wished to pay tribute to Mr. Bennett's memory followed the procession from the church to the cemetery.

GEN. J. B. CASTLEMAN DEAD.

Head of Saddle Horse Breeders Was Prominent in Confederacy.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 23.—General John B. Castleman, President of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association and a member of Morgan's command, died at his home here today after a brief illness.

General Castleman gained a place in history in the war between the States as a commander of an expedition, the purpose of which was to liberate Confederate prisoners of war at Camp Douglas, who were to seize and burn the City of Chicago. The plan failed. General Castleman was arrested as a spy and held until the end of the war, when he was paroled upon condition that he would leave the United States. A couple of years later President Johnson permitted him to return, requiring him to take the oath of allegiance.

General Castleman was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and commanded Kentucky troops during the unrest that followed the assassination of Governor William Goebel in 1900. General Castleman was 78 years old.

Dr. Louis E. Meeker.

Dr. Louis E. Meeker, founder of the Eastern District Savings Bank in Brooklyn, of which he was President for twenty-one years, died yesterday at his residence, 44 Linden Street, Brooklyn. He was 67 years old. Dr. Meeker was born in New Jersey and was directly descended from the Meeker family, which came from England early in the seventeenth century, settling finally in New Jersey. The Meekers of New Jersey have been in possession of the famous Lyons farm, between Newark and Elizabeth, for more than 200 years. Dr. Meeker had devoted many years to the study of genealogy. He is survived by a son.

Body Clothing or Underwear —Which?

If it doesn't matter what it is so long as it is cheap and because it is out of sight, why any underwear will do.

But if it is something for men to wear over and next to the skin for the sake of better feeling, better health, better work, it is Body Clothing—AMHO Body Clothing—there is no other.

And in summer it is AMHO White Lisle Body Clothing for men.

The very words "White Lisle" suggest clean, cool skin comfort and at $5 or $6 the two-piece suit it is more economical than underwear at half the price.

Union Suits also.

MODEL CLOTHES for Men & Young Men
$15, $18, $20 & $25

Last March The Sultzbach Clothing Company sold their three GEORGES Greater New York Stores to auctioneers, including the last Fall and Winter stocks then on hand.

All of the new Spring and Summer merchandise, however, more than $200,000 worth of it, contracted for as early as last November and intended for the George Stores, was taken over by us, and these Suits and Top Coats we now offer at a GUARANTEED SAVING OF $5 TO $20 ON AVERAGE FIRST FLOOR PRICES.

However impossible this may seem to you—just consider that whereas, the three GEORGES Greater New York Stores had a combined rent and overhead expense, including display advertising, light and heat, window trimming, managerial salaries, etc., of about $194,000 annually, our total overhead expenses on the Sixth Floor of the Monolith Building, 45 West 34th St.—directly opposite McAlpin Hotel—aggregate only about $3,000. And whereas on the first floor basis it cost about 33⅓ per cent. to do business, which had to be paid in greater profits by the customer, OUR merchandising plan, under the personal direction of Mr. George F. Sultzbach, permits us to do business on at most a 15 per cent. basis, secure a fair legitimate profit for ourselves and POSITIVELY GUARANTEE A SAVING TO YOU OF $5 TO $20 PER GARMENT.

MINE FIELD BLOCKS UPPER NORTH SEA

New British Decree Aims to Prevent German Egress Between Norway and Scotland.

NARROW CHANNEL ON EAST

But Only in Norwegian Territorial Waters—Area on Scotch Coast Intensively Patrolled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The location of the new mine field established on May 15 by the British Government, closing off most of the northern end of the North Sea against egress by submarines and raiders, has just been disclosed in a communication received by the Washington Government.

According to a statement made by Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, in The London Daily Telegram, and cabled to this country early this morning, this new mine field, which was the greatest ever laid to foil the German submarine, embraced 121,782 square miles. This appears to be an error, as the new field, as plotted on official hydrographic charts, appears to cover only about 12,758 square miles. The field takes the form of two joined parallelograms, one of which is 140 miles long and 58 miles across, and the other about 54 miles wide by 74 miles long.

This broad protective belt of mines extends across the North Sea from the Norwegian coast almost to the Orkney Islands and the Moray Firth, on the northeastern coast of Scotland. It runs along the three-mile territorial limit on the Norwegian coast from a point opposite Bergen, to Udsire Lightship, northeast of Karmo and the Skudesnaes Fjord. The northwestern corner of the new mine field is opposite Fair Island, northeast of the Orkneys. The southwestern point of the field is opposite Kinnaird Head, at the southeastern entrance to Moray Firth.

The new mine field went into effect on May 15 and since that date shipping has entered the new mine field at its peril. The establishment of this new mine field and the successful blocking of the U-boat bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge by the British have already had a telling effect in the campaign against the submarine menace. It is part of the new policy of going after the submarine instead of waiting for the submarine to come out.

The Official Statement.

"North Sea—Northern entrance.

"Prohibited area—In view of the unrestricted warfare carried on by Germany at sea, by means of mines and submarines, not only against the allied powers but also against neutral shipping, and the fact that merchant ships are constantly sunk without regard to the ultimate safety of their crews, the following prohibited area will be established in the North Sea on May 15, 1918. This area, which is bounded by lines joining the following points, is dangerous to all vessels and should be avoided:

First—Latitude 59 degrees 12 minutes 30 seconds north; longitude 4 degrees 40 minutes east.

Second—Latitude 59 degrees 20 minutes north; longitude 3 degrees 10 minutes east.

Third—Latitude 58 degrees 25 minutes north; longitude 0 degrees, 50 minutes west.

Fifth—Latitude 60 degrees 21 minutes north; longitude 3 degrees 10 minutes east.

Sixth—Latitude 60 degrees north; longitude 4 degrees 56 minutes east.

The new mine field does not close the route previously left open for Dutch merchant shipping. This was a narrow zone, extending northward from the Dutch coast to Udsire Lightship, between the previously established British and German danger zones. Dutch ships can continue to follow this route, if not molested by German submarines, to Udsire Lightship, and then pass within the three-mile territorial strip of waters between the Norwegian coast and the new British mine field.

There are only two ways of passing the new mine field. One is by skirting the territorial waters of Norway. For German submarines or raiders to use these waters would violate Norwegian neutrality.

The other alternative would be to pass to the west of the new mine field and between it and the Scotch coast. This area has been provided with a more intensive patrol of destroyers since the new field was established.

Two Other Mined Areas.

There is also a British mine field, bottling up the southern entrance to the North Sea. This was established early in the war and was intended to protect the English Channel against the submarine menace. It extends from the Dutch coast almost to Dover and the mouth of the Thames, and is rectangular in shape. It has proved very effective.

Between this old mine area at the southern and the new one at the northern entrance to the North Sea is a third danger area established more than a year ago, covering the Dutch coast and the Jutland coast of Denmark. This third mine field was intended to curb the movements of submarines and raiders from the German naval bases on the North Sea coast of Prussia.

Closing the Upper Gate of the North Sea

By establishing a new mine field between the Norwegian and Scotch coasts the British Admiralty seeks to prevent German submarines or raiders from leaving the North Sea. The southern portal to this sea was closed early in the war by a mine field at the entrance of the English Channel.

USE LIBERTY MOTOR IN AIR MAIL SERVICE

Journey from Philadelphia Is Made in 50 Minutes by New Plane.

SPEEDIEST TRIP SO FAR

Letters Arrive Here from Washington in Two Hours and Fifteen Minutes.

Piloting a new airplane driven by a Liberty motor, Lieutenant Stephen Bonsal carried the mail yesterday between Belmont Park and Philadelphia in the fastest time yet made over the air route. He delivered the mail and returned at fast speed, making the round trip in three hours, or about nineteen minutes better than on any previous trip, although weather conditions were not of the best. Rain was encountered near Philadelphia, but, notwithstanding this, the new motor stood up well under the test, and both flights were made without mishap.

The aerial mail plane used in the test flights was almost double in size of those that have been in use on the "cloudland" mail service. The machine piloted by Lieutenant Bonsal was accompanied by a smaller machine flown by Lieutenant Edward Kilgore of Philadelphia. There was the promise of rain in the clouds when the two fliers left the ground at Belmont Park at shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Bonsal carried about 350 pounds of mail. The use of the airplane equipped with the Liberty motor was assigned to the mail-carrying service without notice and it was evidently intended that the flight should be in the nature of a test.

Rising in long sweeps until he was high above the Park, Lieutenant Bonsal soon attained the required altitude and then he straightened the big plane out on the course for Philadelphia. He handled the new Curtiss machine with its fast motors well, and soon it was seen that he would outstrip Lieutenant Kilgore's smaller machine. Until both disappeared from sight the crowd on the field watched them as they winged their way into the storm. Reports from Philadelphia show that the new Liberty airplane landed at 12:25, having made the trip from New York in 55 minutes.

Three minutes behind Lieutenant Bonsal came Lieutenant Kilgore. The flight of the two planes marked the institution of the precautionary plan to have two flyers on each mail trip to guard against delays, due to accident. After delivering his mail and taking on mail for New York, Lieutenant Bonsal and his attendant pilot took to the air again. He arrived at Belmont Field at 2:25, having covered the return trip in 50 minutes and delivering his mail 2 hours and 15 minutes after it had started from Washington.

On the first trip with the mails, on May 16, Lieutenant Torrey H. Webb, made the flight to Philadelphia in one hour.

RECORD IN STATE REVENUES

Largest Increase Comes from New Corporation Income Tax.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23.—The State coffers have been enriched by approximately $25,378,000 more revenue so far this year than during any preceding one, State Controller Travis announced tonight. The largest amount of this increase, the Controller shows, comes from the new 3 per cent. corporation income tax, which, with other corporation taxes, has returned more than $19,328,000. In addition, substantial increases, aggregating $4,636,307.46, have been collected from other sources, totaling nearly $54,000,000.

Comparatively few taxpayers are aware of the existence of two unusual forms of taxation which to date have netted the State over $2,282,737. These two forms—the mortgage recording and investment taxes—are in the nature of exemption duties, that is, by paying a smaller tax to the State investors escape a larger one at home. The result is that the State will receive over $3,000,000 more income in a way that would never be paid as taxes anywhere else.

NEW B. R. T. MORTGAGE.

Stockholders Ratify Proposed $150,000,000 Bond Issue.

Stockholders of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, at a special meeting in Brooklyn yesterday, unanimously approved the issuance of a new consolidated and refunding mortgage to take the place of the old 4 per cent. mortgage. A total of 544,139 shares was represented at the meeting, considerably more than two-thirds of the total outstanding.

The Central Trust Company will act as Trustee of the mortgage and bonds to the amount of $150,000,000 will be issued, of which $87,654,000 are reserved to replace underlying bonds of the B. R. T. or its subsidiary companies, and the remainder may be issued for extensions, improvements, acquisition of lands, &c. The bonds may be issued in series and at such interest as the Directors may determine, and any series may be converted into stock of the company upon such terms as the Directors may approve. Any part of the bonds may be redeemed upon such terms and at such times as the Directors may determine.

President T. S. Williams announced that in the matter of the approaching maturity of $57,735,000 of notes issued for subway improvements under contracts with the city negotiations had been in progress with local banks and the United States Government for some time and an application had been made to the newly-created War Finance Corporation of Washington for assistance in meeting these maturing notes. The Finance Corporation has granted a hearing for Tuesday and no announcement of its attitude could be made at the present time.

STEVENS OUT FOR SENATE.

Cape May Man a Candidate for Senator Hughes's Unexpired Term.

TRENTON, N. J., May 23.—Petitions are in circulation throughout the State to place the name of Senator Lewis T. Stevens of Cape May County in nomination at the September primaries as a candidate for the short term in the United States Senate, for the unexpired term of the late Senator Hughes, ending March 3 next.

It is reported that by running for the short term Senator Stevens feels he will in no way interfere with the candidacy of Governor Edge or Senator Colgate for the long term, beginning March 4 next.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRECTS ERROR

The Associated Press yesterday sent to Senator Atlee Pomerene, Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which has under investigation the charge that the speech of Senator La Follette in St. Paul last September was seditious and disloyal, the following telegram:

"The Associated Press learned for the first time on May 21 that the accuracy of its account of Senator La Follette's speech in St. Paul on Sept. 20 last was challenged. Thorough investigation was made immediately, convincing us that we distributed inaccurately one important phrase, to which attention has been directed by the Senator's counsel.

"The Associated Press did not have a staff reporter at the convention addressed by the Senator and depended upon the report received by The St. Paul Pioneer Press. Our St. Paul editor obtained a duplicate copy of the account written by a reporter for that paper, and, because of the lateness of the hour, transmitted it to our members without waiting for it to be edited or revised by the writer. Our report on Sept. 20 carried quotations attributed to Senator La Follette as follows:

"'I wasn't in favor of beginning this war. We had no grievances. The German Government had interfered with our rights to travel on the high seas—as passengers on the munition ships of Great Britain. On these grievances, which were insignificant, considering the rights and consequences involved, we went to war. We had a right to ship munitions, but I was not in favor of the riding.'

"The foregoing quotations, preceded by other quoted paragraphs, were taken from the reporter's account in the manner stated. They were no written by our editor, and were not available to him until nearly 2 A. M., very late for morning papers. It is improbable that the reporter made a stenographic report. The quoted matter was not read as carefully as it should have been, for otherwise the conflicting word 'no' would have been seen. The Pioneer Press, from which our story was taken, quoted Senator La Follette as saying: 'We have grievances.'

"We cannot account for the disparity in any other way than stated. It is the recollection of the editor who filed the story that Senator La Follette in effect said: 'We had a grievance, but it was not sufficient to justify a declaration of war.'

"The error was regrettable, and The Associated Press seizes the first opportunity to do justice to Senator La Follette.

"FREDERICK ROY MARTIN,
"Assistant General Manager, The Associated Press."

LACKAWANNA STEEL GAINS.

Extra Dividend Declared in Addition to the Regular.

The Lackawanna Steel Company declared yesterday an extra dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock together with the usual quarterly payment of 1½ per cent., both payable June 29, to stockholders of record June 14. Six months ago an extra 3¼ per cent. was ordered, and at this time last year 2½ per cent. was voted as a special disbursement.

Directors of the Haskell & Barker Car Company declared a quarterly dividend of $1 per share, to be paid July 1 to stockholders of record June 15. Payments heretofore have been 75 cents quarterly.

The Pittsburgh Rolls Corporation ordered an initial payment of 1 per cent. on the common stock and the regular quarterly distribution of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred, payable July 1 to stockowners on the books June 30.

WORK OR FIGHT, WARNING TO ALL

military service of the United States.

Any local board will be authorized to take action, whether it has original jurisdiction of the registrant or not; in other words, any man loafing around a poolroom in Chicago may be held to answer to a Chicago board, even though he may have registered in New York and lived there most of his life.

The regulations which apply to idle registrants will be deemed to apply also to gamblers of all descriptions and employes and attendants of bucket shops and race tracks, fortune tellers, clairvoyants, palmists, and the like, who for the purposes of the regulations, shall be considered as idlers.

The new regulaions will also affect the following classes:

(a) Persons engaged in the serving of food and drink, or either, in public places, including hotels and social clubs.

(b) Passenger elevator operators and attendants, doormen, footmen, and other attendants of clubs, hotels, stores, apartment houses, office buildings, and bathhouses.

(c) Persons, including ushers and other attendants, engaged and occupied in, and in connection with games, sports, and amusements, excepting actual performers in legitimate concerts, operas, or theatrical performances.

(d) Persons, employed in domestic service.

(e) Sales clerks and other clerks employed in stores and other mercantile establishments.

Men who are engaged as above or who are idlers will not be permitted to seek relief because of the fact that they have drawn a late order number or because they have been placed in class II., III., or IV. on the grounds of dependency. The fact that he is not usefully employed will outweigh both of the above conditions.

It is expected that the list of nonuseful occupations will be extended from time to time as necessity will require so as to include persons in other employments.

Temporary absences from regular employment not to exceed one week, unless such temporary absences are habitual and frequent, shall not be considered as idleness. Regular vacations will not be considered as absences in this connection.

The regulation throws a further safeguard around men not usefully employed by providing that where there are compelling domestic circumstances that would not permit change of employment by the registrant without disproportionate hardship to his dependents, or where a change from non-useful to useful employment or occupation would necessitate a removal of the registrant or his family, local boards may give consideration to the circumstances. The regulation further provides that where such a change of employment would compel the night employment of women under circumstances which a board might deem unsuitable for such employment of women, the board may take such circumstances into consideration in making its decision.

Avoids Industrial Draft.

Provost Marshal General Crowder, in discussing the new regulation, said:

"The war has so far disorganized the normal adjustment of industrial man power as to prevent the enormous industrial output and national organization necessary to success. There is a popular demand for organization of man power, but no direct draft could be imposed at present. Steps to prohibit idleness and non-effective occupation will be welcomed by our people. We shall give the idlers and men not effectively employed the choice between military service and effective employment. Every man in the draft age, at least, must work or fight.

"It is enough to ask what would happen if every man in the nation turned his hand to effective work. We must make ourselves effective. We must organize for the future. We must make vast withdrawals for the army and immediately close up the ranks of industry behind the gap with an accelerating production of every useful thing in necessary measure. How is this to be done?

"The answer is plain. The first step toward the solution of the difficulty is to prohibit engagement by able-bodied men in the field of hurtful employment, idleness, or ineffectual employment, and thus induce and persuade the vast, wasted excess into useful fields.

"March Past Crowds of Idlers."

"The very situation we are now considering, however, offers great possibilities in improvement of the draft as well as great possibilities for the composition of the labor situation by effective administration of the draft. Considering the selective service law, we see two principal causes of deferment of the call to military service—exemption and the order numbers assigned by lot. The exemptions themselves fall into two conspicuous categories—dependency and industrial employment. One protects domestic relations, the other the economic interests of the nation. Between the two there is an inevitable hiatus, for it is demonstrably true that thousands, if not millions, of dependency exemptions have no effect on industrial protection whatever. One of the unanswerable criticisms of the draft has been that it takes men from the farms and from all useful employments and marches them past crowds of idlers and loafers away to the army. The remedy is simple—to couple the industrial basis with other grounds for exemption and to require that any man pleading exemption on any ground shall also show that he is contributing effectively to the industrial welfare of the nation."

Fate of Baseball in Doubt.

Secretary Baker declined to give an opinion as to the effect the new order would have upon organized baseball and professional sports, but he indicated that the case of each man affected would be settled on its merits, and that the question whether professionals in baseball, golf, tennis, and other sports were idlers or in nonessential pursuits would be decided whenever a specific case was brought up on appeal.

When Secretary Baker was informed that some of the baseball Presidents were credited with the statement that the drafting of baseball men might disrupt organized baseball, he said he was thoroughly familiar with the scope and intent of the new regulations and did not anticipate the result feared by the baseball leaders.

When he was asked as to whether a professional golfer, who might have been placed in a deferred classification by reason of dependency, would lose his classification, he said:

"It means that the local board is given discretion to determine whether his deferred classification should be taken away, and it isn't solely determined upon the fact that he is engaged as a professional golfer, but upon the existence in his community of more useful occupations open to that man in which he could go without changing the situation as to his dependents. But each case will be decided separately and on its merits."

Warns Slackers Who Flee.

WASHINGTON, May 23, (Associated Press.)—Slackers who leave the country to escape the draft will be prosecuted under the Seclective Service act on their return, Attorney General Gregory announced today.

"The passage of time will not prevent the bringing of prosecutions," he said. "Such nonregistrants and delinquents either must return for military service or become permanent expatriates with all future rights of United States citizenship denied them. The Government at no time hereafter will be inclined to grant any general amnesty to such men.

"It should also be clearly understood by the general public that whoever assists another to escape from this country to evade military service, or whoever assists to maintain in a foreign country one who has fled there to escape military service, is guilty of a violation of the Espionage act and upon conviction becomes liable to the full penalties imposed thereby."

BASEBALL MAY STOP IF NEW ORDER STANDS

Would Strip Most of the Big Teams—Tener and Owners Not Dismayed.

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—"Everything must be done to win this war," said President John K. Tener today, upon learning of the new "work or fight" order of Provost Marshal General Crowder, "and if baseball is a sport as classified in this new order, and not a business in which there is a great investment of money, then baseball will not be behind other interests in contributing its part toward winning the war.

"If baseball is nonessential, and players of draft age have to give up playing, the clubs will try to find players that are not of draft age, and if this cannot be done there is a possibility that our ball parks will have to be closed and the season be brought to an end.

"Since the draft or conscription act has been effective we have been operating with the understanding that baseball was being encouraged by the Government, and players have been responding as they have been called under the provisions of the draft, in great numbers, and many of them have volunteered.

"Baseball also has been doing its share of war work in every way, and baseball is only too glad to comply with the new regulations, having perfect confidence that it will be not discriminated against by the Government or any department head."

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—B. B. Johnson, President of the American League, in discussing the new draft regulations was quoted here tonight as follows:

"I do not believe the Government has any intention of wiping out baseball altogether, but if I had my way I would close every theatre, ball park, and other place of recreation in the country and make the people realize that they are in the most terrible war in the history of the world."

BOSTON, May 23.—Draft regulations requiring professional baseball players to join the army or to take up war work would strip the Boston American League club of the bulk of its leading players. The Boston Nationals would be less seriously affected from a playing standpoint, although the club would lose many men.

President Harry Frazee of the Red Sox declined today to comment on the ruling of the Provost Marshal General, and Manager Barrow was silent, although he admitted that the former world champions could not hope to keep with the procession if old-time stars should be called out.

It was his understanding while in Washington recently, President Percy D. Haughton of the Braves said, that the war would not interfere with baseball, as he was informed then, he stated, that President Wilson was in favor of continuing the sport. Mr. Haughton and players and officials alike agreed, however, that winning the war was paramount, and that all else was of no moment.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Strict enforcement of General Crowder's order would, it is said, wreck the two major league baseball clubs of Chicago. All the players of both teams except four are of draft age.

DETROIT, May 23.—"Such an order would cause us to close our park," said Frank J. Navin, President of the Detroit Baseball Club, when told today that baseball players might be included in the amendment to the draft regulations requiring men to engage in useful occupations or join the army.

"The order would leave me Donovan as pitcher, Stanage behind the bat, Spencer at first, and Jennings at short. How does that sound for a pennant winner?"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 23.—"A most drastic order," said E. W. Dickerson, President of the Western League, in referring to the amendment to the draft regulations, which may include baseball players. "The Western League would not lose more than twenty players at the most, as forty-four are already in the service."

DALLAS, Texas, May 23.—A poll of the Texas League clubs taken this morning shows that no club will have even the nucleus of a baseball team if men between the ages of 21 and 31 are barred from playing after July 1. The Fort Worth team, the league leader, has only two players over the draft age.

Officials of the local major league clubs who were here yesterday were loath to express opinions regarding the effect of a possible drafting of baseball players for essential war work. At National League headquarters Secretary John A. Heydler said that any comment on the situation should come from President Tener, who is in Pittsburgh.

The announcement came as such a surprise to the baseball men that they are anxious for an official ruling that the Government means to break up the sport before saying anything about it.

There is no doubt that if the ruling is operated in connection with baseball all the parks will have to close. There are about 367 players in both major leagues at the present time and nearly 80 per cent. of these would come under the new ruling.

Practically all the players on the local clubs would be taken from the game. The members of the Giants who would come under the ruling are George Burns, 29; Walter Holke, 25; Lew McCarty, 30; Rariden, 30; Wilhoit, 28; Benton, 28; Perritt, 26; Schupp, 26, and Tesreau, 29.

The members of the Yankees who are within the draft age are Bodie, 31; High, 28; Peckinpaugh, 27; Walter Pipp, 25; Pratt, 28; Walters, 25; Caldwell, 30; Mogridge, 28.

The members of the Brooklyn Club within the draft age are Johnston, 29; Miller, 29; Myers, 29; Wheat, 30, and Marquard, 29.

Believe Necessity of Breeding Cavalry Horses Will Save the Sport.

There was little concern among turfmen at the Jamaica track yesterday as to the likelihood of the announcement of Provost Marshal General Crowder affecting horse racing. A few of the younger element who make a daily practice of attending the races were upset by the new order, but the leaders of the sport depend on the value of racing as a means of improving the type of cavalry horses to prevent any radical action on the part of the authorities.

Algernon Daingerfield, Assistant Secretary of the Jockey Club, said that most of the trainers were over the draft age, while most of the jockeys, stable boys, and other employes were either under the draft age, under weight, or under height for military service. According to Mr. Daingerfield, all the jockeys included in the selective draft have filed their questionnaires.

It was pointed out that racing men had come to the front for war service in a manner not exceeded by the participant in any other sport. August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club, has been commissioned a Major and has been a busy man for many months in the progress of the war. Thomas Hitchcock also is a Major and is in command of the aviation field at Mineola, while his son, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., has been captured while flying in France. Major E. B. Cassatt, Major Ral Parr, and Lieutenant Gifford A. Cochran are other prominent owners who have joined the colors, while nearly every gentleman rider is in some branch of the service.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 23.—Fifty per cent. of the jockeys on Kentucky tracks and slightly more than 20 per cent. of all other employes of racing plants in the State will be affected by Provost Marshal General Crowder's order that all men of draft age must either "work or fight," according to figures compiled today by M. J. Winn of Louisville, Vice President of the new Louisville Jockey Club and General Manager of Churchill Downs. Mr. Winn also is interested in tracks at Juarez, Mexico; Laurel, Md., and in New York. A census taken at Churchill Downs today showed a total of 82 out of 403 employes amenable to the new regulations. It included 16 out of an office force of 120; 34 jockeys out of a total of 67, and 82 stable hands, track laborers, special policemen, messengers, &c., out of 216 miscellaneous employes.

Racing in Kentucky, however, and Mr. Winn presumed it also would hold good on Eastern tracks, aside from the almost irreparable loss of jockeys, will be affected only to a limited extent by the new regulations.

MERCHANTS NOT ALARMED.

Agreeable to Crowder as an Aid to Winning the War.

Employers of large numbers of men whose duties make them subject to reassignment to more important work under the provisions of the Provost Marshal General's ruling yesterday were inclined to accept it as something that would help win the war. Here and there business men in the first surprise that followed the news of the order expressed fear that business would be injured by the withdrawal of trained men and the introduction of inexperienced women.

Among the big department stores, such as Gimbel's, Saks, R. H. Macy's, which will suffer more than any other line of business, there was a disposition to await fuller details regarding the working of the rule. The attitude of the heads of the big stores was summed up last night by Jesse I. Straus of R. H. Macy's when he said:

"I would not wish to express an opinion in the matter just now. I prefer to wait until I have had opportunity to study the ruling."

Hotels, which are required to yield their waiters, doormen, footmen, and clerks to war work will face a big problem, proprietors said last night. Lusius M. Boomer, Managing Director of the Waldorf-Astoria, Hotel McAlpin, Hotel Claridge, and the Hotel du Pont, the latter at Wilmington, Del., was quoted as follows:

"If the Government takes all our waiters, clerks, and other attendants it will bring about a very serious situation indeed. The shortage of labor is now very grave. The news is extremely depressing. I employ more than 1,000 waiters, and I don't know what is to be done about it. The employment of women will not solve the problem; they can't be trained over night. However, we can't tell much about the rule until it has been construed through test cases.

"Like everybody else, however," Mr. Boomer added, "we care only for winning the war. Why, if the Government ordered us to shut up shop, we'd close the hotels in a minute—anything for victory."

George Gales, President of the Liggett Drug Stores Corporation said:

'The order of General Crowder will affect us seriously. We have already been hit mighty hard, hundreds of our men having joined the colors. We have employed women and girls at the soda fountains to take the places of the men who have gone to war, and General Crowder's order is one more step toward the employment of many more girls and women. It is serious, but we have all got to co-operate in any way the Government sees fit to bring about victory in the war."

The quotation of Edward Wise, President of the United Cigar Stores Corporation, was:

"General Crowder's order won't affect us at all. We have replaced those of our working force now in military service—10 per cent. have gone—and as others are called we will replace them, if we can; otherwise we'll work with shorter shifts. The war comes first and business afterward. We shall get along the best we can."

Mrs. Mary E. Dreier, Chairman of the New York Committee of Women in Industry of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense said last night that, in her opinion, it would not be altogether easy to obtain the women to fill the vacancies caused by the removal of men from many industries.

FIRE LOSSES IN 1917 TOTAL $250,753,640

FEW OF ALIEN ENEMY ORIGIN

Say Increase Is Due to Speeding Up for War and Hasty Construction of Factories.

Losses by fire in the United States in 1917 aggregate $250,753,640, against $214,530,995 in 1916, the losses last year having exceeded any year since 1875, with the exception of the San Francisco fire in 1906. These figures were made public yesterday at the fifty-second annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters at the Hotel Astor. R. M. Bissell, President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company and President of the National Board, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 137 prominent fire underwriters from all sections of the country, representing fire risks estimated at $55,000,000,000.

Otho E. Lane, Chairman of the board's Committee on Statistics and Origin of Fires, declared that the per capita loss rose from $2.10 in 1916 to $2.42 in 1917. It was a cause of satisfaction, he said, that the Government had finally recognized the necessity of protecting vital industries and had created a Fire Prevention Section of the War Industries Board under competent and experienced supervision. Owing to unsettled conditions no attempt was made in 1917 to secure statistics showing fire losses in European cities.

Few Fires of Enemy Origin.

Contrary to the general impression enemy aliens had little or no part in the losses by fire since the United States entered the war. On this point President Bissell, in his annual report, said:

"As soon as the war began it was realized that the danger of fires caused by enemy incendiaries was not to be ignored, and as was perhaps natural, many sensational rumors gained currency, among them one which mistakenly quoted the National Board of Fire Underwriters as authority for the statement that property to the value of $43,000,000 had been destroyed by fires caused by enemy aliens during the first nine months of the war.

"This published statement had the careful attention of our Actuarial Bureau, and disclosed the fact that as to nearly 95 per cent. of the fires cited there was no proof of incendiary origin, and as to nearly 90 per cent. no reason even for suspicion of such origin. This does not indicate the absence of danger from hostile alien incendiaries, but shows that their success thus far has been by no means as great as was to be expected."

The board's executive expressed the belief that the increase in fire losses was due to war conditions, which had called for the speeding up of industries, the hasty construction of new factories, congestion at plants, and overtime.

The underwriters renewed their pledge of national service "to conserve the nation's resources, and to safeguard its productive facilities from interruption by fire, in the hope of aiding and hastening victory over the common foe."

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Frederick C. Buswell, Home Insurance Company; Vice President, Charles L. Case, London Assurance Company; Treasurer, Charles J. Holman, Commercial Union Company, and Secretary, George G. Bulkley, Springfield Fire and Marine Company; Executive Committee, C. G. Smith, Henry E. Rees, P. L. Hoadley, Frank Lock, Lyman Candee, R. D. Harvey, J. B. Levison, W. R. Hodge, A. D. Baker, and Edward Meinel.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 16,361 packages. Larger offerings, more reserved buying and a lower and unsettled market for all grades. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 44½@45c; extras, (92 score,) 44c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41½@43½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37@41c; thirds, 35@36c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 46@46½c; extras, 45@45½c; firsts, 42½@44½c; seconds, 39@42c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 43½@44c; good to prime, 41@43c; common to fair, 35@40c; renovated, extras, 38@38½c; firsts, 37@37½c; lower grades, 32@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 34@34½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 31½@32½c; seconds, 30½c; lower grades, 28½@30c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 30@30½c; No. 2, 29@29½c; lower grades, 27@28½c.

EGGS.—41,741 cases. Arrivals are heavy, but they include only a small proportion of strictly high grade Northern stock; the great bulk of the offerings are of good medium and lower qualities and for these there is strong pressure to sell with a continued slow outlet and a weak and irregular market. There is a fair call for strictly high grade goods; prices for such are rated fairly steady, sales are at a wide range, and the great bulk of the Western current packings is unsalable above 32@33c. Dirties in fair demand, but the supply is liberal and holders are free sellers. Nearby white eggs contain only a small proportion of strictly fancy large, chalk-white, newlaid quality, and for these prices rule in sellers' favor with some sales a little above present quotations; the great bulk of the supply, however, is more or less defective and is still pressed for sale, a large part ranging from 36@38½c; Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed extra firsts, 35½@36c; regular packed firsts, 32½@34c; seconds and poorer, 28@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 29½@30c; No. 1, regular packed, 29@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 27@28½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 27@28½c; under grades, 20@26c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@41c; ordinary to prime, 36@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 35@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 33@35c; duck eggs, 29@42c.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Uncertain Until Near the Close—Little Public Interest Shown.

Nothing could have indicated more clearly the extent to which professional trading was dominating yesterday's session on the Stock Exchange than the manner in which the market was rushed up in the last few minutes of the day, under the leadership of a house which is always thought of in connection with activity in Steel. Up to that point prices were for the most part sagging around lower levels, but the sharp spurt in the late afternoon extinguished the losses in United States Steel common, leaving that issue ahead of its previous day's close, and helped other issues to recover at least a part of their earlier declines. Under the influence of profit-taking sales, Steel had moved back to 106⅝ in the early afternoon. From that level it moved quickly nearly 3 points higher, ending the session at the best price of the day, with a net advance of 1⅞ points.

Sentiment was influenced largely by the failure of the copper producers to persuade the War Industries Board of their need for an increase in the Government price for the metal. It is true that the Government's proposal to continue the price at 23½ cents a pound for three months is as yet tentative, and it may become necessary to establish a differential for the mines laboring under heavy production costs. It is asserted in the trade that only the larger companies can continue to operate at the fixed price and make a profit. It has been suggested that for the less economically situated properties the Government may decide to allow a price fixed by the cost plus a percentage for profit and depreciation. The war is now taking practically all of the copper produced, and it is essential that the output should not be curtailed by the retention of a price too low for many of the companies. It is probable that the principal producers can continue to sell their copper at 23½ cents and make a fair profit on it, but even in their case it is expected that some readjustment may be made to cover higher costs at the smelters.

Wall Street has learned to fear Congress at work on new revenue measures, and trading has followed an uncertain trend since it became known that there was a fair likelihood of new taxation measures being introduced at this session. The outstanding lesson of the discussions and conferences in committee which preceded enactment of the present income and excess profits tax laws was that in future the work of drafting new legislation should await the recommendations of experts given every opportunity to determine a scientific basis for new levies.

Wilson & Co., Allis-Chalmers, American Linseed, Sumatra, American Telephone, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Lackawanna Steel, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical were all strong in yesterday's market, but most other issues lost ground. The copper shares were fractionally weaker, except Utah, which lost a full 2 points, and the rails showed further losses, as people had more time to think over the effect of the changes which the Director General is making. The new Government bonds were fairly active at the levels established earlier in the week. Call money loaned for the most part at 5 per cent., with some offerings at 4 per cent., while time money was practically unobtainable, though quoted nominally at the old rate.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Far Eastern Stocks Supported on Chino-Japanese Agreement.

LONDON, May 23.—Money was in fair demand today, but discounts were quiet. Trading on the Stock Exchange was cheerful.

War loans were firm while the Far Eastern stocks were supported on news of the Chino-Japanese understanding. Central American bonds were firmer on the bondholders' offer to purchase bonds.

Shipping securities were higher and were bought by investors.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 23.—Trading on the Bourse was calm today. Three per cent. Rentes were quoted at 59 francs 75 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 15½ centimes. Five per cent loan, 87 francs 80 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Although Call Loans Are Renewed at 5%, New Borrowings Effected at 4%.

The opening rate for call money was 5 per cent., at which figure loans were renewed, but later in the day the rate moved down to 4 per cent., which was also the closing quotation. There was a good demand for time money, but only a small quantity was available, the rate for all maturities now being 6 per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Salaries of Executives.

The size of the salaries paid to railroad Presidents has been the subject of discussion in Wall Street in the last few days. Although it is generally understood that at least three railroad executives have been paid $100,000 a year and one the sum of $75,000, F. H. Sisson declares that "the average salary of railway executives of the country is only about $6,200." This figure certainly looks small, but the fact is that "average salary" is a very misleading quantity. Furthermore, there are railroad Presidents and railroad Presidents, just as there are bankers and bankers, and much depends on the size of the man and of the property of which he is placed in charge. In the annual report of the Controller of the Currency for the year ended Oct. 31, 1916, John Skelton Williams appended a table of figures showing the salaries paid to Presidents of national banks. It appears that the average salary paid by ten banks in the Central Reserve cities having a capital of $5,000,000 or more is $49,000 a year. The same tabulation shows that the average salary paid to Presidents of national banks having a capital of $50,000 and less than $100,000 is $1,354 per annum, and the average salary of heads of banks with a capital of $100,000 and less than $250,000 is given as $2,414. It is believed that on account of the high cost of living the salaries of the small and big bank Presidents have been increased since 1916.

Steel Has Strong Recovery.

The last half-hour's dealings in Steel yesterday were placed among the most unusual and unexpected trading developments of the year. Up to 2:30 o'clock it appeared as though a long series of stop loss orders were being uncovered one after another, and the whole market had a decidedly weak tone. At 106⅝ Steel showed a drop of nearly 3 points from the high of the day. At the moment when the stock looked weakest a flood of buying orders came into the market, and in long strings of quotations, for blocks running to a large extent from 200 to 1,500 shares, the price ran forward until at the close a net gain of 1⅞ points for the session was recorded. One firm with Western wire connections bought in the neighborhood of 40,000 shares during the final hour.

***

The B. R. T. Note Issue.

News is expected next Tuesday from the War Finance Corporation in Washington regarding the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's application to issue $150,000,000 of new bonds, or at least enough of this issue to take care of the company's $57,735,000 of gold notes, which mature July 1 and form one of the largest single maturities of the current year.

***

Russian Government Bonds.

Bankers showed considerable interest in the special cable dispatch from Paris, published in THE TIMES yesterday, which told of the apprehension of French investors regarding the interest payments on Russian Government bonds, due in July, and which reported the intimation in Paris banking circles that the French Government was not likely to assume the payment of interest, as it has done in the past. New York bankers said that they had no definite knowledge on the subject, and did not know whether or not the interest payments on the Russian external loans floated in the United States would be paid next month. Thus far Russia has not defaulted, but has promptly met the interest on the 5½ and 6½ per cent. loans, the former of which matures in December, 1921, and the latter in June, 1919. Semi-annual interest on the $25,000,000 issue of 5½ per cent. bonds is due on June 1, and semi-annual interest on the $50,000,000 issue of 6½ per cent. bonds is due on June 18. The National City Bank, which has acted as fiscal agent for the old Imperial Russian Government and which has heretofore made the interest payments on the bonds, is presumed to hold funds belonging to the old Government, but all information concerning the same is unavailable by reason of the fact that it is a matter concerning the bank and its client. The 5½ per cent. bonds are quoted at 38@40 and the 6½s at 41@42.

***

White Star Profit and Marine Deal.

Officials of the International Mercantile Marine Company in New York had little to say yesterday regarding the cabled report of earnings for 1917 of the White Star Line, or rather the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, which indicated a net after taxes for that company alone of $6,888,000 on a capitalization—all the stock being owned by the I. M. M.—of $18,000,000, and stated that £200,000, or nearly $1,000,000, had been added during the year to the reserve, or undivided profits. President Franklin of the I. M. M. said some time ago he had given up hope of definite figures on the company's British subsidiaries until after the annual meeting. The unofficial figures, however, give some idea of the size of the consideration in the deal for sale of these British properties.

Another Bank to Double Its Capital.

Following the announcement a few days ago that the Fifth Avenue Bank had called a special meeting of stockholders to ratify the plan for increasing its capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000, it was learned yesterday that the Yorkville Bank of 1,511 Third Avenue had sent out a notice for a stockholders' meeting to be held June 6, at which time action will be taken looking toward the increase of its capital from $100,000 to $200,000. The stockholders of the Yorkville will also be asked to approve of the bank's application for membership in the Federal Reserve system.

A Speculative Day.

The stock market as a whole had a distinctly professional flavor. Baldwin supplied an excellent illustration. When the price had descended from 94 to around 91, a "hot tip" went around the speculative fraternity to buy it at 90, and shortly the effect of the advice was seen. The price touched 90¼, and then buying orders flowed in, bringing a recovery of more than 3 points.

***

Large Output of Bear News.

The bulk of the day's news of market import was decidedly on the side of the bears. Further discussion of taxation schedules, the copper price decision as reported in early dispatches from Washington, and also Washington comment to the effect that the Government might decide to commandeer all the output of steel mills, were items upon which short sellers fatten and which weak-kneed holders of stocks deplore.

***

Government Control of Steel.

Rumors that actual Government control of the physical assets of steel companies was a possibility have been brushed aside by manufacturers as stories without basis in fact. They point out that no hint has come to them that such a development is being considered in any Government quarter. As far as Federal control of output is concerned, that has already become effective, and there is no complaint over the situation in steelmaking circles. The Government is to get all the steel it needs, and what is over will go to commercial consumers.

***

Anomalies of Cotton.

The official spot quotation yesterday on the New York Cotton Exchange was a final acknowledgment of the hopeless disparity between cotton futures and spot prices which has prevailed all this year, but been emphasized since the recent big declines in futures. With futures prices declining on the day from 18 to 36 points, the Spot Quotation Committee felt compelled, in view of the news from New Orleans regarding the spot situation, and the prices obtained for spot cotton at auction on Wednesday, to mark up the spot quotation 75 points, at a premium of 300 points on July. Local spot houses are refusing 600 points on July for good middling cotton, it is reported, but dealers in futures are still selling the market down. At this rate apparently something will have to break eventually.

The British, French and American Armies are so certain of victory that the only thing we can be at all undecided about is how long the war will last. With the conclusion of peace and the gradual return of normal conditions, many investors will undoubtedly regret their lack of decision at times when sound securities could be bought to yield well over 7%.

Another Use of Odd Lots

Odd Lots are the anchors of conservatism of people who are able to trade in hundred share lots but who prefer to trade in smaller lots with greater protection.

Four Boroughs Increased.

A comparison of the above figures with those for the Second Liberty Loan shows that while the Boroughs of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens, and Richmond recorded much larger totals for the Third Loan than for the Second, the other subdivisions of the district, notably Manhattan, furnished a smaller volume. The quota for the Second Loan, fixed by local bankers, was $1,500,000,000 instead of $900,000,000, the figure determined by the Treasury Department. Following is a summary of the record for the Second Loan:

| New York City. | Quota. | Subscriptions. |
|---|---|---|
| Manhattan | $1,012,813,500 | $1,093,189,000 |
| Brooklyn | 54,148,500 | 44,424,200 |

| Fairfield County, Conn. | 13,390,500 | 15,775,150 |
| Total for district | $1,500,000,000 | $1,550,453,500 |

For the Third Liberty Loan twenty-three banks and trust companies in this city filed subscriptions for themselves and customers in amounts in excess of $10,000,000. In the previous campaign the list of institutions supplying applications in excess of $10,000,000 numbered twenty-five. Following is a record of the twenty-three banks, with comparisons for the Second Loan:

| | Third Liberty Loan. | Second Liberty Loan. |

| Union Trust Co. | 10,264,500 | 20,106,000 |

More Individual Buyers.

The totals for subscriptions of the large banks was smaller for the Third Loan than for the second by reason of the fact that a much better and wider distribution of the loan was obtained in the case of the later loan, the number of subscriptions filed totaling 3,343,123, compared with 2,182,017. This large increase consisted principally of small subscriptions, which naturally were not filed through the big banks. The number of subscriptions for bonds from $50 to $10,000 was 3,336,980 for the Third Loan, compared with 2,173,884 in the case of the Second Loan.

Another reason why the totals of the larger banks was smaller in the case of the Third Loan was that the Secretary of the Treasury had announced that applications for bonds would be allotted in full, while in offering the bonds of the Second Liberty Loan he agreed to allot only 50 per cent. of the oevrsubscription.

SEES FEDERALIZING OF ALL BANK RESOURCES

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC, N. J., May 23.—Federalization of the banking resources of the nation along lines similar to the seizure of the railroads, to make them give the largest possible service to the country, was predicted by John H. Mason, President of the Commercial Trust Company of Philadelphia, in an address before the Trust Company Section of the Pennsylvania State Bankers' Association here today.

He prophesied that it would come about soon and that it should be anticipated. "If I am not greatly mistaken, there is a very pronounced trend toward the Federalization of our banking system," Mr. Mason said. "We can best meet it by looking it straight in the face and helping to guide it into the channels in which it should move. We must face these problems openly and squarely and with no view but the interest of the nation. The time for viewing these problems of finance in a selfish way has gone.

"I can figure that if the Liberty Loan had failed we, as bankers, would soon find ourselves occupying virtually the same position as the railroad men. The Federal Government practically would conscript us because we had not cooperated. We know that the railroad men strove to keep their separate interests paramount to the interests of the Government, and if the bankers should evince any tendency to move in that direction we may know exactly what to expect."

Former Lieutenant Governor John M. Reynolds of Beaver created a sensation with his declaration that the Pennsylvania Legislature for years had been openly violating the spirit of the State Constitution by granting special banking acts and privileges.

Patriotism was the keynote of the meeting. Every delegate wears a knot of red, white, and blue ribbon, and the convention souvenir is a book, "Our Boys With the Colors." It is printed in the national colors and contains the names of 1,753 banking men from Pennsylvania who have answered the nation's call.

Local bankers were uncertain as to the form of Federal control of the banks which Mr. Mason had in mind as a possibility in his address. To all intents and purposes the majority of the country's national banks and many of the State banks and trust companies are already closely affiliated with the Government through membership in the Federal Reserve system. It could not be learned here that any sort of action similar to the Government's management of the railroads was considered at Washington, or that such a step was looked upon as a remote possibility.

NOTE ISSUE SELLS FAST.

$2,000,000 Timken-Detroit Axle 7s Taken in Less Than Hour.

The National City Company sold yesterday in less than an hour a $2,000,000 issue of one, two, and three year 7 per cent. notes of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company at prices yielding investors from 7 to 7⅜ per cent. The managers of the various offices of the company were advised of the terms of the issue in advance, but were not permitted to make an offering until 9 A. M. yesterday morning. Before 10 o'clock orders were telegraphed in from all parts of the country, the sum total being in excess of the issue.

The Timken-Detroit Axle Company is the largest manufacturer in the world of axles for motor vehicles, and 117 makers of automobiles in this country use its axles. The notes issued are the direct obligations of the company and will constitute its only obligations outstanding in the hands of the public. The proceeds of the issue will be used to fund notes payable and to provide additional working capital to take care of increased production. A considerable part of the work on hand is for the Government.

The company was organized in June, 1909. It has outstanding $1,850,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $2,900,000 of common stock.

The company's balance sheet as of March 31 shows over $6,300,000 of fixed assets and $11,257,000 of current assets, against which the company had outstanding no obligations other than current liabilities of only $4,452,000. Fixed and net current assets together amounted to more than $13,000,000, or 6½ times the note issue. Net income for the three years ended Dec. 31, 1917, average $2,697,730 per annum, or more than nineteen times the entire annual interest on the notes.

WESTINGHOUSE CO. EARNS $16,834,732

New High Records for Bookings and Deliveries, but Greater Costs Cut Profit.

GROSS SALES $95,735,406

Report Tells of Loss of $5,000,000 by Cancellation of Order for Rifles by Russia.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company established a new high record for bookings and deliveries in the fiscal year ended March 31 last, but higher costs and the application of the Federal war taxes reduced the profit below the return in the preceding year. The annual statement issued yesterday showed that $147,857,580 worth of orders were on the books at the end of the year, an increase of more than $37,600,000 over the total reported twelve months before. A substantial part was contracts for turbine engines to be placed in the ships of the new merchant marine.

The gross sales amounted to $95,735,406, an increase of $6,195,964. These included the proceeds of output from the Westinghouse Machine Company from June 15 onward, and also $4,536,000 worth of munitions. The net earnings for the year were $16,834,732, against $18,848,287 in 1917. The Machine Company was absorbed by the major Westinghouse organization. The report lumped together operating expenses, depreciation, extension, taxes, &c., in a single item of $80,225,936 costs, an increase of more than $8,000,000. The final balance available for common stock dividends was equal to 21.3 per cent. on the outstanding issue, against 25.13 per cent. the year before. The principal items of the income account are presented here:

|---|---|---|
| Bookings, April 1 | $147,857,580 | $110,185,007 |
| Gross sales | 95,735,406 | 89,539,442 |
| Costs, taxes, &c. | 80,225,936 | 72,077,752 |
| Operating profit | 15,509,469 | 17,461,690 |
| Outside income | 1,825,263 | 1,386,547 |
| Balance for dividend | 15,405,680 | 18,079,889 |
| Per cent. for com. stk. | 21.3 | 25.13 |

"The property and plant accounts," the report said in discussing the assets, "includes expenditures during the year in connection with the new plant known as the Essington Works, located near Philadelphia, to which reference was made in the report for last year. The plant, which is now completed and nearly equipped, is operating with a force of about 3,000 men, which it is expected will be increased to approximately 5,000 during the year. Contracts with the United States Government for equipment for cargo ships will occupy the capacity of the plant for approximately two years."

The company recorded the cancellation of the Russian rifle order a few months back. "The cancellation resulted in the company sustaining the full loss of $5,000,000, against which a reserve in that amount was set aside last year," the report stated. Almost simultaneously with the receipt of the notice of cancellation, inquiries were received from the United States Government as to the manufacture by the New England Westinghouse Company of heavy Browning machine guns. Orders were taken and deliveries began in April, the statement said, and were now in advance of the schedule fixed by the contract.

The merger with the machine company and the construction of the Essington plant aided in expanding the property account by $18,466,760 during the year to a total of $41,167,874. The need of large inventories caused an increase in the amount of notes outstanding of $12,282,301 net, the aggregate of indebtedness of this class being $30,186,051 at the end of the year. The year's surplus was $8,299,396, and the full profit and loss surplus on March 31 amounted to $26,404,694.

MAY KEEP COPPER AT 23½.

War Board So Recommends to President—Producers Disappointed.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Recommendation that the maximum price of copper fixed by the Government at 23½ cents a pound at Eastern refineries be continued for seventy-five days, beginning June 1, was made to President Wilson today by the Price-Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board. Final decision rests with the President, who is expected to issue a proclamation in a few days fixing the price for the next period. The present price expires May 31.

The recommendation by the War Industries Board that the price of copper be continued at 23½ cents a pound until Aug. 15 was a distinct disappointment to copper producers here. Before the conference was held on Wednesday between copper men and representatives of the board it had been expected that an increase from one-half to a full cent a pound would be permitted, part of it to be designated as an offset to producers for increased charges by refiners for handling their smelter output.

Copper men were inclined to believe that some adjustments would be made within the specified seventy-five days in behalf of the producers, whose costs have been running particularly high and are going higher. It was suggested that the Government might decide, as a measure for keeping output at a maximum level to satisfy the war demand, to put into operation a form of sliding scale prices for the mines which prove that an adequate profit cannot be made at 23½ cents a pound. Calculations have been made that from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 pounds now being produced in this country per year cost the producers 20 cents a pound or more.

The chief subject of the conference, it was said, was the position of the refiners. Most of them handle copper "concentrates" on a long-term contract, and the plea has been advanced by some of the larger concerns that without higher compensation than the contracts call for they will receive so meagre a profit as to make the business hardly worth while.

The mining companies, whose bills for labor, material, fuel, &c., have been advancing steadily, contend that they cannot afford to pay increased refining charges without equivalent compensation in the price of their product.

The Committee, representing bonds of the above issue, has concluded arrangements enabling the Receiver to provide funds for the payment of the interest which matured on the above bonds on April 1, 1918.

The holders of Certificates of Deposit will be paid the amounts to which they are entitled, as interest on their deposited bonds, upon presentation of their Certificates of Deposit at the office of The New York Trust Company, 26 Broad Street, New York City.

While the holders of undeposited bonds will also be paid their interest on presentation of the coupons for such interest at the office of The New York Trust Company, the Committee, nevertheless, in view of the Receivership of the Company and other existing conditions, deem it of especial importance that bondholders should promptly deposit their bonds with the Committee, in order to obtain the benefits to be gained from concerted action on behalf of the depositing bondholders acting through the Committee.

Undeposited bonds should be promptly deposited with The New York Trust Company, Depositary, or with the First Trust and Savings Bank, Agent of the Depositary, 68 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois, on the deposit of which transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued under the Deposit Agreement dated June 1, 1917.

issued by Bankers Trust Company as Depositary of the Bondholders' Committee constituted by the agreement dated May 28, 1917:

Your Committee announces that, after protracted negotiations and after hearings before the United States District Court at which your Committee was represented by counsel, and with the co-operation of the Director General of Railroads and the Receiver, arrangements have been made for the payment of the interest due February 1, 1918, on the bonds above mentioned.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit will receive payment of their interest upon presentation thereof at the office of the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries on or after the 24th day of MAY, 1918, accompanied by proper ownership certificates under the Federal Income Tax law in respect of such interest.

Had it not been for the Committee's ability to act for a large number of bonds, the February coupon would still be in default. The more bonds that are deposited with the Committee, the easier will it be for the Committee to secure payment of the next maturing coupon and the coupons falling due thereafter.

All deposited bonds, whether registered or coupon, must be in negotiable form, and coupon bonds must bear the coupon of August 1, 1918, and all subsequent coupons. Upon such deposit, Certificates of Deposit will be issued as provided in the Deposit Agreement dated May 28, 1917.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained upon application to the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries or to the Secretary of the Committee.

THE COTTON MARKET

Futures Show Further Signs of Weakness Here—Net Loss from 18 to 36 Points.

Cotton futures continued to show signs of weakness on the local market yesterday, despite the demonstration afforded by Wednesday's sale of the strength of the market for spot delivery of even low-grade cotton. At times the selling, particularly in July and October, was very active and general, and at its lowest point the market was off from 50 to 65 points net, with the active new crop months making new low records for the current season. There was some trade buying at the soft spots, however, and enough covering at the close to cause a fairly strong reaction, with the close very steady, off from 18 to 36 points net.

It was very largely a trading market, and this condition was reflected in the comparatively rapid and irregular fluctuations. The opening was irregular, with May contracts once more in demand by the short interest, up 15 points over Wednesday's close, and later months off various amounts. As soon as this early demand was supplied, offerings were made in sufficient volume to carry prices down some 50 points on the average. Most of this business appeared to be the liquidation of old long contracts by disappointed purchasers who had hoped for a sharp upward reaction some weeks ago.

There was another covering rally early in the afternoon, but it did not bring prices back more than 20 points, and only accelerated the liquidation, which brought the lowest prices of the day in the late afternoon. These prices were attractive to some trade buyers, however, and there was a substantial rally at the close.

A flurry in May contracts on the New Orleans Exchange attracted considerable attention and helped strengthen prices here. All reports on the spot situation, especially as regards the amount of low-grade cotton available, compared with the better grades, are extraordinarily confusing. This is attributed by some well-informed men to the remarkably large amount of "bollies" sent to the gins last Fall because of the enormous prices being paid then for anything that could be called cotton. Much of this stuff is supposed to have got into the statistics, although it is not spinnable and fit only for powder manufacture. The sharp rise in May contracts in New Orleans, combined with the enormous differences being paid here and the unprecedented premiums for July over October, are the subject of much comment by local cotton men, as indicating the difficulty of securing salable cotton to fill orders, despite new-crop prices. Trading in the May contract ceases at noon today.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Reports from the Northwestern Spring wheat States indicated a very favorable outlook for Spring wheat, some authorities predicting that unless some unforeseen damage occurs the chances are very favorable for a bumper yield. An authority on plant diseases in Iowa seems to think that the chances are in favor of the development of black rust in the wheat and oats in that State, as it was said that samples had been discovered on some of the plants.

RYE.

CORN.

After showing a certain amount of firmness early the corn market experienced a very sharp break toward the close, and final quotations were 1⅝@3¼c net lower. The local cash market was unsettled. Kiln dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.80¾, ten days' shipment, and No. 4 yellow, $1.70¾, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The congestion in the May position in the Chicago oats market has apparently been relieved by large deliveries, and in consequence the whole market was weaker, closing with net losses of ⅞c to 2c. The local cash market was weak and lower; standard quoted at 81¼c to 82c; No. 2 white, 82¼c; No. 3 white, 81c to 81¼c; No. 4 white, 80c to 81c; fancy clipped white, 83c to 86c; ordinary clipped white, 82c to 83c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was easier under increased selling pressure, prompted largely by a decline in the price of live hogs and in sympathy with the weakness in grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 33,000; estimated for Friday, 18,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 17,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Business on the Coffee Exchange yesterday was again quiet and confined mostly to the evening up of outstanding contracts. The opening was at declines of 3 to 6 points, with a leading Wall Street house taking the selling side, believed to be liquidation of outside interests. Values held within a narrow range, final prices showing net declines of 1 to 6 points. The Rio spot market was unchanged, while Santos spots and futures were not quoted. Receipts at the two ports were 40,000 bags, against 13,000 bags a year ago. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The three Eastern ports showed heavy gains in receipts and meltings for the week ending May 19. There was again in receipts of about 8,000 tons and meltings were practically 10,500 tons over the preceding week. New York refineries participated to no little extent in the gains. The International Sugar Committee reported purchases of 7,000 bags Cuban raws, June shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 12,500 tons Porto Ricos, June shipment, at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed strong in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Buying orders in great volume made their appearance in the final hour, and the rally, which was particularly pronounced in Steel common, affected the entire list and continued to the close. Heavy losses, which had been registered earlier in the afternoon session, causing many issues to make new low levels for the day, were recovered and not a few stocks made net gains.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY:

The Board of Directors presents the following report of the operations of your Company and its proprietary companies (except New England Westinghouse Company) for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1918, together with the usual financial and other statements of that date.

INCOME ACCOUNT FOR THE YEAR

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Gross Earnings: | | |
| Sales Billed | | $95,735,406.75 |
| Cost of Sales: | | |
| Factory Cost, including all Expenditures for Patterns, Dies, New Small Tools and Other Betterments and Extensions; also Depreciations of Property and Plant, Inventory Adjustments and all Selling Administration, General and Development Expenses and all Taxes | | 80,225,936.91 |
| Net Manufacturing Profit | | $15,509,469.84 |
| Other Income: | | |
| Interest and Discount | $308,834.71 | |
| Dividends and Interest on Sundry Stocks and Bonds Owned | 903,559.19 | |
| Miscellaneous—Royalties, etc. | 112,869.62 | 1,325,263.52 |
| Gross Income From All Sources | | $16,834,733.36 |
| Deductions From Income: | | |
| Interest on Bonds and Debentures | $303,916.68 | |
| Interest on Notes Payable | 1,108,046.38 | |
| Miscellaneous Interest | 17,089.41 | $1,429,052.47 |
| Net Income Available for Dividends and Other Purposes | | $15,405,680.89 |

The Gross Earnings (sales billed) for the year include shipments since June 15, 1917, from the Machine Works (formerly Westinghouse Machine Co.), also $4,536,000 for munitions. The volume of sales billed for the regular products of your Company was greatly in excess of any previous year.

The Net Income for the year is stated after deductions for all taxes. The amounts included in the Cost of Sales for taxes, including Excess Profit Tax, are based on reports filed with the various authorities as required by law.

As of April 1, 1918, the value of unfilled orders in hand was $147,857,580, of which $110,185,007 was for the regular products of your Company. No facilities heretofore employed on regular products are engaged on munition work.

INCOME AND PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT

The Surplus as of March 31, 1917, $18,105,298.66, was increased by the Net Income of $15,405,680.89 for the year, making the Gross Surplus $33,510,979.55.

In addition to the regular quarterly dividends at the rate of 7% per annum on the preferred and common stocks, a special "Red Cross" dividend was paid, making a total of $5,610,848.11 for all dividends paid during the year.

Special appropriations were made for the protection of inventory book values and to establish a research and development fund. After deducting these appropriations and other miscellaneous adjustments the Net Surplus as of March 31, 1918, is $26,404,694.73, an increase of $8,299,396.07 over the Net Surplus as of March 31, 1917.

The plan referred to in the report for last year for the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company with your Company was made effective as of June 15, 1917. The accounts of the two companies were consolidated on a basis that resulted in no change in the Surplus of your Company because of the merger.

ASSETS

The Property and Plant account includes expenditures during the year in connection with the new plant known as the Essington Works, located near Philadelphia, Pa., to which reference was made in the report for last year. This plant, which is now completed and nearly equipped, is operating with a force of about 3,000 men, which it is expected will be increased to approximately 5,000 during the year. Contracts with the United States Government for equipment for cargo ships will occupy the capacity of this plant for approximately two years.

Another important improvement completed during the year is a factory at Trenton, N. J., for the manufacture of incandescent lamps. This factory has been in operation for some months.

The increase in Investments includes a subscription for Liberty Loan Bonds of the second issue, the only other important additions being the capital stocks of other companies acquired under the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company and your Company.

In the latter part of 1916 a proposal was submitted to your Directors for the purchase of a small portion of your holdings in The British Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Limited, in order that a controlling interest might be transferred from the United States to England. After careful consideration your Directors concluded that the commercial position of The British Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Limited, would be improved if the control of that Company were owned in England instead of the United States, but decided that the sale of your entire holdings was the only satisfactory solution of the situation. Accordingly negotiations were concluded under which your holdings of 4% debenture stock and preference and ordinary shares in the British Company were sold to a syndicate formed in London (Electric Holdings, Limited) and payment therefor has been received in 5% prior lien debenture bonds maturing in ten years. These bonds are secured by the pledge of all the said securities sold and certain other additional collateral.

This change in your investments was made without change in book values and has, therefore, not affected the balance sheet.

Certain new trading agreements of mutual advantage have been entered into between the British Company, Electric Holdings, Limited, and your Company.

The great increase in the demand for the regular products of your Company, as shown by the volume of business completed during the year and by the volume of orders in hand, has required large increases in Working and Trading Assets. Further reference to this is made in the comments under Liabilities.

LIABILITIES

The consolidation of accounts resulting from the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company with your Company brings into the balance sheet this year the outstanding balances of bonds and debentures issued by the Machine Company. The total of the annual sinking fund requirements with respect to all these issues is $150,000.

Your Company's Ten Year Collateral Notes aggregating $2,720,000 maturing October 1, 1917, were paid and the collateral has been returned to the treasury of the Company. Additional notes of the issue of 15-year 5% Notes due January 1, 1924, were offered during the year and redeemed, leaving only $52,500 outstanding of the several issues of notes made in 1909.

Reference has already been made to the large increases in inventories made necessary by the unprecedented volume of your Company's business. As a result your Company during the year increased the total of its outstanding notes payable by $12,282,801, the total amount of notes payable outstanding as of March 31, 1918, being $30,186,051. This includes $15,000,000 One Year Notes and $2,433,551 on account of Liberty Loan Bonds subscribed for by your Company and its employes.

NEW ENGLAND WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY

In the report for last year you were advised of a modified agreement made with the British Government with respect to the contracts for the manufacture of Russian rifles. The New England Company under this modified agreement was regularly producing rifles in excess of the originally estimated capacity of its plants, but when slightly more than 1,000,000 rifles had been delivered and probably because of the conditions arising in Russia resulting in the withdrawal of that country from the war, the British Government in December, 1917, exercised its privilege of cancellation of the undelivered part of the contracts. However, almost simultaneously with the receipt of this notice of cancellation inquiries were received from the United States Government as to the manufacture by the New England Company of heavy Browning Machine Guns. Negotiations resulted in the receipt of orders from the United States Government thus enabling the New England Company to retain its organization not only to its own advantage, but especially to the advantage of our Government in having available for immediate use both manufacturing facilities and a trained organization for the production of Machine Guns. Deliveries began in April, and are in advance of the schedule fixed by the contract.

The cancellation of the Russian rifle contracts resulted in your Company sustaining the full loss of $5,000,000 against which a reserve in that amount was set aside last year. Your Directors therefore authorized the absorption of this amount in said reserve. The necessary entries were made as of December 31, 1917, so that the books of your Company as of March 31, 1918, include no accounts relating to the contracts for Russian rifles.

The entire outstanding capital stock of New England Westinghouse Company is owned by your Company and is carried at a valuation considerably below the estimated value of its real estate and buildings and other assets which are free of all indebtedness or encumbrance of any nature. The contracts with the United States Government for machine guns are on a cost plus basis.

The Certificate of Messrs. Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, covering the audit by them of the books and accounts of your Company and its proprietary companies appears in full in the printed report.

The abnormal conditions prevailing during the year called for unusual effort on the part of the officers and employees of your Company. The Board of Directors has pleasure in hereby expressing its appreciation of the efficient manner in which the unusual conditions were met and the general devotion to the Company's interests evidenced throughout the year.

By order of the Board of Directors.
GUY E. TRIPP, Chairman.

Raw Silk Prices Are Firm.

Recent cables from Yokohama report the raw silk market there to be well sustained at the prices reached in the recent decline, which was sharp, and similar situations as to steadiness are reported from the other leading markets. A fairly good demand has been evident for Japanese raws at the prices touched in the decline, and visible supplies are now estimated at 9,500 bales. The Canton market reports a moderate demand from this country, with European buying less active than it was. New steam filatures have been active at Shanghai, at slightly revised prices. Tussahs are in renewed demand. The best old tsatlees there are gone, and the new ones are offered at prices rather above the parity of the local market. Milan reports nothing new. Locally some contracts running to the end of the year are told of. Spot sales also are larger as a result of the drop in Japanese silks.

Argentina Wants Phonographs.

The demand for phonographs in Argentina is reported by local exporters to be very active. Though many high-priced instruments are wanted, the bulk of the trade seems to be in those lines made to retail for from $5 to $10 each. Business of the latter kind is said to have increased materially during the last few years since communication with Germany was cut. It is said also that the American machines are gaining such a solid hold on the market in that country that the probabilities are they will hold the trade they have gained, even after Germany is again able to enter the South American field.

The Paper Market.

Buying in the local paper market is continuing on a large scale, according to reports from authorities in this trade. Prices are holding firm at about the high levels established several weeks ago. Bond paper is selling around 12 cents a pound, and Manila wrapping rules between 6 and 6½ cents a pound. While there are some mills which will accept orders at present prices, many are still insisting on orders being placed subject to price at time of shipment. Few of them, however, are in a position to accept much more business for delivery sooner than from two to four months hence.

They Are Making Money Easily.

Commenting yesterday on the numerous offerings of serges contained in the "Offerings to Buyers" section of the Buyers' Wants in THE TIMES lately, a local manufacturer said that this was visible proof that many concerns were endeavoring to turn an extra penny by buying up odd lots of serges and other staple woolen dress fabrics and selling them at tidy profits. He knew personally of a case, he said, in which a certain other manufacturer had one day sold a portion of his serge holdings to a buyer at 80 cents a yard more than he paid for them. The next day the same buyer returned and bought a larger lot, of a somewhat better quality, at an advance of $1 a yard over the original price. In each case the buyer virtually fought for the goods, which, it is expected, he will try to sell to some one else at still higher prices later in the year.

Bay Rum Supplies Low.

Importers in this city of West Indian bay rum are said to be experiencing considerable difficulty in getting their supplies to this country due to the fact that shipments of sugar from the West Indies are taking up practically all of the available tonnage. Stocks of bay rum on hand are said to be very near the vanishing point. Demand is reported to have been very active for some time, and the market is strong with a tendency toward higher prices. Present quotations range from $3.55 to $3.65 a gallon as compared with $3.25 to $3.35 ten days or two weeks ago. But even these new high prices seem to have failed to bring out any large quantity offerings.

Clothing Sales Bulk Large.

Salesmen who are now returning from their Fall trips, especially those representing the larger manufacturers of men's overcoats and suits, tell of the biggest advance business they have ever done from a dollars and cents point of view. In some cases it is also asserted that the actual sales were larger, and at least one large concern is known to have written as much advance business for the coming season alone as it wrote during all of last year. Reports from the smaller manufacturers are much less rosy, due very largely, it is said, to the fact that the retailers have been so thoroughly imbued with the idea of a fabric shortage that they will buy merchandise only from houses that can guarantee full deliveries. Many of the smaller clothiers, unable to do this, are said to be hard put for business.

Sees Big Summer Hat Business.

The biggest Summer hat season that has been seen in this country in years is predicted for June and July by a well-known member of the millinery trade, and he holds the trimmed hat responsible for it in a very large way. Women of all classes, he said yesterday, are becoming more and more individual in their dress, and they are finding that one of the easiest things in which to be distinctive is in their hats. The result is apparent in the sales of trimmings, especially flowers and feathers. One jobber of these goods recently has done business in them that shows a daily gain of 50 to 100 per cent. over the corresponding days of last year. A view favoring trimmed hats is that their garishness, if it is not overdone, lends a cheerful note that is valuable during war times. Another thing, which is cited as a reason why women are going to buy more hats this year than usual, is that millinery has advanced, relatively, less than any other kind of wearing apparel.

Now Comes the Semi-Made Suit.

The semi-made suit has made its appearance. Some of the first ones seen here consisted of an unfinished jacket and skirt of novelty crepe, as well as of braided and embroidered ratine, and could be retailed at about $12 and $15. They resembled, according to the bulletin of the National Garment Retailers' Association, the Russian blouse dress, except that the jacket, which is unlined, could be worn separately. The skirt was simply a length of the material, which had only to be seamed and sewed on a belting before being worn. The jacket had the sleeves and collar already sewed on, but had to have the seams finished off and the seam binding adjusted. The buttons, cuffs, and belt were already on. It is expected to do very well.

Gray Goods Still Lag.

There was again little snap evident in trading in the local gray goods market yesterday. Additional sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 18½ cents for June and July shipment, with a growing disposition on the part of mills to hold these goods at 19 cents and to ask 19¼ to 19½ cents for real spots. For June-July lots of 38½-inch 60-48s 16 cents was again paid, but aside from this there was not much of interest told of. In the sheetings, buyers were reported to be bidding, without success, 15½ cents for July-August deliveries of 5.70 sheetings. The mills, however, were said to be asking 15¾ cents for those months and 16 cents for any delivery this side of July, the goods being very scarce for nearby shipments. Closing prices on spot print-cloths were:

Which One Was Right?

"The opinions of buyers sometimes differ very radically," said a local manufacturer of women's coats and suits. "Yesterday morning I was showing an old customer one of our early suits for next Fall. I shan't tell you what he said about it, but it was not flattering. I rather felt discouraged because I knew this man's judgment to be good. In the afternoon another of our old customers came in in whose judgment I have equal confidence. When he saw this same suit he raved about it and placed a very substantial order. Now, which one was right?"

BUSINESS NOTES.

I. Friend, who has for a number of years been manager of the local office of the Boston Store of Chicago, at 44 East Twenty-third Street, has been made merchandise manager of that store. His successor as head of the local office had not been decided on up to yesterday, according to inquiries made there.

The Mohr Garment Company of St. Louis, makers of children's dresses, has opened a local office in Room 710 of the Wilson Building, 1,270 Broadway. It is in charge of Fred White.

J. P. Slater & Co., makers of coats and suits, have taken new quarters in the building at 11 West Thirty-second Street.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

In addition to the announcement of the selection of a site for the proposed Hotel Commonwealth, to comprise the block bounded by Broadway, Fifty-fifth Street, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, interest in the real estate market yesterday centred upon the sale of a West Thirteenth Street commercial building to an investor.

The Dimick estate sold to a client of L. B. Wakeman, the eleven-story mercantile building at 8 to 10 West Thirteenth Street, covering a plot 40 by 103.3, adjoining the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue. The property has been held at $200,000.

Investors Buying Tenements.

James H. Cruikshank has sold to an investor, the two five-story single flats at 6 and 8 Bradhurst Avenue, between 142d and 143rd Streets, on a plot 45.5 by 55.

James P. Eadie and John B. Robinson sold to Lena Weissberg, 210 West Sixty-second Street, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 100.5.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Harry Sugarman sold for Gertrude Rubin, 36 West 120th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling on a lot 18.4 by 100.11, facing Mount Morris Park.

Buying in the Bronx.

J. Clarence Davies sold for Catherine C. Giles the vacant plot, 26 by 114, on the north side of Giles Place, about 280 feet west of Sedgwick Avenue. The purchaser is M. S. Eyler, owner of the property adjoining on the south.

John C. Mead sold to a client of Kurz & Uren, the two three-story two-family dwellings at 2,872 and 2,890 Bailey Avenue, each on a lot 25 by 101, between 229th and 230th Streets.

Elise B. McNutt sold to the De Forest Telephone and Telegraph Company a lot 25 by 95 on the west side of Sedgwick Avenue, 100 feet south of 171st Street.

Brooklyn.

The Mechanics' National Bank sold to an investing client of E. J. Hollahan, the two-story two-family house at 157 Bay Ridge Avenue.

Tutino & Cerny sold for Thomas P. Hayes to Mrs. Matilda Johnson, for occupancy, the two-story brownstone dwelling at 441 Fifty-first Street.

Queens Borough Sales.

The St. Albans Heights Realty Company sold to J. H. Boeschen a plot 100 by 140 feet on the west side of Decatur Street 180 feet north of St. Mark's Avenue, St. Albans.

The Thrift sold to T. F. Woods the dwelling and plot 40 by 100 feet on the southeast corner of Delaware Street and Murray Street, Flushing.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company sold to the Julius Strauss Realty Corporation the plot 125 by 176 feet on the northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Meredith Avenue, Arverne.

The Harnden Realty Corporation sold to N. H. White a plot 70 by 151 feet on the east side of Ninth Street 125 feet south of Lawrence Boulevard, Bayside.

Long Island.

The John M. Clark estate, on Spinney Hill, Great Neck, Long Island, has been sold through Baker Crowell, Inc., and C. Smith Stanton. The estate comprises 52½ acres, with over one-half mile road frontage on the North Hempstead Turnpike, and adjoins the properties of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Payne Whitney. The buyer, who is an investor, is reported to have paid $125,000 for the property.

J. E. Breuer sold the Ella S. Wilkenson property in Great Neck Hills to C. E. Harty, who was represented by I. T. McKnight. The same broker also sold for Sarah E. Evans her property at the corner of Linden and Seventh Streets to John C. Sahm.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley organization sold for the estates of Tappan Zee two plots on Farrington Avenue, in the Philipse Manor section of Tarrytown, N. Y., to J. Bauman of Maspeth, L. I.

The Red Roof Realty Company has sold, at Mount Vernon, to John C. Wallace Company nineteen lots on the west side of South Seventh Avenue, north of the Kingsbridge Road, Mount Vernon, upon which are erected eight new one and two-family houses; also sold to the Mount Vernon Homes, Inc., twenty-one lots on the east side of South Seventh Avenue, near Kingsbridge Road, upon which they will erect ten seven-room houses, with garages, and to A. Mitchel, for occupancy, a new seven-room house with garage, at 669 South Seventh Avenue.

New Jersey.

Pearl L. Bergoff sold 29, 33, and 37 Seaview Avenue, Jersey City, three one-family dwellings, to Conrad W. Stier, Louis A. Heichelheim, and Lewis H. O'Donnell.

City Collector James Ratigan of Jersey City bought the two-story frame dwelling, 25 by 125, at 619 Pavonia Avenue, Jersey City, from Charles Heywood.

E. Heller & Bros., Inc., purchased as the site for improvement with a four-story brick factory building, which is to cost $70,000, a plot 100 by 98 at the northwest corner of the Boulevard and Lincoln Street, in the Hudson City section of Jersey City.

Commercial Leases.

The Duross Company leased for the Charles H. Van Aken Company the garage 3 Vandam Street, corner of Thompson Street, to Camica Brothers, for a term of years.

Charles B. Walker leased to the Wheelwright Paper Company of Boston the store and basement at 174 Wooster Street, for M. Hayes et al.

Active in Red Cross Campaign.

Education Notes.

Formal exercises to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the B. D. L. Southerland School, P. S. 3, Manhattan, 490 Hudson Street, will be held at 1 P. M. on May 28.

The pupils and guides of the blind and sight conservation classes in the public schools of Brooklyn and Queens will present "Hiawatha" in the Auditorium of the Manual Training High School, Seventh Avenue and Fourth Street, Brooklyn at 8:15 o'clock this evening.

The Board of Aldermen has been requested to authorize the purchase of sewing machines for the Manhattan Trade School for Girls at a sum not to exceed $16,600.

Miss Fanniebelle Curtis, Director of Kindargartens, who has received a leave of absence to organize kindergartens for the children in France, will address the Association of Women Principals today at the Washington Irving High School on her experiences in France and on her aims in that country.

The High School Teachers' Association has sent out an appeal to all high school teachers to join the association this year and help win the campaign which must be conducted to obtain adequate compensation for high school teachers. The association recently voted to abandon its long established policy of not working for salary increases. The Chairman of the Salary Committee, Clyde R. Jeffords of Boys' High School, has been elected President of the association for the coming year, and hopes to obtain the support and co-operation of all teachers in the effort to carry the salary campaign through to a successful conclusion.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Pressure has fallen considerably over the Western portion of the country, with principal centres of disturbance over Northeastern Montana and Southeastern Colorado. Over the Eastern portion, except New England, pressure remains high, with the crest over the upper lake region.

There were scattered thunder showers in the Atlantic States, Alabama, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the Plains States, and light rains in the North Pacific States. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

It is considerably cooler in the lake region and warmer in Eastern New England and the Central Rocky Mountain region. Elsewhere temperatures changed but little.

The weather will be fair Friday and Saturday in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, except in the South Atlantic States, where there will be thunder showers Friday. In the lake region, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee partly cloudy weather Friday will be followed by showers Saturday. It will be warmer Friday in the upper lake and western lower lake regions and the lower Ohio Valley, and warmer Saturday in the interior of New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest to north, fair; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate, shifting, except moderate east off the Florida coast, fair.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Southern New England—Fair Friday, cooler in the eastern portion; Saturday fair, warmer in the western portion.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Friday and Saturday.

LAYS SUBWAY DELAY UPON SERVICE BOARD

Controller Craig Writes That Interborough Has Failed to Install Power Cables.

CITES MODIFIED CONTRACTS

Says $300,000 Demanded of Estimate Board Was a Friendship Gift to Transit Company.

A statement was sent to the Board of Estimate yesterday by Controller Craig in which he laid the blame for the delay in completing the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue subways on the Public Service Commission, and practically accused the commission of being leagued with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in covering up the shortcomings of the latter and in permitting it to dally with the important subway work for the sake of profits.

The statement was the answer of the Controller to the recent letter of the commission to the board asking that haste be made in appropriating $300,000 to pay for track connections at Times Square and in Brooklyn. The commission intimated that if the operation of the two subway trunk lines should be delayed beyond June 15 it would be because of the failure of the Board of Estimate to appropriate the necessary money for the connections.

Mr. Craig says the commission for two years has permitted the Interborough Company to disregard its obligations to the city and to injure the traveling public because the delay was worth $200,000 a month to the company, and that an attempt was now being made by the commission to conceal its friendship for the Interborough by accusing the board of unwarranted delay.

"The reason," Mr. Craig's statement says, "that the operation of the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue lines has been delayed is that the Interborough has not yet completed the conduits and cables connecting the Fifty-ninth Street powerhouse with the lines or the substation work connecting the conduits and cables in question. A sifting of all the facts makes it quite obvious that it is not the Times Square connection, but the conduit lines through Fifty-seventh Street to be laid by the Interborough, that is delaying the operation of the two subway lines. In this delay the Public Service Commission must share the responsibility with the Interborough."

Mr. Craig says the conduit lines could have been built as early as Oct. 31, 1916, if the commission had done its duty. He stated that the failure of the commission and the Interborough to make the track connections at Times Square served to divert public attention from that the two subway trunk lines were the duct line and the substations, and ready last October for the installation of the signal system. To prove the alleged strong friendship between the commission and the Interborough, Mr. Craig says:

"A controversy was created by the Interborough when it lost the contract for the construction of the Seventh Avenue line, which was awarded to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, Inc., upon a bid substantially lower than that submitted for the Interborough. On half a dozen occasions when the Public Service Commission desired to permit the Interborough to do construction work and receive payment therefor it has proposed a modification of the original contract. The only purpose of such modification is to permit the Interborough to do the work without competitive bidding."

He says the Interborough had agreed to pay for making the track connections out of its contribution of $58,000,000 toward constructing and equipping the new lines, but that later the commission asked for a modification of the contract so that the track connections at Times Square and in Brooklyn should be done by the Interborough at cost with allowances for overhead, administration, and legal expenses to the amount of $300,000 which the city should pay. This is the $300,000, Mr. Craig says, which the commission is now asking for.

Mr. Craig points out that the commission in its letter to the Board of Estimate, made no reference to this previous agreement, but that it made the unfounded charge that the Board of Estimate was responsible for delaying the operation of the two trunk lines. He states that the delay was for the purpose of giving the Interborough time to lay its conduits, and that the claim is now made that the accumulation of interest charges has helped to absorb the $58,000,000 contributed by the Interborough. In concluding his statement Mr. Craig says:

"In view of the serious consequences to the city and the very grave losses that will ensue if this matter goes unchallenged, it is submitted that the Public Service Commission should be requested immediately to furnish a full and detailed explanation to the Board of Estimate and that the matter should be referred to the Corporation Counsel with instructions to advise your board what rights and remedies the city has in the premises."

The statement will be considered at the meeting of the Board of Estimate today.

6,000 SCHOOLGIRLS DANCE IN THE PARK

Military Touch to Public Schools Athletic League's Annual Fete Day.

More than 6,000 little girls danced about Maypoles decked with red, white, and blue streamers in Central Park yesterday afternoon at the eleventh annual park fête of the Public Schools Athletic League. The band of the S. S. Recruit played for the little girls, who were from fifty of the elementary schools of the city. The fête was to have been held on Tuesday, but was postponed because of rain.

It looked at one time yesterday as if another postponment was inevitable. There was a sharp shower of rain. The children ran for the trees at the edge of the sheep pasture, where the fête was held, and were back again in a minute, for the shower was over. But it was time enough to damage the paraphernalia of the show. The streamers of the Maypoles got wet and a few hair ribbons were destroyed, especially where these were of crêpe paper.

Most effective in these war days was the opening of the fête. A roll of drums gave the signal to clear the field, and all the children, some of whom had been on hand several hours in advance of the time for the opening, massd themselves around the sheep pasture. The bugle called "Attention!" and a white flag waved from the bandstand in the centre of the field to give the signal to advance. The children came forward, keeping time to a march played by the sailor band. As the bugle called "To the Colors!" a large flag was pulled up the flagstaff, the children standing at attention in silence, and then, as with one voice, the 6,000 little girls recited a pledge of allegiance to the flag.

$4,000,000 SITE BOUGHT FOR GREAT NEW HOTEL

The Commonwealth to be Built on Block at Broadway and Fifty-fifth Street.

Conditional contracts were entered into yesterday for the acquisition of a site for the proposed Hotel Commonwealth. The location selected, according to the announcement made by the Commonwealth Hotel Construction Company, of which Jason Rogers is President, comprises the entire block bounded by Broadway, Fifty-fifth Street, Seventh Avenue, and Fifty-sixth Street, valued at $4,000,000.

There are about thirty city lots in the plot, which is now occupied by the group of apartment hotels known as the Rockingham, the Sonoma, the Frederick, and the Van Corlear, at the top of the slight hill extending to Times Square. Franklin Pettit and Robert E. Dowling were the brokers in the transaction. It was learned last night that a substantial amount had been paid on the contract, but that no actual construction work would be undertaken until an additional sum of $2,500,000 had been raised.

Plans prepared by Starrett & Van Vleck and King & Campbell call for the erection of a thirty-four-tsory hotel structure to contain 2,500 rooms and to involve an outlay of about $15,000,000.

ELECT STEPHEN C. MASON.

New President of National Association of Manufacturers.

Stephen C. Mason of the McConway & Torley Company, Pittsburgh, was yesterday chosen President of the National Association of Manufacturers at a meeting of the Board of Directors held at the Waldorf-Astoria, following the three-day convention which ended Wednesday. Mr. Mason is the seventh President of the association, the offices of which are at 30 Church Street, this city. He succeeds as President Colonel George Pope, who died April 19 last.

All of the other officers were re-elected as follows: General Manager and Assistant Treasurer, J. Phillip Bird; Treasurer, Henry Abbott; Secretary, George S. Boudinot.

Announcement was made that the association was opposed to the introduction into this country of the metric system of weights and measures. The British Committee on Commercial and Industrial Policy After the War recently voted against the adoption of the metric system for Great Britain, and the National Association's special committee decided that a change in standards in the United States was inadvisable at this time.

Frederick A. Halsey, Commissioner of the American Institute of Weights and Measures, 20 Vesey Street, who has conducted a countrywide campaign against the adoption here of the metric system, expressed gratification over the action taken by the association, whose membership aggregates 4,000.

PALMER SEIZES MILLIONS IN COTTON

SECRET STORES ARE FOUND

Complete Surrender of Property Is Announced, and Warning Is Issued Against Concealment by Other Firms

A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, announced yesterday through his New York offices that three more groups of corporations involved in the program of supplying cotton to Germany had been taken over as the result of inquiry made earlier in the year by the Bureau of Investigation. Five of the companies in one group have aggregate assets of $4,000,000. The seizure comprises many millions of dollars worth of cotton in storage in various parts of the country, all of which, the announcement said, had been traced and was at the disposal of the Government.

Of the corporations brought under the ban, according to Mr. Palmer's statement, the New England Waste Company, the American Linters Company, the American Products Company, the Overseas Trading Company, and Wolf & Sons, dealers in spinnable cotton and cotton waste, with offices and mills for the most part in Massachusetts, are owned by Wolf & Soehne. This manufacturing firm is described as one of the largest cotton houses in the world, with branches in England, Switzerland, Italy, China, and other countries.

"The other two groups," the statement continued, "are the Anglo-American Cotton Company and the Richard Mayer Company, also located in Massachusetts, dealers in spinnable cotton and cotton waste. They are owned by Reis & Co. of Heidelberg, Germany, whose holdings in this country approximate $1,000,000.

"For Wolf & Soehne the management of the American companies was vested in one group of officers, as follows: Adolf Leve of Boston, Mass., President and Lewis P. Sladen of Melrose, Mass., Clerk, who, together with George E. Lund of Melrose, Mass., constituted the Board of Directors.

"For Reis & Co. the American control in the Anglo-American Cotton Company was vested in the following officers; J. E. McIntyre, President; Julius Laible, Treasurer; S. A. Noether, Clerk; all of Boston, who together constituted the Board of Directors. The Reis & Co. officers in the Richard Mayer Company were Richard Mayer, President and Treasurer; Charles E. Hicks, Clerk, both of Boston; they, together with Jacob Flatau of New York, forming the Board of Directors.

"When the war broke out in Europe both Adolph Leve and Richard Mayer were in Germany, and returned to America late in the Fall of 1914. Both told, for practical purposes, identically the same story: that they had rearranged the business of the American companies, severed their connection with the parent concern in Germany, and had taken the American business as their share in the profits.

"They immediately began to buy high-class cotton and ship it to Germany through neutral countries. After the English embargo stiffened and this country entered the war, they continued to buy up cotton, but instead of shipping it overseas they stored it in small lots in warehouses in the United States, ready to be rushed into Germany the moment peace was declared. At the present time they have millions of dollars' worth of cotton in storage, all of which has been located and which will be taken over by the Alien Property Custodian.

"The New England Waste and affiliated companies made reports in which only small enemy holdings were shown. The Richard Mayer Company and the Anglo-American Cotton made no report at all. Since then Adolph Leve has admitted that the reports of his company were incorrect, and Richard Mayer has now, as a result of this present investigation, made report of large German holdings in his company. It further appears that in at least one instance the attempt to cover the enemy-owned property was made upon the advice of American counsel.

"The collection of evidence on the operation of these representatives of the German Government has culminated in a complete surrender of the control of all this property, which, together with other assets of the corporations concerned, will eventually be sold to American citizens.

"Earlier in the year fair warning was given to all holders or custodians of enemy property, such as this, to come forward and make a full and complete report. The continued failure of all those included in this class to do so may result in their holdings being forfeited to the United States, as provided in the Trading with the Enemy act, as well as the prosecution of those concerned in the concealment of enemy-owned property or those who make false reports thereon."

Francis P. Garvan had been appointed Managing Director of the New York office, Mr. Palmer announced, and, in addition, would continue to direct the work of the Bureau of Investigation, whose function it is to discover fraud and to make all examinations in reference to reports on enemy property.
